Werner Bros., rose growers at Clayton, Mo., have two houses in course of erection, each 32x150. The A. Dietsch Co., of Chicago, is supplying the material. When the houses are completed Werner Bros. will have nearly 75,000 square feet of glass. Tom Peterson and Charles Roper are the growers at this place.

Marion Uhlschmidt, manager at the East St. Louis store of Grimm & Gorly, is out for the nomination as mayor of East St. Louis.

Mrs. Mamie Westhus, widow of the late Ben Westhus, well known political leader in the south end, has opened a store at Berlin and Skinker avenues. Mrs. Westhus depends greatly on the many friends of her late husband to make her venture a success.

SMITH FLORAL CO., 1112 Broadway

ington avenue florist, is sporting a new automobile. He will take his family for a vacation this week. They will motor as far west as Kansas City. Mr. Senger said that after a hard season's work the trip will be a great relief.

Henry Niemeyer, of Kirkwood, died July 6 of apoplexy. His sudden death was a great shock to his many friends. The funeral was held July 9 from his late residence at Kirkwood. The attendance of florists at the funeral was large.

Do not forget the florists' picnic, July 20, at Romona park. The majority of the trade have promised to close their stores at noon. The Florists' Club invites all florists and their families to attend. There will be no charges and the trustees who have charge of the affair look for a large attendance.

Count von Hoffman, of George Waldbart's force, has returned from his northern trip. The boss says the Count has gained several pounds. No doubt the hot days will soon reduce him to his former size.

W. S. Wells, vice-president of the Florists' Club and secretary of the Missouri State Florists' Association, left July 10 with his family for an automobile trip to Cincinnati.

William Ossick and Paddy Patton, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., put in a busy week taking stock. Paddy, when asked how he liked the job, said:

"The job is all right, but this kind of weather belittles the feat of George Washington, who crossed the Delaware through floating cakes of ice."

The Westover Nursery Co. secured incorporation papers last week. This company recently purchased the Rotherhoever Nursery, of Clayton, Mo. H. W. Endres is vice-president and manager. The 35-acre tract is planted to young nursery stock.

Walter J. Pilcher and A. S. Cerny, of Kirkwood, are to be seen each evening trying to master new automobiles. Both say they will motor to Romona park next Thursday, for the picnic.

The Retail Florists' Association will hold its monthly meeting July 17 at the Mission Inn Garden. President Charles Young says that much important business will come up for discussion. He expects a large attendance.

"Billy" Smith, head of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., makes daily trips to his farm in St. Louis county. He returns with his automobile filled with vegetables, which he proudly displays to his friends. They say he is some farmer.

Frank Weber has returned from the nurserymen's convention at Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Weber reports a good meeting and says he was made chairman of a committee to be selected by him to form a hail insurance organization among the nurserymen, for loss of outdoor stock by hail.

Arthur Waldman, who has conducted a store at Delmar and Hamilton avenues during the last few years, has closed his doors. The sale of the stock and fixtures was made July 8 by George An-

The officers of the new wholesale house known as the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. will locate at 1410 Pine street, where a new building will be erected for them. It will be ready September 1. It is to be a 2-story structure, with a basement.

Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, spent July 6 here on his way to New York. E. F. Peterson, representing Cordley & Hayes, of New York, called on the trade last week.

Andre Bourdet, head of the cut flower department of the Bourdet Floral Co., is taking a ten days' vacation. Andre is the oldest son of Jules Bourdet, who is the head of the company.

Chairmen of the various committees of the spring flower show met at the store of the Bourdet Floral Co. July 11. Secretary Ohlweiler, of the executive committee, will report this meeting at the club meeting to be held this week. A call of twenty-five per cent of the guarantee fund has been made.

J. J. B.

Manistique, Mich.—E. N. Johnson is starting in the business here, erecting a greenhouse 25x60 feet.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The entertainment committee in charge of the annual 2-day outing of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, which will be held at Winona Lake, Ind., July 18 and 19, has circularized the association's membership with a letter giving the program and setting forth the numerous attractions of the affair. There will be concerts, lectures, baseball, races, boat rides and a banquet. Everything except the banquet is free to florists and their families. Fred A. King, J. D. Connor and William Terrell, who constitute the committee, conclude their letter with the following: "Don't forget, Old Scout, that we expect you to do your part, by being on hand to help to make this the largest meeting we've ever had."

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

GERMAN mails dated Quedlinburg, April 3, arrived in Chicago July 10.

IT develops that the acreage of sweet corn in Maine this year is much less than usual and the condition far backward.

THE Gray Seed Co., of Billings, Mont., has been superseded by the Billings Seed Co., a new organization, of which S. D. Macdonald is a member.

W. W. BARNARD, Chicago, who returned recently from California, leaves July 17 on a tour of inspection of the pea crops in Michigan and Wisconsin.

THE weather has turned much more favorable for the pea and bean growers, but it is feared that it is too late to make much difference in the bean situation; another short crop is inevitable.

ALTHOUGH the arrivals of German seeds have almost ceased since April, when a considerable quantity came in by parcel post, a number of houses still are hoping that their pansy seed will get through the blockade.

THE first Harrisii bulbs of the 1916 crop arrived at New York July 3. It was only twenty-eight cases, three consigned to E. Furdell and twenty-five to Maltus & Ware. The next trip of the Bermudian will bring the first important shipment of the season.

GOING AFTER MAIL ORDERS.

Securing a charter from the secretary of state last week increasing its capital stock to $30,000, the Stricker Seed Co., of Asheville, N. C., is undergoing a complete reorganization. The company will remodel its establishment at 22 West College street, installing new equipment and fixtures in preparation for an extensive mail order business in addition to a large wholesale and retail business.

L. R. Stricker, the former proprietor, conducted the business at its present location for many years, but owing to ill health is forced to give up an active part in the management. D. P. Durban will succeed as manager of the store. Mr. Durban was in the seed business in Augusta for eleven years, and for several years previously in Birmingham, Ala.

M. F. Hoffman is president of the newly organized concern, Mrs. Annie D. Martin is vice-president and Stephen Adams, secretary. The other stockholders are J. G. Adams, J. G. Merrimon and L. R. Stricker.

HENRY FIELD'S GOOD YEAR.

At the annual meeting of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia., held July 3, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Henry Field; vice-president, A. L. P. Thompson; secretary and treasurer, F. E. Tunnicliff. The board of directors is the same as last year, with two new members added: Henry Field, A. L. P. Thompson, E. A. Read, D. S. Lake, E. S. Welch, G. C. Mitchell, A. M. Eldridge, W. W. Pitzer and T. F. Finnell.

A dividend of ten per cent was de-

BURPEE'S EARLY, or Winter-flowering Spencers

¶ The House of Burpee has long been recognized as American Headquarters for Sweet Peas, and our introduction of these Fordhook Strains of Winter-flowering Spencers marks an era in commercial Sweet Pea growing.

¶ The novelties offered below, excepting Yarrawa, are the results of crosses made at our Fordhook Farms during the past seven seasons. All stocks are grown at our Floradale Farm, "The California Home of Sweet Peas."

Fordhook Pink and White A most popular Winter-flowering Spencer. A color that is always in demand, similar to the old Blanche Ferry. Bright rosy pink standard, wings almost pure white. The immense flowers measure 2½ inches in diameter and are perfect in form. A very early, free and continuous bloomer, awarded a Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915, and of the American Sweet Pea Society, San Francisco, June, 1916. ¼ oz., $1.25; ½ oz., $2.00; oz., $3.50.

Fordhook Pink This is a distinct shade of pink, suffused with lavender throughout. Flowers are large size, exquisitely waved, produced in threes and fours on long stems. ¼ oz., 40c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $3.50; ½ lb., $6.25; lb., $12.50.

Fordhook Rose Introduced by us in 1915. Flowers of largest size, usually borne in threes and fours. A charming shade of rosy carmine. Awarded a Certificate of Merit at the International Show, New York, March, 1915, and the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915. ¼ oz., 50c; ½ oz., 85c; oz., $1.50; ¼ lb., $4.00; ½ lb., $7.50; lb., $15.00.

Yarrawa This magnificent Australian variety has proved its unusual merit with commercial growers in all parts of the country. It has an exceptional reputation as a sure money-maker. First exhibited by us at the great International Show in New York, March, 1914, and awarded a Certificate of Merit by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, March, 1915. Flowers exquisitely waved, averaging 2½ inches in diameter, many of them being duplex or double. A bright rose-pink, with a clear, creamy base. ¼ oz., 35c; ½ oz., 60c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $2.75; ½ lb., $5.00; lb., $10.00.

clared, also a special dividend of ten per cent, making twenty per cent in all. The company also issued to the employees a bonus of ten per cent on the amount of wages they had received during the year. This affected 107 people, cost the company $4,300 and was given to all employed by the company for fifteen weeks or more during the year. In doing this the company established no precedent but will continue to pay an employees' dividend if business justifies it.

This is one of the seed concerns that has no fear of publicity; it states that during the year ended June 30, 1916, it filled 133,652 orders, which totaled $412,912.29, an average of about $3.09 per order. This is an increase of thirty-three and one-third per cent over the preceding year in the number of orders as well as the gross business.

Out of this amount of business the orders were distributed as follows:

Garden and flower seeds	$135,673.01
Field seeds, except corn	138,890.31
Nursery	66,065.74
Seed corn	59,468.33
Implements	10,242.42

Aside from this there were other small scattering items of sales.

A statement of the business done this year as compared with preceding years will also be of interest. The following is the amount of gross business for each of the last four years:

1914	227,872.53
1915	313,373.12
1916	412,912.29

Another feature is the fact that the company depends altogether on advertising for its sales. It does not employ solicitors or traveling salesmen, but relies on the printed product of its own printing office. The sales are made direct to the planters, no sales being made to wholesalers or to the retail trade. A record kept at the office shows that it has averaged the receipt of forty-eight orders for every 100 catalogues sent out.

The business was originated in 1895, but kept on its swaddling clothes until about 1903, when it commenced to spread. In 1907 it was incorporated and its real expansion began, after moving the business into town from the farm.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Business has dropped to the hot weather average, which is low. There is not an extra large supply of stock in the market, but there is enough for all demands and then some left over. Southern gladioli have come in heavily during the week and have moved fairly well. Peas are plentiful—far too many for the demand. A few asters arrived this week, the first of the season, but they are only of medium quality. Lilies are plentiful and have been moving well. Roses have shortened both in quality and supply, but the close of the week's business found many in the hands of the street boys. A few carna-

Zvolanek's Prize Sweet Pea Seed

We have a copy of Mr. Anton C. Zvolanek's interesting price list ready for you, if you failed to receive the one mailed you a few days ago. Mr. Zvolanek is the originator of the Winter Sweet Pea, having produced all but two of the several hundred Winter-flowering Sweet Peas now known to the botanist—more than 106 distinct varieties developed from his Orchid-flowering type are now grown throughout the world. Sweet Peas from Zvolanek seed, exhibited by Mr. Zvolanek and other prominent growers, have gathered first prizes everywhere. The four latest honors were First Prizes at the Philadelphia National Flower Show and the New York International Flower Show, and the Gold Medals of Honor at both the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions. Last year's crop was sold out very early. Orders are filled in the order of their receipt. We urge ordering now—from the novelties offered below or from the price list we will gladly send.

JULY and AUGUST

THESE ARE THE MONTHS in which to start seedling Snapdragon plants to follow Mums. Snapdragons have become immensely popular, and for profit to grower there is no plant that touches them. We have all of the good ones, seed of which were grown under glass, with each variety in a separate house—meaning the best seed that can be produced. Prices as follows:

Seed of our original Silver Pink Snapdragon, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, Yellow, Buxton, Phelps' White and fancy Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Free cultural directions. All orders cash.

There is a big shortage of Snapdragon plants, due to rainy season, so grow all the plants that you can and market any surplus. Our famous Silver Pink will be the leader, with our other good ones in their color. Every mail brings repeat orders and puffs for RAMSBURG'S SILVER PINK.

Remember July and August and start some seedling Snapdragon plants.

tions are coming in, but they meet only with an average demand. Their quality is none too good. Green goods are in heavy supply and all the stores are overstocked.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held July 10. The night was exceedingly warm and the attendance only light. The routine business quickly was disposed of and was followed by a discussion of the trip to Harpers Ferry and surrounding country. It was finally decided that July 27 should be the date, the meeting place the club rooms, at 8 a. m. sharp. As the trip will be a long one, it is necessary to leave town early. Lunch may be had at Harpers Ferry or some other point, which will be decided upon before leaving the city. Those who wish to provide a hamper of edibles will not find it out of place. Those who contemplate going would do well to get in touch with John J. Perry, who is chairman of the committee.

Various Notes.

S. W. Shanklin is shipping some of the first asters of the season to the Leo Niessen Co.

M. Hilpert is preparing to extend each of his houses twenty feet. All the material is on hand and work will be started shortly.

John Cook has been cutting some good Iris Kæmpferi.

Charles E. Seybold, who formerly was connected with the park system of this city but who now is with the public parks of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is in town for the Elks' convention.

Samuel Feast & Sons staged a special window display in honor of the visiting Elks. The entire window was taken up with a realistic reproduction of the Natural Bridge of Virginia, with a portion of the stream and surrounding scenery. The rocks were of papier-mache, and to imitate the stream mirrors were used. W. F. E.

Clarinda, Ia.—Additions are being made to the Clarinda Greenhouses that will double the growing capacity of the range. J. V. Pfander and V. A. Crosthwait are the owners.

MIGNONETTE SEED

We offer seed of a strain of Mignonette which we have reselected for many years. Read the following letters and judge for yourself if it is not worth while to buy the best seed obtainable:

FROM WHOLESALERS

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 4, 1916.

Mr. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Mignonette that you have been shipping us is the best that is coming to this market, and we have been able to sell this in preference to other shipments, and maintaining a higher price. I think you have an exceedingly fine strain—in fact, the very best one that I have ever seen.

Very truly yours,
GEO. B. HART.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1915.

Mr. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

Dear Sir: We received the Mignonette this a. m. and would say the shipment was sold out as soon as it was laid out on the sales table. The quality certainly was excellent; no finer has been received in this market in some time, and as the time is nearing the holidays we hope to be able to receive and handle all you can ship. We will warrant that the returns will prove satisfactory.

Yours very truly, WM. F. KASTING CO.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

STEM-ROT OF TOMATOES.

I am sending a sample tomato from my greenhouse. There seems to be something wrong with the vine. The root and tomato are in good condition and the tomatoes continue to stay on the vine. I had 500 plants in the house and the tomatoes are ripening now. Five of the plants were affected in the same way as the one I am sending. I pulled them up and destroyed them. The rest of the plants are in good condition and are doing well. Please let me know the cause and remedy as soon as possible.

M. W. B.—Kan.

The portion of stem forwarded came in a completely rotted condition and it was practically impossible to tell anything about the nature of the disease. Possibly you have been keeping the atmospheric conditions too moist. This, added to dampness at the root, would be likely to cause such trouble, especially if the tomatoes are quite closely planted. Tomatoes want a dry atmosphere and it is always safer to run them a trifle on the dry side at the root. They should never be sprayed. Never keep the ventilators closed down tightly in damp weather. Even when you use no fire heat, keep some air moving. You were quite right in destroying the affected plants and, as these fungoid troubles are generally carried over in the soil, I would suggest sterilizing your soil before planting another season.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Market conditions are satisfactory. There is no oversupply in any line. Gladioli are abundant. Their quality is good and worth the price asked. Roses are not in oversupply, since there are no more home-grown carnations. Russell, Ophelia and White Killarney are the leaders. Roses, generally, are of better quality than a year ago. Lilies have

THE KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

Seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance. A beautiful collection of colors and markings.
26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.
28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.
30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches.
32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly fine dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture.
34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown, bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades.
45. GIANT APOLLO (Masterpiece type). New bronze, veined and blotched. Strongly frilled petals. A superb Pansy.
49. GIANT MERCURY. New. A deep blackish purple, really self-colored, without blotches or spots. The flowers are extraordinary in size and substance, being the largest flowers of all self-colored Pansies.
82. ORCHID FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the Summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers. Each color separate or mixed.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
15. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and varia tions.

500 seeds 50c., 1000 seeds $1.00, ⅛ oz. $2.00, ¼ oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00.

20. PRINCESS. The New Upright Pansy.

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weatherproof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy, velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c., 1000 Seeds 35c., ⅛ oz. $1.00, ¼ oz. $2.00, 1 oz. $7.50.

FREE OFFER RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow and with other amounts in like proportion.

Prices of Kenilworth Pansy Seed

All sorts and mixtures except the new Pansy Princess and the Early Flowering or Winter Blooming are $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per ¼ oz.; 5000 seeds $1.00; trade pkt. of 1000 seeds 25c; any 5 pkts. $1.00. Please order by number.

little demand. Sweet peas are good, considering the hot weather we have. Green goods have been scarce.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports business especially good. W. L. Rock is spending a vacation of several weeks fishing at the Lake View Club. Miss Richards, with this concern, left for a two weeks' stay in Colorado and Walter Obeig also is on a vacation.

A. F. Barbe has his carnation and chrysanthemum plants in the houses. Business is good; bedding stock continues to move.

T. J. Noll, of T. J. Noll & Co., left this week for a two weeks' trip, stopping over in Chicago for a short stay. Business with his company is good. They are receiving 1,500 carnations daily from Colorado. Large quantities of gladioli and first-class roses arrive daily.

E. D. Ellsworth has planted his place to 10,000 chrysanthemums. He has decided not to grow young poinsettia plants, as it interferes with his retail trade to a certain extent. He is spending the summer at Forest lake.

Samuel Murray reports business good for this time of the year. He had a large decoration at the Country Club last week.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley is spending her vacation at Forest lake.

James B. Masson went fishing last week, but as yet we have not heard how many fish he caught.

Business across the state line has been better than was expected. Decorative work was heavier than usual.

Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; Arthur Zirkman, representing the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Frank Anderson and Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, called on the trade last week. W. J. B.

Litchfield, Ill.—A large addition has been made to the Cottage Greenhouses.

Baraboo, Wis.—William Toole & Son say they are much pleased with their pansy seed crop this year; while many reports are heard of trouble with pansies, their crop is the largest ever.

PRIZE-WINNERS AT THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Spokane, Wash.—Peters & Sons have contracted for the erection of two greenhouses.

Oakland, Cal.—Another woman to enter the florists' business is Miss May Black, of 577 Forty-first street.

Lents, Ore.—As August Weber was about to start out in life, his father imparted to him some paternal advice, in which particular stress was laid on the desirability of owning one's business, though it were only a peanut stand. Accordingly, after four years of apprenticeship in the florists' business, Mr. Weber has taken his father's advice and launched a flower business of his own.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The "only florists' holiday" was enjoyed by many of our wholesalers and retailers by making trips to the ocean or the mountains, and all reported an excellent time. Vacation and holiday feelings are in the air and the scribe who goes around looking for news of flowers and the flower business is likely to be regaled with stories of big fish or speed records.

Stock piled up pretty rapidly last week, in spite of a lot of funeral and wedding work. In roses, fine stock from the north continues to augment the local supply and in many cases the quality is equal, if not superior, to that of the home-grown stock. Asters are extra fine now and the purple known as Elks' color is especially popular. New-crop carnations also are making a splendid showing, while dahlias, gladioli and centaureas are here to burn. Large shipments of northern greens are arriving and it is difficult to see what becomes of all the stock.

Various Notes.

Tassano Bros. are showing a fine line of maidenhair ferns, grown in their new nursery at Glendale. They report that business is good in all classes of supplies and evergreens.

O. W. Saakes, familiarly known to the trade as "Billy," left Los Angeles July 1 for an automobile trip. He intended to visit the San Diego fair, remaining in the city over the Fourth, after which his movements would be uncertain.

Always pleasant and smiling, the countenance of H. N. Gage has been so particularly radiant the last few days that one was tempted to seek the reason. It was found in the 9-pound boy that arrived in the Gage home last week. Both mother and boy are thriving in the delightful air of Monterey Park, until recently known as Montebello.

Murata & Co. are doing a thriving business in carnations, gladioli and asters.

Wright's Flower Shop is making a splendid show of stock grown at the Gardena range. While other growers and retailers seem to be having trouble over the valley situation, the stock at the Fourth street store always seems to be perfect.

Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., is handling the gladiolus cut from F. Stoneham, of Riverside.

When Charles Winsel sold his nursery branch at the corner of Washington and Figueroa streets, it became necessary for Miss Rohr to seek new quarters and these she has found at 1907 Washington street, where she is establishing an attractive store.

Frank Lichtenberg commenced to pull out the interior decorations of his store July 4, and while it seemed rather a shame to destroy the beautiful and effective work put in only two years ago, yet we look for something even more effective in the new arrangement. For one thing, the beautiful fountain and artificial rock effect took up more room than could be spared, owing to the increased business, and Mr. Lichtenberg is nothing if not progressive.

C. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery Co., drove to Tia Juana, Mexico, for the Fourth of July races.

At the monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, held at Kruckeberg's hall, J. Whitehead, of the staff of H. W. Turner, Montebello, was to have spoken on "Baby Roses," but the evening was practically taken up by business matters and Mr. Whitehead kindly consented to hold over his paper for the August meeting. One of the matters up for discussion was that of a change in the meeting place, and it was decided to accept the offer of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce to hold the meetings in its public room. An executive committee was elected, consisting of the present officers and Frank Lewin, H. R. Richards and E. Hunt. The executive meetings still will be held at the old hall, kindly lent free of all charges for several years by the Kruckeberg Press. A visitor from the north was welcomed in the person of J. Clark, of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, Cal., who gave a short description of some of the work already done there and the bigger things in prospect. Mr. Clark was formerly connected with the California Nursery Co., of Niles, and left there for his present sphere of action last May. The quarterly smoker of the society was held at Christopher's July 8, with a big attendance.

J. Dieterich reports an extra heavy demand for freesias this year. At the Montebello nurseries he is said to have potted up over 80,000 small seedling bulbs.

G. Groen is already sending in stock from his new place at Montebello.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

There is an abundance of stock of excellent quality, which makes it hard for the retailers to keep from overloading their stores. Inferior flowers are difficult to move at any price. Dahlias are at their height and move quite readily, considering the generous offerings of other seasonable stock. Some attractive new varieties have made their appearance this season, but none of them as yet can be called a definite success. There is a magnificent crop of gladioli, especially of Niagara, Panama and Mrs. Francis King, all of which move well. Sweet peas are not so plentiful as they were, but they continue to arrive in sufficient quantity to fill all requirements. Carnations are plentiful and move rather slowly. Some nice larkspur is coming in and may be had at low prices. There is a large cut of snapdragon, some of which is unusually good stock. Scabiosas, sweet sultans, gypsophilas, etc., show no signs of abating in supply.

Among the statice shown this summer are some unusual varieties, which are quite popular. Asters still are short-stemmed, but good stock is expected in a week or two. Notwithstanding the ample supply and great variety of flowers already on the market, new lilies are being well received. Lilium rubrum and L. auratum are coming in plentifully. Roses, fortunately, are in lighter supply, otherwise they would be a drug on the market. The yellow varieties are popular. There is plenty of valley, but orchids remain rather scarce. However, no real shortage is felt, as the demand is not urgent. In flowering plants hydrangeas are the principal feature, and they maintain their popularity wonderfully well. The trade is beginning to look forward to the arrival of the 1916 chrysanthemum crop, which the growers say promises well at this early date.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

At the monthly meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, held on the evening of July 1, with a fair attendance, a letter from Amsterdam was read to the society, offering the services of a bureau free to the members wishing to export to or import from Holland. In behalf of the picnic committee, D. Raymond announced that arrangements were complete for the outing to be held July 30 at Pinehurst, on the electric line of the Oakland-Antioch railroad. Tickets were on sale at the meeting and members were notified that they could be had later at all the downtown stores showing cards in the windows to that effect. The committee on by-laws was discharged, with thanks.

Secretary Walter Hofinghoff read Richard Diener's paper on "Hybridizing," and a vote of thanks was taken. The flower show committee suggested that a dahlia show be arranged for September and the proposition met with favor. It was decided to hold the show and to leave the arrangements in the hands of the committee. It was voted that the secretary send letters of condolence to several members in whose families deaths recently have occurred. The question of wholesalers selling at retail in San Francisco and Oakland came up for discussion and it was moved that a committee be appointed to confer with a committee of retail florists in the matter.

After some discussion regarding the desirability of gardeners in this vicinity being organized, it was decided that it was outside the functions of the society to act. No exhibits were entered for award, but F. C. Burns showed two new seedling dahlias, hybrids of Delice and Geisha, which have not been named. Charles Abraham exhibited a spray each of tecoma, bignonia, metrosideros and thalictrum.

Various Notes.

Frank Thatcher, with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., went to Eureka, Cal., to assist Charles Willis Ward, of that city, in decorating floats, making bouquets, etc., in connection with the big Fourth of July celebration there.

A new wholesale house has been opened at 431 Bush street under the name of San Francisco Floral Co.

have a good supply in another week or two. They report an excellent demand.

C. Kooyman is doing a rushing business with local growers in freesia and daffodil bulbs.

T. Mosco, who a few months ago opened a flower store at 20 Geary street, says that business has been up to expectations. He plans to remodel his store and make extensive improvements before fall.

About fifty dahlia growers met in San Francisco on the evening of July 5 and made preliminary arrangements for the organization of the California Dahlia Society. Growers from all the bay counties were present and some from more distant points, including H. Ebel, of Sacramento, and C. A. Foster, of Pacific Grove. The object of the association is to study dahlia culture, hold shows and arrange other special features to stimulate interest in this flower, which makes such a wonderful growth in this vicinity. Another meeting will be held shortly for the election of officers. In all probability the new dahlia society will coöperate with the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society in holding a fall flower show, plans for which were launched at its last meeting.

The Sacramento Florists' Association has plans under way for a fall flower show, the date of which will be set at a meeting July 15.

C. A. Foster's place, at Pacific Grove, Cal., will be the scene of a feast of lanterns July 25 to 29, at the close of a Chautauqua meeting at that city.

Various buildings on the United States Plant Introduction Garden, at Chico, Cal., burned a few days ago, incurring a loss estimated at $4,000.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THERE is a steadily increasing demand for Schwedler maple.

THE spring season has given the peony growers a nice bunch of fall retail orders from those who visited the fields while the bloom was on.

THE boards of general appraisers are advancing the values declared for many of the importations of Boskoop stock shipped during February and March.

D. W. HUNTER, of Chattanooga, Tenn., has filed a petition in bankruptcy in behalf of the Chattanooga Nursery Co. Liabilities are given as $34,000 and assets $21,000.

A. R. GROSS, to whose abilities W. N. Rudd credits much of the beauty of Mount Greenwood cemetery, Morgan Park, Ill., is about to open an office at Detroit to practice his profession as landscape gardener.

IT is almost too much to expect that a man will send his surplus to the bonfire when he sees his competitor turning a similar stock into a new touring car by means of connection with some department store.

THE Elkon Nursery Co., of Huntsville, Ala., has completed the installation of new waterworks, comprising a drilled well, pump, gasoline engine, water tanks, etc. The company specializes in shrubs and rooted cuttings of shrubs and roses, all "made in America."

IT is said that there are a number of new peonies soon to come out that are expected to make a name for America, but the man who does the work will be entitled to all the fruits of his success. When one considers that pæonia seeds generally require two years to germinate, with three more for the first characteristic bloom, it is apt to discourage all save those who labor for love.

UNCLAIMED IMPORTED STOCK.

Customs officials have just been notified by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrew J. Peters that unclaimed nursery stock may be sold without the certificate of an officer of the Agricultural Department that is provided for in Treasury Decision No. 34151, of February 6, 1914, and that decision is amended accordingly, when it is found by the collector that a permit has been issued by the Agricultural Department for the nursery stock, that foreign certificates of inspection are attached to the containers, and that the latter are plainly marked to show the general nature and quantity of the contents, the name and address of the exporter, the name and address of the consignee, and the country and locality where the stock was grown. Unclaimed nursery stock not coming under the above provisions is to be destroyed under customs supervision by burning.

RELIEF IN THE LAW.

As legal editor of an agricultural paper, I recently received the following interesting query from a Minnesota farmer:

"Can a man who sells 2-foot evergreens and delivers trees only six to fifteen inches high be arrested for giving short measure, and to whom should I complain?"

The question raises an important point as to the legal liability of a nurseryman who delivers younger stock than he contracted to sell. I know of no law which makes such default a criminal offense. My correspondent has evidently jumped at a conclusion that, it being generally an offense to sell agricultural products by false measure, a nurseryman ought to be subject to prosecution in such a case as he mentions. But a moment's reflection will show that there is a fundamental difference as to means of deception, and it is doubtless this difference which has led legislatures to withhold attempt to enact laws to fit such cases. The buyer of a quantity of potatoes has no means of determining whether a bushel delivered to him is short or not. The delivery may seem to be full and yet be short. But there is no room for such fraudulent deception in the case my farmer friend presents. When trees are sold by length or number, a purchaser can readily verify his purchase.

But although there is no legal remedy by criminal prosecution, there are plain and fair civil remedies: The buyer may refuse to accept delivery of stock which fails to come up to the terms of his order as to size or variety; he may waive this remedy and accept the delivery and hold the selling nurseryman liable to damages, measured by the excess of the value of the stock contracted for above that delivered. This claim may be enforced either by counterclaim against the seller's demand for payment of the agreed price, or by independent claim if the full price has been paid. S.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Last week witnessed the usual slackening of business during the early summer and there is but little to mention. Wedding business last month was the best ever experienced here, while funeral work has held brisk for several months.

Various Notes.

A. Lippmann has given up his branch store at 222 Westminster street.

Charles Smith and Thomas Curley were recent visitors to the A. N. Pierson place, at Cromwell, Conn.

Welcome S. Carmichael, of Carmichael Bros., Shannock, has been drawn for jury duty, as well as Edmund G. Brooke, of Providence.

E. E. Howard has closed the retail store he has been conducting at 251 Weybosset street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Fiske and family are at their summer cottage on Prudence island, in Narragansett bay, for the season.

Samuel Kinder, of Bristol, has purchased a 22-horsepower delivery truck.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy L. O'Connor are summering at the Mathewson House, Narragansett Pier.

The trade received a business call last week from J. Meade, of the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., of Boston.

The sum of $450 has been appropriated by the town of Cumberland for the purchase and protection of shade trees.

The Carmichael Orchards, at Shannock, report a good season in peonies. Owing to the late season, Pæonia festiva maxima was about three weeks later than usual. P. edulis superba, P. rubra superba grandiflora and P. Marie Lemoine were in bloom in the first week of July. Orders for roots for fall delivery have already been good. The planting of gladioli has been going on since the last of April and the acreage is increased to about double that of last year. The last planting of Mrs. Frances King was during the last week of June.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Various Notes.

The Minneapolis Floral Co. is cutting a good batch of roses, comprising Ward, Killarney, Richmond and other varieties. Carnations and snapdragons also are much in evidence at the store. The planting of chrysanthemums has been completed.

The Hiawatha Nursery Co. has set out a fine lot of mums. The ferns are in splendid condition.

The weather last week was warm. Flower gardens and parks are blazes of blooms, the hardy flowering plants doing extremely well.

The Mazey Floral Co. had several artistic window displays last week. Large clusters of garden flowers in handsome containers were arranged with ferns, palms and roses. Business is splendid at the Mazey Floral Co. store, both in retail work and in the decorative department.

The Lake Street Florist is progressing rapidly. Last week there was an attractive display of large baskets of gladioli, irises and daisies.

Miss H. B. Whitted continues to be the busy business woman. Her two stores are well patronized and the many orders for decorations keep the staff stepping lively. During the intense heat last week one gave a sigh of relief on entering the Whitted stores, which, somehow, have a cool appearance.

W. F. Holmes has turned out considerable decorative work of late. His place of business was a sight to please any eye last week. There was an unusual display of high-grade flowers and new creations in receptacles. The Fourth of July window showed the stars and stripes set off by the deep purple of irises.

The New York Florist store is a busy place these days. A fine business is done in plants, cut flowers and decorative work.

T. S. Lynes has a fine stock of cut flowers and reports good business.

Carnation stocks in the fields are doing well, although at first the growths were a bit soft. Where properly stopped, the plants are good and bushy. Great quantities of carnations are used in the Twin Cities, but not one-tenth of them are grown here. Some day they will be. F. E. B.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Alfred T. Bunyard has acquired a 22-horsepower touring car and a 22-horsepower truck.

Miss Emma Ritchie and two children of her brother, Charles Ritchie, were among the victims of a wholesale poisoning case at a Sunday school picnic.

Ralph Armstrong had a pretty float in the preparedness parade here July 4. At the recent parade of the Moose Oscar Schultz's float won the cup as the best decorated automobile in line.

Peter M. Rennie has accepted a position as gardener for H. F. Webster, at Pen Craig cottage. W. H. M.

The Market.

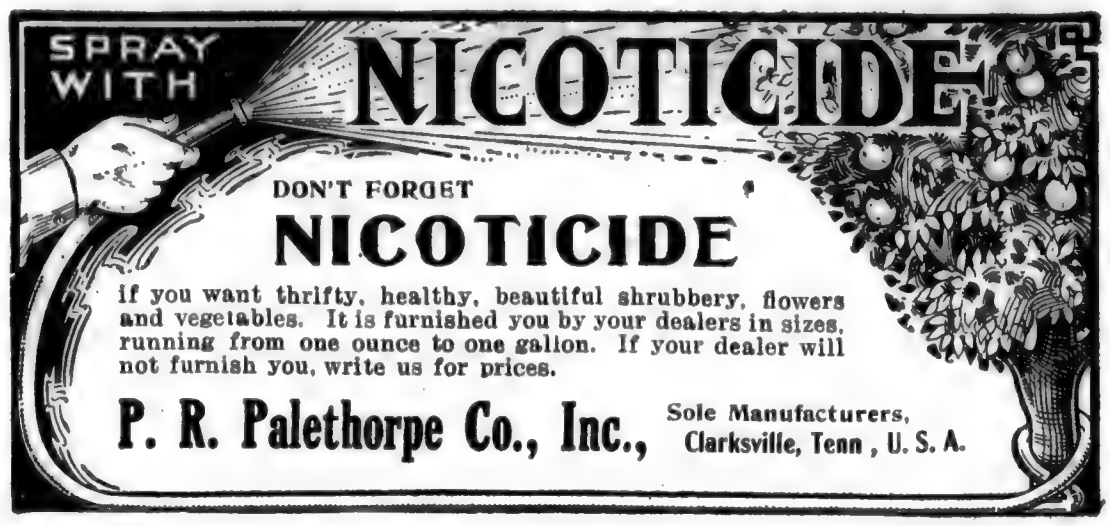
While the wedding season is practically over, there were a few nuptials last week that gave work to some of the stores. The transient trade had fallen off and the trade does not expect much business during the next three months. Prices have dropped since the first of the month. Sweet peas and carnations continue to come into the market in good quantities and they are cheap. Greenhouse-grown roses are as good as can be expected now and bring a fair price for this season of the year. Red Dorothy Perkins and Dorothy Perkins ramblers are seen in the market. In addition to the cultivated daisies, some of the florists carry wild daisies and use them in low-priced pieces. Black-eyed susans also are used. While there still is a good variety of flowers to choose from, each week sees a smaller selection. Gladioli are coming into the market more freely, but as yet are not at all plentiful.

Various Notes.

W. C. & C. Emery is the name under which the nursery and landscape business is conducted at 181 Lincoln place, Irvington, by Watson C. and Clifford Emery.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports that business is keeping up well for this season of the year, there being the usual funeral pieces and quite a batch of wedding work.

Mrs. C. M. Hutchinson, of Elizabeth, reports that the spring and early summer were good this year. She is occupied with cemetery work, in addition to other trade. R. B. M.



NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Business has been unusually quiet during the last few weeks. Bedding work is practically finished and there has been little funeral work. There are plenty of flowers of all kinds in the market. Roses are exceptionally good and cheap.

Greenhouse Heating.

THREE FLOWS ARE NEEDED.

I am about to erect one house, 25x 60, with three feet of glass in each side wall and glass in one gable. Will you advise me as to the heating, telling me how many runs of 2-inch pipe are required to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather? Would two 2½-inch flow pipes and fourteen 2-inch returns be about right?

E. N. J.—Mich.

While the arrangement of pipes suggested might be used, it would require frequent attention and heavy firing in zero weather and would be wasteful of labor and material. We would prefer to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and fifteen 2-inch returns. One flow may be placed upon each plate and the other three or four feet below the ridge. Connect the highest point of each flow pipe with the expansion tank and give all of the pipes a slight fall, so that the air cannot pocket. Join five returns to each flow pipe and place one coil on each wall or under the side benches, distributing the remaining pipes under the middle benches.

EXPANSION TANK UNDER RIDGE.

Can you give me some information about the heating of the greenhouse which is shown in the enclosed sketch? I have a Wilks boiler, 24x48. It has two 2-inch outlets and three 2-inch openings for returns. Please state how to pipe the house and how to locate the expansion tank. My plan is to connect the two 2-inch risers with a 4-inch flow pipe, run the 4-inch pipe under the ridge to the farther end, and there have it branch so as to feed one 4-inch return under each of the outside benches and two 4-inch returns under each of the middle benches. There would be a 4-inch main return from the south bench and the two middle benches, while the north main return would run directly to the boiler, after being reduced to 2-inch. I wish to hold the temperature at 65 to 70 degrees in zero weather. A mixed stock for retail will be grown. I can only place the expansion tank in the greenhouse, under the ridge. Will it be high enough there?

A. F. W.—Ill.

The sketch shows the house to be 22x100, with eighteen inches of glass in one wall. There is a bench three feet wide along each side wall and there are

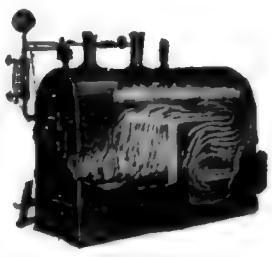
The White House Greenhouses—U. S. Propagating Gardens
Washington, D. C.

HEATED BY KROESCHELL BOILERS

The Conservatories of the President of the United States and the U. S. Propagating Gardens are located opposite the Washington monument at Washington, D. C. Over forty greenhouses are devoted to the growing of cut flowers, orchids, stove plants, tropical and decorative stock, and all bedding and ornamental plants for the U. S. Government buildings and grounds at Washington.

A No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILER was installed in 1906 for the high temperature houses. This boiler replaced a number of other makes and made a remarkable record for fuel economy.



UNCLE SAM'S IRON FRAME RANGE ERECTED IN 1910 IS HEATED BY KROESCHELL BOILERS.

The Plant Introduction Garden of the United States Department of Agriculture at Chico, California, is heated by No. 2 Kroeschell Boiler and Generator System.

In 1912 two No. 5 KROESCHELL BOILERS were installed for the new range of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, at Garrett Park, Md.

The U. S. Government's new establishment, the Northern Great Plains Field Station, at Mandan, N. Dakota, ordered a No. 7 KROESCHELL BOILER for the new greenhouse range erected in 1913.

August, 1914, two more No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILERS were ordered for White House Conservatories and U. S. Propagating Gardens, Washington, D. C.

Some Piping Points

IF you ever drop around at Brant Bros.' new range of Iron Framers at Utica, N. Y., just take a good look at the way the houses are piped. It's one of the finest of steam jobs. Not only does it look good, but it works as good as it looks.

While there recently we snapped the photo at the top, showing some of the piping of the mains and the way they are supported and connected.

Follow the letters and we will just run over each fitting together:

(A) This is our special clamp swing fitting, for use on double angle iron columns.

(B) Adjustable swing fitting for hooking over purlins.

(C) Expansion joint, which effectually takes care of all contraction and expansion in this long straight line.

(D) This is the expansion joint shackle, one being used on each side, preventing any possibility of the joints pulling so far out as to come apart.

(E) Here you see a fine piece of work in the use of our Reducing Tees.

If there are any of these fittings you want a price on, just let us know. Or if you have some heating problem you can't quite figure out to your satisfaction, let us help you.

Experimenting with your heating is apt to be rather costly.

Perhaps we can save you a lot of worries and a goodly bit of money. The best greenhouse-heating engineers the country affords are in our Service Department, ready to help you.

No. B — Main swing for hooking over purlin. The lower part spreads apart to slip over the pipe. The swing rod is punched for adjustments up or down.

No. E — Three-way Reducing Tee. Only one of our numerous fittings which we make to take care of greenhouse-heating requirements.

two benches in the middle of the house, each five feet wide.

With the piping arranged as described in the letter, it might be possible to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather, but we would not expect more than that, especially as the two 2-inch flow ports in the boiler should not be relied on for more than 600 square feet of radiation and that should be supplied by small pipes.

We would prefer to use three 2½-inch flow pipes, but, if it is not feasible to tap the boiler so that three flows could be connected, we would run a 2½-inch flow under the ridge, reducing it to connect with one of the 2-inch ports. Then run one 2-inch flow upon each plate and connect these with the other port. Use twelve 2-inch returns, placing three under each bench, and connect those under the side benches with the flows on the plates, and the others with the overhead flow. The returns should be connected with the boiler by means of three 2-inch main returns.

By starting the overhead flow pipe about thirty inches below the ridge, it will be possible to place the expansion tank between the flow pipe and the ridge. The highest part of each of the other flow pipes should also be connected with the expansion tank. If this is done, the use of air valves will be avoided.

GROUND SLOPES TO SOUTH.

We are preparing to rebuild our greenhouses and want your advice about the arrangement of the hot water pipes. As is indicated in the rough sketch which we enclose, the houses will run north and south. There will be two connected houses, each 22x80, and one 18x50, west of the others and separated from them by a partition. You will also notice that we have arranged to have the boiler room at the south end of the west house, the shorter one. This is done because the ground has a slope to the south of two or three feet to the hundred, but if you can designate a better position for the boiler we shall be pleased to have your suggestion.

In the two east houses we wish to maintain a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, and in the other house 60 degrees. The outside temperature here seldom drops lower than 15 degrees above zero. We already have 250 feet of 4-inch pipe and 725 feet of the 2½-inch size, which we should like to use. The two front gables will be of glass and there will be two feet of glass in the sides. The 4-foot walls under the glass will be of hollow tile and concrete. The north end of the houses will be protected by the potting shed.

The "Detroit" System has many enviable records. In one place a "Detroit" paid for itself in thirty days.

Pleasurable Economy

To meet competition or increase profits, it is necessary to cut down on production cost.

There is one place in your plant where you can save a lot of money, and everyone involved will welcome the change.

If you are using no device for handling the condensation in your heating plant, or have one of those working on old principles, you should install a "Detroit" System as soon as possible.

Then you will not only save many hundreds of dollars on your fuel bill, but will make the engineer's work much lighter and actually have a more efficient heating plant all around.

The "Detroit" System does three things—any one of which would save enough to pay for the system within a short time—

1. Positively removes all condensation from the steam lines, allowing the live steam free passage through the pipes and thus cutting down on repair bills and the amount of time the engineer must give to caring for the steam plant.
2. Returns the condensation directly to the boiler before it has a chance to cool. The pump method cannot handle condensation hotter than 212 degrees, but the "Detroit" System can handle it at 330 or 340 degrees. The "Detroit" System saves heat that would be wholly or partially wasted under other systems.
3. Does this automatically—takes none of the engineer's time. All parts are readily accessible.

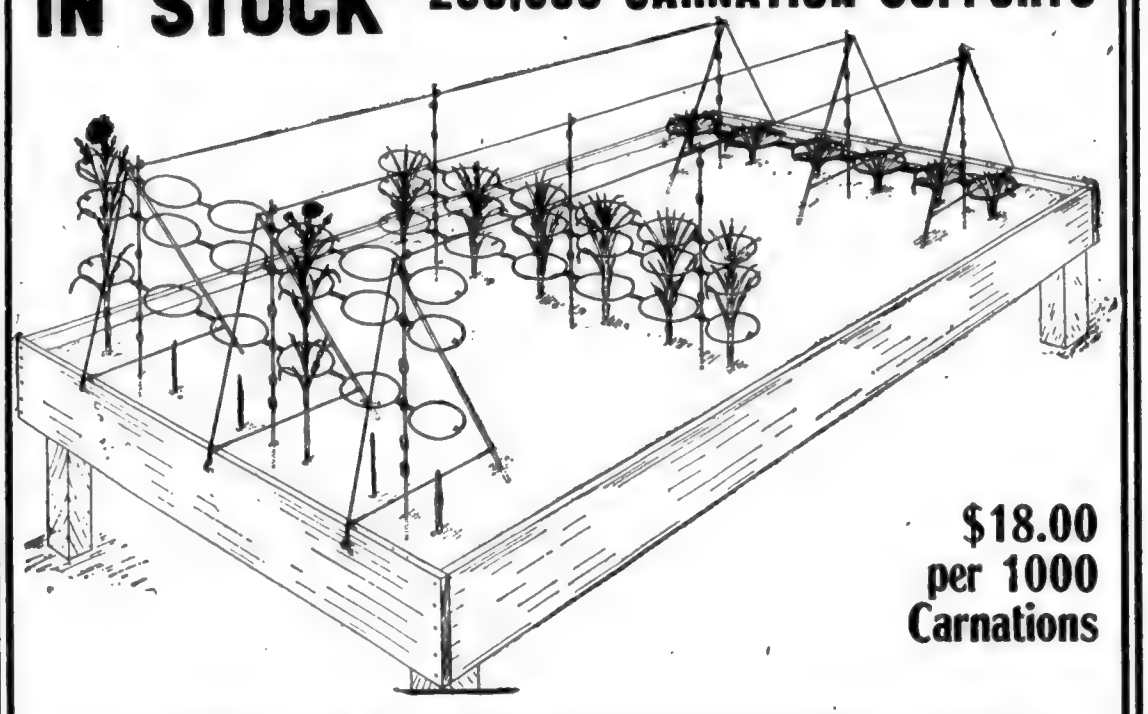
How high should the smokestack be? We shall use a Kroeschell boiler, No. 1 or No. 2. C. G.—Tex.

In the northern states it is preferable to locate the boiler house at the north end of the range, but we presume that the slight shade cast by the boiler house when located at the southwest corner will be less objectionable in Texas. Therefore, since the slope of the land makes that the logical place for the boiler, we will not suggest any change.



For heating the larger houses to a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees when the outside temperature is 15 degrees above zero, we would suggest using a 4-inch main upon the east wall of the east house and another upon the west wall of the west house, and with each of these we would supply three 2½-inch returns. If benches are used in these houses, and if bottom heat is desired, run a 2½-inch flow pipe three or four feet below each ridge and connect each of them with two 2½-inch returns. If this is not feasible or desirable, we would suggest carrying a 2½-inch flow pipe on the posts between the two houses and with this feeding four 2½-inch returns underneath. For the other house, 18x50, to be heated to 60 degrees, we would run a 2½-inch flow pipe on the outer wall at the plate and supply four 2-inch returns underneath. There should also be four 2-inch returns on the other side of the house; these should be connected at the north end with the flow pipe in the middle house.

In order to pipe the two 80-foot houses in this way, it will be necessary to sink the boiler so that the flow pipes to those houses can be carried due east from the boiler under the walks. If that cannot be done, the boiler house will have to be located at the south end of the houses, so that the flow pipes can be carried directly to the plates. It would also be possible to have the boiler at the north end by grading so that the walks would be practically level. We would make the smokestack thirty to forty feet high, according to surroundings, measuring from the point where the smoke pipe from the boiler enters.

Elmira, N. Y.—The U. S. Cut Flower Co., of which Richard King is growing manager, has had a season successful above the average. This is one of the places where there is no fear of the fertilizer bill and the new breaks on the roses show the wisdom of the course followed.

Davenport, Ia.—The recent Centennial parade was over five miles long and was viewed by practically the entire population of the Tri-Cities. For ber & Bird decorated their car with artificial flowers and filled it with pretty girls and lilies, producing one of the most pleasing pictures in the procession.

ALWAYS MENTION THE FLORISTS' REVIEW WHEN WRITING ADVERTISERS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Considering the extreme heat, stock is good. Flowers are plentiful and, added to this, business is good for this season of the year. Trade is confined largely to funeral work, but there seems to be a growing demand in Washington for flowers for hospitals. This latter business is most acceptable and several of the florists are using their best efforts to foster this demand.

Dahlias now are coming in. Despite the fact that it is too early for predictions, these show great promise. Buddleia is coming into the market in fine shape and is meeting with some demand. Notwithstanding the intense heat of last week, indoor sweet peas are of exceptional quality and are retaining their popularity, selling well. Large quantities of outdoor sweet peas also are being offered in the market.

Gardenias still are exceedingly plentiful and there is a limited sale of them. Roses in all colors are sufficient in quantity to more than meet all demands. Mock and Red Radiance are exceptionally good. Carnations still are to be had, but the blooms are too small to be of much value. The cut of gladioli is larger and prices have dropped accordingly. It is hard to move these flowers at $2 and $3 per hundred and large quantities are going to waste.

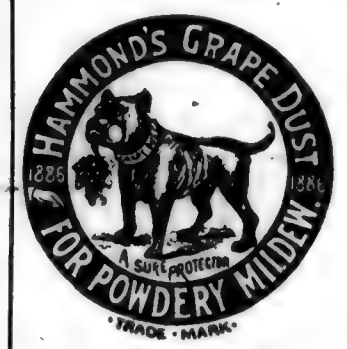
Various Notes.

William F. Gude, as exalted ruler of the Elks of Washington, played a prominent part in the reception tendered a large party of members of that order who visited this city while on their way to the convention in Baltimore.

When the call to arms came it was found that there were a number of patriots among the boys of the florists' trade in the National Capital, for now encamped at Camp Radio, Va., awaiting orders that will send them to Bisbee, Ariz., and possibly across the line into Mexico, are five employees of the Gude Bros. Co. Of these Edward Wilson is a sergeant in the commissary department, while among the privates are Edward Henning and Robert Baggott, who were employed at the greenhouses, and Norman Padgett and Leslie A. Dix, who were employed at the store. The boys mentioned are enlisted for a term of three years. Others do not care to be tied up for that length of time.

J. Louis Loose, accompanied by Mrs. Loose, is spending a ten days' vacation at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., one of the most popular mountain resorts in this section.

East and West Seaton parks will be added to the Botanic Gardens, if the Senate follows the advice of its library committee and enacts into law the bill the committee recommends, which has this extension in view. This will give the gardens an increase of about twenty-seven acres of ground. At the time of agreeing to the adoption of the bill members of the committee made complimentary remarks on the efficiency of Superintendent George W. Hess.



George Maunz, representing Reed & Keller, of New York, made a round of the stores last week while on his way south.

The Society Picnic.

The Knoxville Florists' Society held its third annual picnic Thursday, July 6, at Elkmont, Tenn., a delightful spot about sixty miles from Knoxville. The picnickers left Knoxville on a special train at 8 o'clock in the morning, reaching the destination at about 11 a. m. The trip was made in closed cars until Walland was reached, where an observation car was added, giving the picnickers a chance to enjoy the beautiful scenery. The weather favored the occasion, as the cool breeze and sun's rays cooled and tanned the faces of the jovial crowd.

On reaching Elkmont pictures were made of the entire company, and then an elaborate and most delicious basket dinner was served on the grounds.

There were a number of baseball players in the crowd and they, of course, became interested in ball playing. Two teams were selected and a close game followed. After the ball game a number hastened to the river and enjoyed the evening bathing; others took to mountain climbing, while some started in other directions to seek new species of floriculture.

At 5:30 p. m. the homeward-bound train left Elkmont and sped along at a faster pace than in the morning. The fragments of the dinner served as a luncheon for supper. At 8 p. m. the train pulled in at Knoxville, bearing a most pleasant-looking crowd. Everyone felt that he was the one who had the best time of the 100 who shared in the day's joys.

Among the invited guests were Gunnar Teilmann and son, of Johnson City, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kimmell and Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Haeger, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Various Notes.

Harry J. Dennis, representing S. A. Weller, of Zanesville, O.; Joseph J. Goudy, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, and Milton Selinka, representing Schloss Bros., of New York, recently called on the Knoxville florists with their respective lines of supplies.

Lincoln, Neb.—Yule's Landscape Nursery is enlarging and improving its facilities and will put in a new heating system to permit the growing of roses for the first time on the place.

The Market.

Business took a slump last week. The weather was warm and we had several bright, hot days. The stock in general showed the effect of the heat, and there were large quantities of poor stock on the market that was almost impossible to move at any price. In carnations, however, good stock was not plentiful and it was difficult to fill orders satisfactorily. There still are a few peonies in the market, but they do not cut much of a figure at this time. Sweet peas still are arriving in large quantities, but their quality is only medium and prices are low. Valley was exceptionally fine last week, cleaning up easily, with no complaints to follow.

The Club Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Milwaukee Florists' Club was held Sunday, July 9, at Keipper's park, Brown Deer, Wis. The weather man smiled on us and quite a crowd partook of the festivities. The day was replete with sports and good things. All agreed that it was well worth giving over one day to be there.

Following is the list of the contests and the winners, who were suitably rewarded:

Baseball—Cudahy team; score, 11 to 4.
Women's race—Meta Kasten, first; Lilian Hanisen, second.
Fat men's race—August Kellner, first; A. Rendt, second.
Peanut race, for women—Ruth Voelzke, first; Irne Zawodny, second.

Pie-eating contest—H. Mecklenburg, first; L. Komorowsky, second.
Boys' race—H. Berndt, first; M. Samuel, second.

Tug of war—The Holton & Hunkel team, C. Retzlaff, captain.
Three-legged race—C. Retzlaff and J. Semmelman, first.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is unusually quiet. The supply is large and heavier than market needs require. Roses continue in good supply and, in addition to greenhouse stock, excellent Maman Cochet roses may be had. Easter lilies are almost overplentiful, but they have only a fair market. The cut of gladioli is larger than it was. Carnations are in fair supply. Snapdragon meets with a limited demand. The first asters of the season made their appearance last week. Water lilies, sweet peas, coreopsis and cornflowers constitute some of the miscellaneous stock. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

L. H. Kyrk was the first one in the market to offer asters this summer. They came in July 7 from William Taylor's place, at Price Hill.

C. E. Critchell has been having a heavy supply of lilies.

The E. G. Hill Floral Co. had a window last week depicting a bathing beach.

W. Ray Murphy spent a week fishing in the Whitewater, in Indiana.

C. H. H.

Valencia, Pa.—G. L. Curry & Sons, whose main crop is bedding plants, have had an unusually busy season. Although it has come slowly, they are building up a nice business in cut flowers and designs and look forward to a steadily increasing trade in each line.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Russell Bros. have contracted with the J. C. Moninger Co., of Chicago, for the erection of four houses, each 21x150 feet. When the additions are completed the Russell range will consist of eight houses. Plants, shrubs and vegetables are the principal products of the concern, which recently was incorporated, the officers being C. M. Russell, president; E. H. Russell, vice-president; L. E. Russell, secretary-treasurer. Adolph Hammarstrom, manager of the New York branch of the J. C. Moninger Co., secured the contract.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Valley and lilies remain scarce. Sweet peas from outdoors now are fine, and there are many of them. Carnations are near their end and choice roses are few. The demand is exceptionally good for this season of the year.

Various Notes.

The florists' picnic will take place Thursday, July 20, at Willoughbeach park. The committee is urging employers to close their places of business Thursday afternoon, load up their trucks with employees and their families and come out for the fun.

F. A. F.

The entertainment committee in charge of next week's club picnic has prepared a splendid list of races and contests for the picnickers. In addition to the standard events, such as baseball, broad jumps and foot races, there are mirthful matches, such as sack races, pie and watermelon-eating contests, penny showers for boys, nail-driving contests for ladies, tug of war between growers, "cock o' the ring," etc. There also are prizes for the handsomest boy and the prettiest girl. F. Ritzenthaler, W. E. Cook, Charles Graham and Herbert Bate, the committeemen, request everybody to come out and help to make the day a big one.

LANCASTER, PA.

July 20 is the day announced for the Lancaster County Florists' picnic. Members should take Elizabethtown trolley cars at Center Square, Lancaster, at 1:15 p. m.

As previously noted, the picnic will be held on Avondale, the farm of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Barr, which, with its well kept, shady lawns and meadows along the historic Little Conestoga creek, makes an ideal spot.

The committee has an elaborate program arranged. There will be plenty of amusements for all. You and your friends are invited. The only stipulation is that you bring a basket of lunch for your party. H. K. R.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

C. L. Schuster, of Girard, Pa., had a good crop of tomatoes ready for the market quite early. He finds business in general to be good.

Foxgloves in assortments of many colors made a striking and attractive window display in the store of the Baur Floral Co., at Erie, Pa.

High school commencement exercises kept the Erie florists busy furnishing quantities of the Hoosier Beauty rose, which was the variety adopted by the schools.

Wilson's Flower Shop, of Painesville, O., is building three new greenhouses, which will be finished before the summer is over.

Funeral work was heavy at the store of Schmidt the Florist, of Johnstown, Pa., when I called.

Plant sales this year have been the largest of many years at the William Schrader place, at Johnstown.

The new rose bowls, or bird baths, which one hears so much about these days, are rapidly becoming one of the florists' staple articles for decorating. Most florists are now displaying them in their windows. They appeal strongly to people on account of their simplicity and effectiveness in flower arrangement. Birds and butterflies are also attached to them, adding greatly to their beauty and increasing the sales. Florists will be wise if they investigate the decorative possibilities of these bowls. Some of them are deep enough for goldfish and are used extensively in that way. W. T. U.

Delaware Experiment Station Builds Hitchings Greenhouse

EXPERIMENT STATIONS ARE EXACTING. Their requirements are high.

The serious nature of the work; the great importance of their results to the farmers and growers, demand above all else, thoroughness, accuracy and practicalness.

To meet their greenhouse requirements, means meeting exceptionally high standard demands.

Not demands for ornamental houses, but those of greatest practicalness. Ones of longest endurance.

To be selected as the greenhouse builders for the Delaware Agricultural College and Experiment Station, at Newark, Delaware, tells to you its own convincing story of convincement of the superiority of Hitchings constructed houses.

If we can build satisfactorily for them, we surely can for you.

Send for our Greenhouse Supply Book.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SWEET PEA SOCIETY VISITS BAR HARBOR

The eighth annual convention of the American Sweet Pea Society, held at the Maine resort July 15 and 16, leads to the decision to stay in the recognized horticultural centers hereafter. A small show, due to distance and varying weather conditions, but quality is excellent and outing enjoyable.

IT IS difficult to select a date in advance for sweet peas, or, in fact, any other outdoor summer-flowering plants, which will suit more than a fraction of would-be exhibitors. This was strikingly shown in the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society at Bar Harbor, Me., July 15 and 16. The dates selected were reasonably late and would, it was felt, suit a large proportion of New England growers. That they would have done so in the case of Bar Harbor especially was felt certain, but the season has been an abnormally late one and exhibits from Bar Harbor, apart from the excellent displays of the Malvern Greenhouses and Mount Desert Nurseries, were practically nil.

Lenox Leads.

The many private gardeners made no entries and but for the large exhibits of Edwin Jenkins and S. W. Carlquist, of Lenox, Mass., who carried quantities of superb flowers 500 miles in splendid shape, there would have been practically no exhibition. All the entries from Newport, R. I., where the society met last year, had to be canceled, as a heavy thunder storm, accompanied by hail as well as torrential rain, July 13, destroyed practically all the flowers the Newport gardeners had planned to exhibit. Quite a number of good prizes were uncompeted for and the Bar Harbor gardeners lost a fine opportunity of displaying their skill. We were told that a good show could have been had a month later, but at that date it would have been a purely local affair.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

President.
George W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.

Vice-President.
Edwin Jenkins.....Lenox, Mass.

Secretary.
Harry A. Bunyard....New York

Treasurer.
William Sim...Cliftondale, Mass.

Next Annual Meeting.
Boston.....July 7 and 8, 1917

George W. Kerr, President-elect American Sweet Pea Society.

While the show was not a large one, quality was high. New varieties were to the front more than ever. The experiment of meeting at so remote a spot as Bar Harbor for a national show has proved that it is largely disappointing and that hereafter the larger, more get-at-able cities will be favored.

The following varieties loomed up strongly at Bar Harbor: Constance Hinton, Fiery Cross, Royal Purple, Mrs. Cuthbertson, Hercules, Blue Monarch, Don Alvar, George Herbert, Scarlet Emperor, Jean Ireland, Lady Evelyn Eyre and Edna May Improved.

The exhibition was held in the Casino. The attendance was good July 15, but not so good July 16, in spite of there being no admission charge.

Business Session.

The annual business session of the American Sweet Pea Society was scheduled for Saturday afternoon, July 15, but the time proved so short that it did not permit of the meeting being held and it therefore was put over to July 16, when there was a fine attendance of enthusiastic sweet pea men present.

President William Gray, of Newport, R. I., in his address dwelt on the need of giving greater encouragement to amateurs, of getting out the schedules early in the year and of holding the shows only in recognized horticultural centers, all of which had strong support among the members.

A discussion arose over the question of the membership of the society and W. A. Sperling, of New York, and G. W. Kerr, of Doylestown, Pa., were appointed an auditing committee to look into the financial standing of the society and its membership, a report to be presented at a meeting of the executive committee in New York in September.

The report of Secretary H. A. Bunyard was received without discussion and ordered spread on the minutes, as was the report of Prof. A. C. Beal on the trial grounds of the society, at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y. Prof. Beal was not present.

The report of Treasurer Arthur T. Boddington brought on a renewal of the discussion of the society's financial position. The need of funds to put the society on a better financial footing was apparent and C. H. Totty and J. H. Stalford each offered $50 for such a fund. Later they offered to each raise $250 and turn this amount over to the new treasurer within thirty days. A vigorous campaign for new members also was planned.

Treasurer Boddington was not present and later the secretary was instructed to write Mr. Boddington a letter of thanks, expressing the members' appreciation of his services as treasurer for so many years.

David Burpee, of Philadelphia, who had been announced to lecture on "The Future of the Sweet Pea and the Possibilities of Securing a Pure Yellow Variety," found himself at the last moment unable to make the trip, but sent his paper, which appears in this issue of The Review.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers was unanimous. J. H. Dick proposed that Vice-president George W. Kerr be advanced to the presidency and there was no other nomination. On motion of H. A. Bunyard, Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, Mass., was elected vice-president. On motion of C. H. Totty, Harry A. Bunyard was reëlected secretary. Also on motion of C. H. Totty, William Sim, of Cliftondale, Mass., was elected treasurer. W. A. Sperling, of New York, and William Gray, of Newport, were elected to the two vacancies on the executive committee.

Place of Meeting.

The selection of the place for the annual meeting rests with the executive committee, but there was a lively discussion of policy in this regard, participated in by W. J. Stewart, E. Jenkins, H. A. Bunyard, Wm. Sim, J. H. Stalford and others. The feeling was that hereafter shows should be held only in recognized horticultural centers. It was pointed out that no city or date would suit the needs of all growers and some of the members favored holding a northern show, at Boston, and a southern one, in Philadelphia or Washington, with the growers of winter sweet peas given their chance at the spring shows at New York.

On a vote being taken, Boston was overwhelmingly favored for the place of the 1917 annual meeting and exhibition.

It was voted to hold the next show on the Saturday and Sunday next following the Fourth of July, which makes the 1917 dates July 7 and 8.

It was voted that hereafter these days be adhered to as closely as possible; also that no postponement of shows be allowed.

SWEET PEA'S GOLDEN FUTURE

By DAVID BURPEE.

I WAS not consulted in the selection of the subject, but had the selection been left entirely to me I must confess I could not have chosen a more agreeable one. I might have changed the title, however, to read "The Golden Future of the Sweet Pea and the Impossibility of Securing a Pure Yellow Variety."

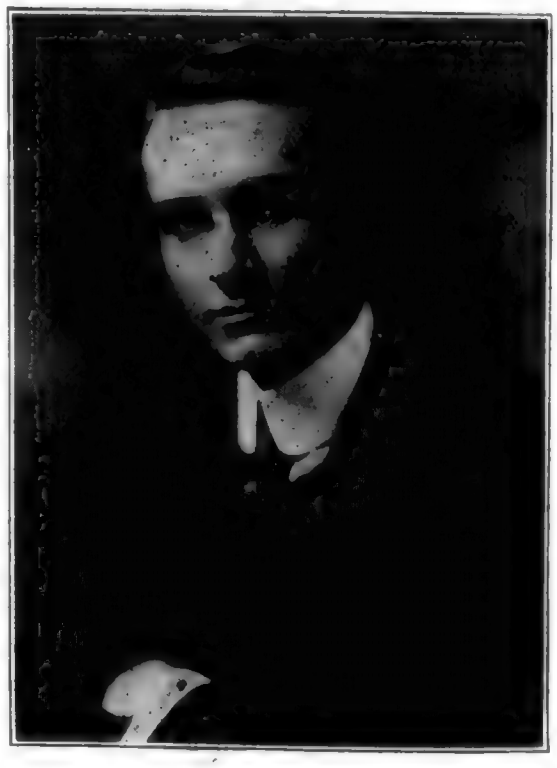
It is impossible to secure a pure yellow variety so far as any accomplishment is impossible until it has been accomplished. We all of us must necessarily judge by what has gone before. So, as a foundation for my prophecy of the future, I shall first give a brief outline of the past progress of the sweet pea.

In 1699 the first seed was sent from Sicily to England and there, during the following 200 years, the sweet pea went through a slow stage of change and development. The early improvements were entirely in color variation. From the original Lathyrus odoratus there developed numerous varieties, but all of these differed only in color. These new colors were secured by mutation, and then by cross-fertilization and a blind selection of the following generations. This selection of the generations following a cross was blind because the principles of heredity were not well understood until the rediscovery of the Mendelian laws in 1900.

Later nature developed a variety of Lathyrus odoratus that differed in form. This mutation was carefully saved and crossed back upon the older type, until nearly all colors were gotten in the hooded varieties, as well as in the plain grandiflora type.

The Mutation That Gave Spencer.

After that progress was comparatively slow, until nature again made a distinct mutation in the form of the sweet pea. The Spencer type appeared almost simultaneously in three places and entirely unaided by man. Then, in like manner, the different shades of colors were secured in the waved type by color mutation, crosses and selections.



The sweet pea now has reached the point where it is the most popular annual, and each year its popularity continues to grow. The early-flowering Spencer type that just now is coming into prominence undoubtedly will do much to widen the field of the sweet pea.

Your vice-president, George W. Kerr, has done a great deal toward the improvement of the early-flowering varieties. For seven years he has worked at our Fordhook Farms, until now he has in process of development upwards of twenty distinct colors. All of these were secured by crossing the thrifty Australian varieties on the older late-flowering Spencers. From both of the parents they have inherited the hardy habit of growth—the stamina to stand even under a hot sun, and to thrive in the open as well as under glass.

The Sources of a Pure Yellow.

Because of their earliness and strong growth, these new Spencers are rapidly becoming popular throughout the southern states and in some localities I believe they will completely replace the late-flowering varieties.

I believe all of you will agree with me that the sweet pea has a bright future and that it will continue to develop and to grow in popularity. Yes, the future of the sweet pea is indeed golden!

The possibility of securing a pure yellow variety, however, is a more difficult subject. I can merely tell you the means through which a yellow variety will come should it ever be secured.

In the past the improvement of sweet peas—as, in fact, of all other plant life—has been through only three channels, namely, mutation, cross-fertilization and continued selection of small fluctuating variations. Permanent improvement through fluctuating variations has been practically negligible. Through cross-fertilization, however, there have been obtained by far the greatest number of color variations. But crossing the sweet pea was possible only after nature had given us the first mutant, for in the beginning, of course, there was but one color and a cross would have been impossible. It is to the mutations of nature, therefore, that we must turn to find a fundamental change in a new direction. In other words, by cross-fertilization we can secure only a combination of the characters which already exist.

An Attempt by Hybridization.

Yellow is a primary color and cannot be gotten by the combination of any other colors. It seems unlikely, therefors, that we can ever secure a pure yellow variety of sweet pea by the crossing of existing colors. It may be possible, of course, that some day we will find a yellow as a mutation or a "sport of nature," but this is entirely a matter of chance and beyond the control of man.

There remains one other way, hybridization, by which we might possibly get a pure yellow sweet pea.

In the past the crossing of sweet peas has been entirely within the species of Lathyrus odoratus. In all there are more than 100 species of lathyrus and several of these bear flowers of a pure yellow color. The apparent question, then, is: Can we make a cross between the sweet pea and any other lathyrus, and with this as an entering wedge finally get the yellow color of another species on to Lathyrus odoratus?

This possibility naturally occurred to me shortly after I started to work with sweet peas, and in my enthusiasm I tried to cross every legume that came within my reach. In one case I even attempted a cross between a sweet pea and the yellow broom. Needless to say, it failed—all my attempted crosses between species failed.

My failure had a sort of stimulating effect—made me look deeper, made me investigate to see what others had done. And I really felt quite relieved to find that no one else had been more successful than myself. I was unable to find anyone who had secured a hybrid between any two species of lathyrus.

An Auspicious Start.

Three years ago my father and I visited Mr. Bateson, of the John Innis Horticultural Institute, at Wimbledon, England, and he told me that he had worked with ten or fifteen species of lathyrus, but had been unsuccessful in securing a hybrid, and, further, that he did not know of a cross ever having been made. I explained my intention of collecting the hundred or more species and then trying every possible combination of cross. His encouragement was a great help in the starting of my work.

From then on I collected all commercial varieties and species of lathyrus, mostly from European seed firms, and then the wild species through the Department of Seed and Plant Introduction at Washington. I continued this collection and last summer at Fordhook I had upwards of fifty distinct species.

It was my intention to complete the collection and gradually to attempt every possible cross upon the sweet pea. I discontinued the work, however, because of my father's illness and I have not taken it up again since his death last winter. But I hope to continue my hobby within the next few years, for I know the work to be productive of pleasure if of nothing else.

SWEET PEA TESTS TOLD

WHEN the American Sweet Pea Society was organized, the winter-flowering sweet peas had already been considerably developed, but their culture had not become general. The marvelous display of winter-flowering sweet peas at the National Flower Show held at Boston was a revelation to large numbers of florists. Today, as a result of this and of the work of the society, the winter-flowering sweet peas have taken their place among the leading cut flower crops grown under glass. If the actual returns were known, it is quite probable that the value of this flower would rank after roses and carnations. Not only is the value of the crop large, but also the investment in greenhouses specially constructed for growing this crop, an investment that represents a large sum and is annually increasing.

The recital of these facts will indicate the firm conviction of many florists that the winter-flowering sweet peas have become established in the tastes of the flower-buying public. Let us hope that in turn the growers themselves will recognize their duty in supporting the society, which has done so much by means of exhibitions and otherwise to advance the interests of this flower.

Evolution of Winter Peas.

As previously stated, many varieties were known when the society was organized, but these now are giving way to better forms. The varieties first sent out were of the old, open form, with notched standards. Then came the hooded varieties and, finally, the present varieties of waved form. Moreover, the first varieties were white, pink and white, and maroon with bluish wings, but today we have practically all the best colors found in the garden type. No doubt if the amateurs were as much interested in this type we should see every color known in the garden type. In the short space of twenty years the varieties of winter-flowering sweet peas have passed through all the stages of evolution that took place in the garden varieties during 200 years. Even the winter-flowering Cupid is not a figment of the imagination, but a possibility, provided it had any value at the present time.

The new waved varieties for winter flowering are making a decided impression, and we think, after seeing Yarrawa, that there may be some further revelations among the new Australian varieties now being offered.

Tests of Yarrawa Varieties.

Last winter we resumed our tests with the varieties of this type and grew about seventy varieties. These represented some unnamed seedlings, new introductions and the best of the older varieties. Although seed was not received until October and the seed was sown in pots, the results were such as may be expected by persons who use sweet peas to follow chrysanthemums. The greenhouse used was well adapted for the tests, as it was thoroughly modern, forty feet wide, with high side walls and without benches.

Eleven unnamed seedlings from A. C. Zvolanek were a source of considerable interest. Some have since been named. Among them was Britannia, a large waved flower with carmine standards and Tyrian rose wings, the best red variety we have ever seen in this type. Heretofore red varieties have been distinctly inferior to those of other colors, and this variety represents, therefore, a decided advance in this color.

Zvolanek's Seedlings.

Mrs. Charles Zvolanek produces a large, waved, lavender flower. Ridgeway calls the color pale rose purple, changing to a light mauvette. This variety was one of the first to bloom and was quite productive.

No. 110, light pink, was a beautiful soft rose-pink. The flower was large and waved. The color should be a pleasing one to the flower buyers. Unfortunately, the plants this year were not perfectly healthy, and some flowers with side notches were seen. We hope to test it again, as we were pleased with its fine color. It is worthy of trial.

Servian Prince carries a large flower with magenta standard and Rood's violet wings. It is a conspicuous flower when seen in the greenhouse in midwinter. As it blooms among the first, it is soon covered with many spikes of flowers.

Miss F. Roland has a large flower, with Venetian pink standards and rose-pink wings.

Orange Orchid is a large, waved variety of a vivid geranium pink color, and is one of the most striking varieties that have been sent out. This variety was a center of interest wherever shown and probably will rank after Christmas Pink and Christmas Pink Orchid as the finest of Zvolanek's varieties.

Some of the other unnamed seedlings are promising, and when some are fixed they undoubtedly will be heard from.

Yarrawa continues a giant-flowered variety.

Outdoor Trials Reduced.

It seems difficult to trace the origin and history of some of the varieties recently introduced. We shall have to ask for further time to investigate these. We hope to continue the trials again this winter and we think that sufficient material will be ready to warrant a new and revised bulletin on winter-flowering sweet peas.

The outdoor trials were largely reduced in extent this year, as we have few samples from the dealers. This proved to be a blessing in disguise, since our appropriations and financial balances were so heavily cut this year. We have had to reduce our labor on the trial grounds more than one-half and, consequently, we are not seeking to extend our trials this year. No doubt the next administration will favor more liberal maintenance appropriations. The cuts were not made because of any dissatisfaction, but the result of an attempt to place all allowances under a budget system. The legislature and the people of New York may be depended upon to remedy this matter when they understand it. Consequently we are looking forward to next year, when we hope to resume all lines with renewed energy.

The Public's Appreciation.

The interest of the people in flowers is growing at a remarkable rate. This summer we have 150 students registered in floricultural courses at Cornell. Two-thirds of these are regular college students and the remainder are summer-school students. This is the largest summer registration we have ever had, and if the department of floriculture is to provide adequate instruction and continue to grow and expand it will need the support not only of the florists but also of the flower-loving public. The experimental work should develop simultaneously, so that we may increase our knowledge of plants.

This year our garden varieties of sweet peas will come into bloom about July 25, with but few flowers before August 1, and, consequently, no report can be made at this time. Notes will be made as usual, so that we shall have a record of these varieties for publication later.

Cornell Latchstring Out.

In closing, permit me to say that the latchstring is always out. We shall be pleased to see any of the members whenever they visit Ithaca. Whether you need our help or not, we shall be glad to have your criticism and helpful advice. We wish to thank all those who have assisted us in our work and we hope they may feel justified in continuing their support in the future.

This is the report of Professor A. C. Beal, chairman of the nomenclature and trials committee of the American Sweet Pea Society, presented at the eighth annual exhibition and convention of the society at Bar Harbor, Me., July 15, 1916.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lupinus Polyphyllus.

Lupinus polyphyllus, the hardy lupine, is a well known and popular border plant, coming in blue, white and pink colors. L. polyphyllus Moerheimi, with soft pink flowers, somewhat more dwarf in habit than the type, is the most recent addition to the list of hardy lupines. All come easily from seed. They are splendid for cutting and are equally good for mass effects or to use as individual plants in borders. The lupines are often severely attacked by aphis about the time the flowers start to open, and a spraying of soap or nicotine should be given them on the first appearance of this pest.

Pyrethrums.

While the flowering season of the ever-useful Pyrethrum roseum usually is over by mid-June, if the plants are cut back close to the ground they will throw a second crop of flowers later in the summer, in the same way as the hardy larkspurs. Both the singles and doubles are good for cutting. Only a small proportion of the latter come true from seed and once a batch of good doubles are secured they should be propagated by division of the roots in late summer.

Do not overlook that valuable pyrethrum, sometimes called a chrysanthemum, named P. uliginosum, a tall-growing variety with branched spikes of pure white flowers not unlike the well known field daisy, Chrysanthemum maximum, in appearance. This variety flowers in late summer and is splendid for cutting. It requires dividing every second year to have it in the best condition. Seed of P. roseum sown now will give good plants before fall.

Pentstemons.

When pentstemons are mentioned, the average grower at once thinks of P. hybridus, so much used for bedding purposes in Europe and similarly used on our northern Atlantic and Pacific seaboards. While P. hybridus is a perennial, it is somewhat tender and for that reason propagation by means of seeds or cuttings is annually resorted to. P. hybridus, as it is grown at Bar Harbor, Me., and other New England points, also in British Columbia and Washington, is magnificent, and the wonder is that it is not more grown. By the way, have any growers tried its possibilities for forcing purposes? There seems to be no good reason why it would not succeed as well as the antirrhinum and some other plants now quite popular. Cuttings taken in late summer should prove suitable for benching, or seeds started in January should produce a nice early summer crop.

There are some splendid hardy pentstemons which make good border plants. A few of the best are P. digitalis, with pure white flowers, the throat dotted with violet; P. pubescens, lavender; P. lævigatus, rosy lilac; P. cæruleus, rich dark blue, a fine variety; P. diffusus, violet blue, and last, the splendid P. barbatus Torreyi, with tall, graceful spikes of rich scarlet flowers produced right through the summer. All these pentstemons are of easy culture, can be raised from seed and make excellent border plants.

Poppies.

Probably the brilliant oriental poppy, Papaver orientale, is the best known hardy poppy for the perennial garden. The huge, rich, orange-scarlet flowers are effective in early summer, coming in season with the early pyrethrums, peonies, German irises, polemoniums, Hemerocallis flava, etc. There are a number of colors of the oriental poppy. Parkmanni is the deepest of the scarlets. Mrs. Perry is salmon rose and Beauty of Livermore is blood-red, but if a mixed packet of seed is sown the probabilities are that quite a number of shades will appear. This poppy is propagated easily from seed and divisions. Planting from divided plants should be done in August and September for the best results.

The Iceland poppies, P. nudicaule, produce charming and graceful flowers in white, orange, yellow or scarlet colors and can be used for table decorations in the same way as the annual Shirley poppies. They are useful in the front of perennial borders and are also splendid in the rock garden. Once planted, they will seed and naturalize themselves satisfactorily.

VINCAS FROM FIELD TO POT.

I have some small vincas in the field. How shall I treat them so as to have nice plants in 4-inch pots next May?

A. I.—O.

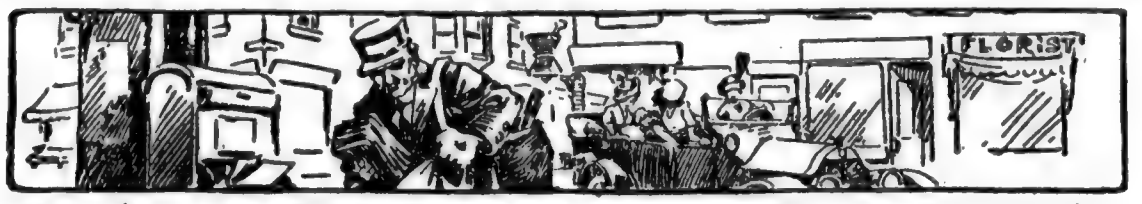
Keep the plants well cultivated and, provided they are in good soil, they should make nice plants for the size of pots named before September. Stand them along the edge of a bench occupied by carnations or some other bench crop, so that the shoots will have a chance to hang down. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

Preparing for Benching.

Despite the long drought immediately after planting out, the carnation plants in the south have made good progress in the field, thanks to the frequent showers during the last month. The houses should be thoroughly cleaned and the benches whitewashed and ready for new soil. I find that the cheapest method of putting the soil in good shape for planting is to work in the manure with the plow, and then cut the compost fine with a disk harrow. The soil is then ready to be hauled and wheeled into the houses. It always is well to have this done as long a time as possible before planting, in order to give the soil a complete drying out.



The benches may be watered the day before planting begins. Where the same soil is used for the second and third year, see that the beds are spaded and left in a rough state, in order to thoroughly dry the soil for a few weeks. This sweetens the soil wonderfully and is a great check to stem-rot. I had some beds last year in which the soil was being used for the second and third year. There was less stem-rot on these benches than on those in which fresh soil was used. The plants grew equally well and the flowers were a shade better. I am not advising anyone to try this method wholesale, but I do suggest that, where the soil is of a good, heavy texture, you might try a bench as an experiment and note the results.

Treatment on the Benches.

There is a noticeable difference between northern and southern field-grown plants. The northern-grown plants have the best of it in appearance, but when planted in the benches the hard, wiry, southern-grown plants have all the best of it. They require little or no shade and hardly ever show any signs of wilting, especially if they have been dug during a dry spell, when the growth is practically at a standstill.

It makes little difference whether or not a plant is lifted with a ball, providing the quantity of roots is there. The advice always is given to set the plants shallow, but I honestly must confess that I have not seen a particle of difference between shallow and moderately deep planting, so far as preventing stem-rot is concerned. Shallow planting, I admit, has a small advantage as a preventive of stem-rot, but it is not nearly so important as generally believed. The advocates of shallow planting as a complete preventive of stem-rot either have none of the fungus in their soil or else they overlook several other equally important cultural points.

The plants need a thorough soaking after being planted and thereafter should be watered sufficiently to keep them in a nice, moist condition. A good spraying two or three times a day will keep them in a fresh condition until the roots become active. As much air as possible should be given the plants day and night. A close, moist atmosphere in the houses immediately after planting and a little too much shade make ideal conditions for the spread of stem-rot. Therefore these conditions should be guarded against. WAR COULDN'T TOUCH HOUSTON.

The Mexican situation was called to my attention so often on my short visit to St. Louis and Kansas City that I take this opportunity to answer some of the questions regarding the war with Mexico and the effect it would have on the S. A. F. convention at Houston in August.

First, there is no war, and I do not expect any. Second, should there be a war between the United States and Mexico, bear in mind that the nearest point in the war zone is nearly 400 miles away. At the worst, no hostile Mexican army or bandits could come 400 yards into Texas before some Texas ranger or U. S. soldier would name him "Dennis."

Practically all the government troops have been moved to the border and all traffic is normal. There is no reason why the great convention, the first ever held in the south, should not be attended by the largest delegation from each state that was ever sent out to a national florists' convention.

The Texas florists greet you; the Houston florists will meet you and will make your stay pleasant and one long to be remembered.

We have sunshine in Texas and it gets warm, but allow me to quote a Nebraska soldier: "It is hot down here, but we always have a breeze and, therefore, do not perspire." Can you say more of your summer? Enough said—come to Texas, to Houston, and you will want to come again. Otto Lang.

FORMALDEHYDE FOR SPOT.

Replying to the query in the last issue of The Review regarding the use of formaldehyde for black spot on Beauties, I will state that I have used it and found that it will eradicate spot entirely if it is used correctly and proper care is given the plants. I use one tablespoonful of formaldehyde to one gallon of water, spraying the plants heavily once a week, using an air-tight tank on account of evaporation while applying. See that the plants have plenty of moisture at the roots and syringe not oftener than once a week. Keep the plants in a growing condition right along and the black spot will disappear. Formaldehyde is the best fungicide on the market today, barring none. L. S. Hines.

OMAHA, NEB.

The Market.

In spite of the extremely hot weather that has prevailed throughout Nebraska during the last few weeks, business has held up fairly well. Roses as well as carnations continue plentiful, but the quality is nothing to boast of. Outdoor stock is in good supply and sells quite satisfactorily. Gladioli are coming in finely. The daily supply of these from now on will be large. Carnations in the field are promising, but a good heavy rain is badly needed for all outdoor stock. The funeral work during the last two weeks has been of great benefit to those who have had a large supply of stock on hand.

Various Notes.

Miss Margaret Meggeson left Sunday, July 9, for a four weeks' vacation in the mountains of Colorado.

Rudolph Timmler had a surprise a few days ago when he received a package of seeds from Germany that he had given up hopes of ever receiving. They came over on the Deutschland.

The finest carnation plants to be seen in the field are those of A. Donaghue. The old stock in his benches is almost as good as some plants in midseason.

The Omaha-Council Bluffs Florists' Club held a meeting July 13. It was decided to hold a picnic August 3 at Lake Manawa, Ia. A resolution was adopted that employers donate, by subscription, enough funds to defray all expenses and that they close all stores and greenhouses at 12 o'clock. Heretofore employees have paid their share, as well as the employers, and the places of business have remained open until late in the afternoon.

News of the death of John Poehlmann, of the Poehlmann Bros Co., Chicago, was received with deepest regret among his many friends in this city, and especially by the writer, who was in his employ for about five years.

J. J. Hess and his son, Carl, are home after an extended visit through the east.

The Stewart Seed Store has found that its 17-acre tract of outdoor stock has proved one of the best paying propositions tried. All that is lacking is a sprinkler system, and the management is considering putting one in. L. S. H.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The usual summer dullness prevails in this market. There is an abundance of stock of inferior quality. The wedding season is over and the only business now coming in is for funerals and hospitals. Roses are plentiful and low in price. Lilies are abundant, but move slowly even at low prices. Good snapdragons and gladioli are not too plentiful, but sufficient to meet the demands. The dry, hot weather we have been having is hard on outdoor stock.

Various Notes.

Walter R. Barnes, son of W. J. Barnes, left with the Third National Guard this week. He went over the same ground his grandfather did in the Mexican campaign of 1845. W. R. Barnes is captain of Company F and now is at Laredo, Tex.

T. J. Noll & Co. report that shipping business was good last week. They are handling a large quantity of gypsophilas, lilies and gladioli.

Adolph Mohr has his new houses completed and filled with chrysanthemums and pot plants. He left the old place July 15.

H. H. Coffee, bookkeeper for W. J. Barnes, left for a vacation in the Ozark mountains, where he will visit his parents.

W. L. Rock has finished planting carnations. The houses look fine. A nice batch of snapdragons are growing outdoors at this place. W. J. B.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Charles Eble and his daughter, Corinne, are away for a month's trip, visiting St. Louis, Cleveland, Buffalo and New York, returning on the Southern Pacific steamer with a delegation of New York florists for the convention at Houston, August 15 to 18. Mr. Eble has left his business in the care of his sons, Bernard at the gardens and Charles, Jr., at the store. The season of 1915-16 business was excellent and the Ebles are looking forward to a fine autumn trade. Mr. Eble has renewed his lease on his present location in the Grunewald Hotel building and is taking advantage of the summer months for extensive improvements in the store. Reports from the garden indicate a fine crop of mums for fall and the large stock of palms never looked better. Mr. Eble has been successful with his spring garden, disposing of all the flowers at his store, especially forget-me-nots, on which he has specialized and is using them in many novel ways.

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

There was an enthusiastic meeting at the Manhattan hotel Monday, July 10, of the joint committee representing the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club. The organization of the committee was completed by the election of T. A. Havemeyer as chairman; John Young, secretary and business manager; Frederic R. Newbold, treasurer.

The show will be held March 16 to 23, 1917, and the place will be the Grand Central Palace, Lexington avenue and Forty-sixth street, where all recent large flower shows in New York have been held.

Secretary Young was authorized to proceed at once with the sale of trade space and to make preparations for the official souvenir program.

Charles H. Totty, F. R. Pierson, John Canning, James Stuart, William H. Duckham, George E. M. Stumpp, L. J. Reuter, Julius Roehrs and Fred L. Atkins were appointed a committee to prepare a preliminary schedule.

Many applications for space in the trade section already have been received at the secretary's office and the prospects are that there will not be sufficient space in the plans as outlined to satisfy all the demands. It may be absolutely necessary to secure additional space on the third floor, the arrangements at present calling for the use of the main floor and mezzanine floor only. John Young, Sec'y.

Andover, Mass.—Preparations are under way for the annual exhibition of flowers, fruits and vegetables to be held under the auspices of the Andover Florists' and Gardeners' Club. The show will be held in the town hall, September 8 and 9. Premium lists covering all classes are ready.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week was holiday week in earnest. Weddings and receptions at low tide, a hot wave and big shipments of all kinds of indoor and outdoor flowers marked the dullest week of the year to date.

The extreme heat left few roses salable a few hours after their arrival. There was hardly any retail demand for anything until the week end. Thousands of roses remained unsold at even the cut rates of the closing offers. From $2.50 per thousand up to $1 per hundred may be given as the low and high averages of prices on roses of all grades, not including a few of the specialties.

Asters are here in ever-increasing quantity, and soon will vie with gladioli in overwhelming the market. The latter already are too numerous. A few peonies still are arriving from the north. They are of splendid quality, but the price for the best does not go above 50 cents per dozen. Orchid shipments are decreasing and there is but a light demand. The best gigas do not sell above 40 cents each.

Carnations still are abundant, but their quality is depreciating. Few of them sell above 50 cents per hundred and thousands are cleared under $2 per thousand. Valley is weak and lilies abundant. Prices remain as low as those of a week ago. Sweet peas are hardly salable. The market is still called upon to dispose of the usual host of seasonable summer flowers, including daisies, coreopsis, gaillardias, calendulas, etc.

Various Notes.

Those who went to Bar Harbor by boat left July 13 in a deluge, but they sailed into a delightful temperature—a luxury after the days of torrid heat that preceded the trip. Everyone who attended the sweet pea convention reports it a splendid success, while the day in Boston and the all-water trip were more than up to expectations.

Secretary Young already is at Houston and hopes that other eastern conventionists will join the New Yorkers' water trip from New York to Houston, via New Orleans. He says the report of 50 cents a shave and $2.50 per bath at Houston is without foundation. A goodly number from New York will attend the convention and they hope to land the next meeting for this city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Allen left July 15 for a month's holiday at Asbury Park, N. J.

Friend Meyer, of Riedel & Meyer, Inc., is enjoying a western trip, with headquarters at Mount Clemens, Mich., near the bracing influence of the sulphur baths.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kessler are summering in the mountains. The new store has been thoroughly renovated.

A. Cova, of the New York Florists' Supply Co., is a suburbanite and has the prettiest garden at Bayside, L. I.

Joseph Fenrich will be in charge of the Bowling Club's outing at Barnegat bay, which begins July 27. If the man-eating sharks get wind of the club's fishing grounds they will find some desirable titbits in the healthy members.

John Miesem, John Donaldson and C. W. Scott are a trio of expert fishermen and devote every Tuesday to the sport, as their weekly and generous contributions to many larders indicate.

Anton Schultheis and family are at Asbury Park. Manager Van Reyper and family will enjoy their holiday in the mountains on the return of Mr. Schultheis.

Grand stock of the new regale lily may be seen daily in the windows of John Young & Co.

Walter R. Siebrecht, who has been ill for several weeks, is reported to be much improved.

H. E. Froment's receipts of roses from Coddington continue daily to average over fifty boxes, including a dozen of the popular varieties.

The George W. Crawbuck Co. is more than satisfied with its first six weeks' experience. What to do for room in September is a serious problem. Eugene Keenan, formerly with the Greater New York Florists' Association, is the latest addition to the sales force.

All the florists who have seen the Dards Japanese garden at the Ritz-Carleton hotel are eager in their praise of it. No one should fail to visit this remarkable exhibition.

J. H. Small & Sons have completed the painting and improvements in their new store. Visiting florists will find an examination of the store inspiring.

The retail associations of the New York florists are unusually active. Banquets follow the meetings and great harmony prevails.

At a meeting of the joint committee on the 1917 spring show, held at the Hotel Manhattan just before Secretary John Young started for Texas and the S. A. F. convention, all arrangements were reported progressing nicely, with the enthusiasm engendered by this year's success promising a still greater one next time.

Miss Mahoney, bookkeeper for Traendly & Schenck, is vacationing for three weeks in the mountains.

Early closing daily and earlier on Saturday now seems to be the rule in the wholesale cut flower section.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. is busy with the retail section of its business and with preparations for the opening of its auction season early in September.

J. Austin Shaw.

Prior to his departure for Texas, John Young, secretary of the New York Florists' Club, announced that President Henry Weston has appointed Walter F. Sheridan, Emil Schloss, J. A. Fiesser, W. H. Siebrecht, Joseph Fenrich, Roman J. Irwin and Peter Duff as a nominating committee to select candidates for office for 1917. This committee is to make its report at the November meeting of the club.

The transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club has selected the following route for those who intend to attend the S. A. F. convention in Houston: The S. S. Momus will leave New York Wednesday, August 9, arriving at New Orleans Monday, August 14, whence the journey to Houston by train, the Sunset Limited, is only eleven hours. The rate will be $80 to $83 for the round trip from New York to Houston, which covers the trip by steamer to New Orleans, train to Houston, then all rail returning. Those who desire may return by boat. This rate includes berth and meals on steamer, but not on trains. As this is evidently the route favored by most of those who intend to go, it is hoped that all members of the New York Florists' Club and friends from the eastern section of the country will travel in this party. The transportation committee is composed of Chas. H. Totty, chairman; John Young, Wm. C. Rickards, Jr., and J. R. Lewis. Reservations should be made at once.

Erfurt, Germany.—The old house of J. C. Schmidt is maintaining its world-wide connections during the war by means of houses established in neutral countries by former employees.

Enfield, England.—Iris Richard II, for which Amos Perry received an R. H. S. award of merit, should be noted by those in quest of distinct new varieties. It is a seedling of Black Prince, with white standard and rich, velvety purple falls.

Oudenbosch, Holland.—Such concerns as the Union Nurseries, specializing in deciduous trees for the American trade, had a good 1916 season and look forward to a still better one in the coming year. Their principal difficulties concern labor and transportation.

Orleans, France.—E. Turbat & Co., of this place, raised Ghiselaine de Feligonde, awarded the prize of the Bagatelle Gardens, Paris, for the best novelty among climbers. They describe it as "a true perpetual climbing multiflora, with golden yellow flowers shaded coppery tints."

St. Albans, England.—P. E. Moon, grandson of F. Sander, recently was killed on the firing line in France.

London, Eng.—The orders in council prohibiting the importation of bulbs and plants except from France have been modified to allow the entry of bulbs produced in Guernsey.

Broxbourne, England.—At the recent Chelsea show Thomas Rochford & Sons, Ltd., received an award of merit for Spiræa Princess Mary, pink, of which the managers say: "We have no hesitation in stating that it is the finest variety we have yet seen in colored spiræas."

Paris, France.—The Journal of the Horticultural Syndicate, now issued quarterly, continues to print long lists of the members of the trade killed or injured in the war. The editors are particularly severe on members of the trade convicted, as were several St. Remy seed growers, of trading with the enemy; they are characterized as "men to whom money has no smell."

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business activity varied last week. Monday and Tuesday opened quite lively, with a generous lot of funeral work, but during the middle of the week things appeared quite dead. There was a revival, however, Saturday. While business is not brisk, it is considered by all to be satisfactory for the season. The weather is summery in earnest and stock has suffered thereby. Roses are hard to handle these days. They open almost on arrival and are practically unsalable. The stock is not at its best and the pink and yellow varieties lack color. Good, tight buds sell well. A number of good Hadley and My Maryland roses are in the market. Carnations are becoming quite inferior at this period. They are soft and small and are disposed of at low figures.

The demand for sweet peas is much larger than the consignments. They are shortening in stem. A few early dahlias are in the market. Gladioli arrive daily and sell well, the favorite being America. Valley is not overplentiful, but the demand is not at all large. An abundance of rambler roses in pink and red have sold nicely. Shasta daisies move slowly. There is little demand for coreopsis and gaillardias, but helianthus and gypsophilas are being used a great deal. Candytuft is plentiful, as well as achillea. Out-of-town asparagus is not at all good.

Various Notes.

S. Menke, of the Decorative Plant Co., of New York, was in town last week calling on the trade.

Mrs. M. McNeil, of Wilson's, motored into Canada via Niagara falls last week.

The fund handed over to the Rochester Free Dispensary and Children's Hospital aggregated $3,396, being $900 in advance of last year's fund, which was a record. Flower day in this city evidently is becoming more popular.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Aitken and Mr. and Mrs. Bowles, of Springfield, Mass., called on several friends in the city last week on their return from Buffalo, where they attended the Shriners' convention. The party motored from Springfield to Buffalo, making stops at Rochester and at Syracuse on their return.

It is with sincere regret that one hears of the serious illness of William Logan, for many years connected with the Crosman seed store, on East Main street. He has been ailing for a long time and his condition is quite bad. Fred Vick also is reported unwell.

A communication has been received from Mrs. R. M. Fuller, of Washington, D. C., asking that the Rochester Florists' Association at its next meeting take action and vote on a national flower. She asks if it should be the mountain laurel.

James Bates, of Oakfield, N. Y., was in town last week buying stock from several stores.

J. M. Keller was in Buffalo attending the Shriners' convention during the week.

The Lady Florists' Auxiliary held its annual picnic at Eastman Durand park, Wednesday, July 12. A happy and enjoyable time was spent by all. There was a good attendance.

Frank McLuis, who has been renting a store between Water and St. Paul streets, has removed to his former stand, renting part of the store and one window of the Unique Candy Store. Expenses were high at the other place and the amount of business did not demand a big undertaking.

Miss Hattie B. Ellis is away on a two weeks' vacation at the Dew Drop Inn, Webster, N. Y.

H. E. Wilson had a dainty window display for the week end. It consisted of Dorothy Perkins ramblers nicely arranged in fern boxes, cut glass vases and baskets. Pink mats were used on the bottom of the window and gave a fine effect.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

There is a dullness in the local market usual at this period of the year and many of the storekeepers and their clerks are enjoying vacations. The growers and greenhousemen, on the other hand, are particularly busy overhauling houses and preparing for rebenching. Some of the growers have already begun benching. Funeral work continues the feature of the local business.

Various Notes.

The Empire Floral Co. has closed the store until fall.

Mrs. P. F. Conley, of 48 Updike street, has a house of fine Boston ferns.

Woodrow & Marketos, of New York, have opened their summer branch store at Narragansett Pier.

William E. Little, gardener for Henry F. Lippitt, has been elected a member of the Cumberland school committee.

The Budlong Rose Co., of Auburn, is making heavy shipments to the New York market, principally of Stanley and Francis Scott Key roses.

Mrs. Charles Smith has gone to Boston and vicinity for a few weeks' stay with relatives.

The corner window of Macnair's, at Broad and Chestnut streets, is attracting much attention. The display represents a deeply wooded dell, with a waterfall having a drop of seven feet into a deep pool, which is surrounded by ferns, foliage plants and moss.

Neil Ward has been reëlected tree warden of the town of Cumberland for another year.

Olney Williams & Sons, of Hartford avenue, are cutting thousands of fine sweet peas for sale in this city and Newport.

H. Liebson, representing the New England Florists' Supply Co., was in the city recently.

K. Max, of San Francisco, a brother-in-law of Joseph Koppelman and Charles Smith, arrived here last week for an indefinite stay.

Johnston Bros. report an exceptionally good year to date, funeral and decorative work having been especially heavy.

William E. Chappell is making an extensive overhauling and improvement of his range of houses on Branch avenue.

BUCKEYE ITEMS

Covington, O.—The season has been an excellent one at the J. M. Petersime establishment and several of the houses will be rebuilt this season and the heating system overhauled to put it in up-to-date condition.

Dayton, O.—P. D. Berry, on Brandt pike, reached by rural route 3, has had a successful peony season and plans to enlarge his planting for next season. Mr. Berry is a market gardener who became interested in peonies because of the demand for the blooms occasionally shown in the market stall from which he sold vegetables. The peony plantation increased until now he has an acre and sells 30,000 to 40,000 blooms per year, mostly to Dayton florists, but some are sold through wholesalers and a few are retailed.

Cleveland, O.—E. A. Reeves believes strongly that the city should not bite the hand that feeds it. Wherefore his threat recently of a court injunction to prevent a welfare director from selling 1,200 dozen peonies grown at the Warrensville infirmary. Four years ago Mr. Reeves donated 2,000 roots for planting at the infirmary. The verbal agreement was that no peonies should be sold; they were to be used only for beautifying the grounds. "Now they plan to sell them, to compete with me," Mr. Reeves said. "Fine idea—after my setting the city up in business." The welfare director promised to listen to reason.

Salem, O.—Elmer E. Stanley, for a number of years representative of the Ford Seed Co., of Ravenna, O., is erecting a greenhouse here and will engage in the florists' business.

Youngstown, O.—Although roses, house plants and calcimining do not mix well, that is no reason why W. D. O'Connor, a painter and decorator, should not make good in the florists' business. At any rate, Mr. O'Connor has erected a greenhouse as a starter, and says he will add to his facilities as rapidly as the business warrants it.

London, O.—Surely the spring season of 1916 will be recorded in the books of W. D. Thomas as the best ever. The flower houses are practically devoid of stock, which cleaned up rather too closely, and tomatoes and cukes have outdone themselves in size and luciousness. There are eight groceries in London and Mr. Thomas has furnished six of them with his prize tomatoes, some of which wholesaled at 25 cents each! Says Mr. Thomas: "I grow Bonny Best, Globe, June Bug and the old-time, late, canning variety, Stone, which is conceded to be the best outdoor canning tomato. I may seem a bit conceited, but I feel that I have sufficient reasons for being highly elated over the hit I have made with my customers. Some of the tomato clusters had six ripe pieces at the same time and three to five green ones."

BUFFALO.

The Market.

Summer business conditions are with us again. Stock of all kinds is plentiful, but the bulk of it is of inferior quality. Beauties are fair in quality. Ophelia and Mrs. Russell are of better quality than most other roses. There are many good Killarneys, Francis Scott Key and Hadley roses to be had. Carnations have not fallen much since last reported, the quantity being somewhat smaller. Easter lilies are abundant and move slowly. Good sweet peas clear regularly, although most of them are short. Valley is more abundant, but has little demand. Cattleyas are sufficient for all requirements. Snapdragons still are on the market and are of good quality. There are some gladioli to be had.

Various Notes.

The Buffalo Florists' Club will hold its annual picnic at the Automobile Club grounds, Clearance, N. Y., July 26.

Miss Stroh, of Stroh's Quality Flower Shop, will spend her vacation at New Haven, Conn., going via New York. She will stop off at New York for several days.

Florists from all parts of the United States attended the Shriners' convention held here last week. It was a pleasure to the Buffalo florists to meet the visitors.

Miss Barry, bookkeeper at the branch store of W. J. Palmer & Son, will start her two weeks' vacation July 24. She will spend most of the time at Angola and Lancaster. Raymond House started his vacation July 17. A. E.

PITTSBURGH.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

At the recent meeting of the Horticultural Society of Western Pennsylvania the members unanimously decided to suspend further sessions until September, when more convenient headquarters than the Annex hotel will be chosen for the coming year. Vice-president William Allen, superintendent of the Homewood cemetery, presided in the absence of President David Fraser.

Anthony A. Leach, superintendent of the grounds and greenhouse of Greenlawn, the east end estate of Henry J. Heinz, was absent on a two weeks' eastern business trip, necessitating the omission of his scheduled paper on "Roses," which was the subject of the evening's program. However, there was a general discussion on the best growing methods of roses by the majority of those present.

There was a fine display of hybrid teas by Michael Curren, the head gardener on Mrs. Elizabeth M. Horne's Sewickley Heights country place, as well as by John Murphy, who has charge of the farm of Henry Lee Mason, Jr., also on the Heights. Mr. Allen had a mixed collection of hybrid perpetuals. "Dahlias" will be the subject of the September meeting of the society.

Secretary Thomas Edward Tyler won two blue ribbons and a red and yellow one each for orchids at the recent session of the Garden Club of Allegheny county. The exhibit, which included cattleyas, oncidiums, dendrobiums and cypripediums, was shown by the owner, Charles Dickey Armstrong, of the east end.

Various Notes.

Charles G. Ulmer, an employee of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., is spending a two weeks' vacation at Conneaut Lake, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Clarke returned last Saturday night, July 15, from their trip to the Pacific coast and the Knights Templar conclave at Los Angeles, stopping en route to see their children at the family cottage at Lake Chautauqua, N. Y. Mrs. E. A. Williams, who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Clarke to the coast, came directly home the preceding Thursday.

Gustav Ludwig returned Sunday night from Chicago with his daughter, Mrs. Victor Bergman. Mrs. Ludwig, who accompanied him west, remained for a several weeks' visit.

Visitors last week were H. E. Bates, representing the Lord & Burnham Co.; Milton Alexander, representing Lion & Co., New York; Julius Dilloff, of Schloss Bros., New York; Mr. Sperro, of Charles Finn & Co., New York.

Miss Eleanor Craig, who for some time has been accountant for Miss E. B. Maxwell, of Wilkinsburg, is quite ill at the Homeopathic hospital.

G. Wessenauer, of Sewickley, has been appointed forester of the borough of Wilkinsburg.

James Murray McGrew, head salesman for G. P. Weaklen & Co., has returned from a two weeks' vacation spent in Cleveland and in the surrounding country. Francis J. Smith, a salesman for the same concern, will leave about August 1 for Philadelphia, to which city his family recently moved from New Brighton, Pa.

Under the supervision of Superintendent George W. Burke, of the bureau of parks, the city has had an attractive little pleasure park made at the Point, the section of land which juts out into the water at the meeting of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, forming the Ohio. On each side of Point bridge, Foreman John W. Jones, of Schenley park, has laid out a circular flower bed, one being forty and the other fifteen feet in diameter. It is further planned to have a road around the bend by which motorists can drive out to enjoy the picturesque scenery down the Ohio valley.

Foreman Jones is justly proud of the beautiful 500-yard avenue of ginkgo, or maidenhair trees, fronting the Phipps conservatory, which this season have reached proportions to afford a delightful shade. Mr. Jones also has some specially fine carpet beds this summer. He never before has been so handicapped for laborers, for, owing to the unusual demand for workers, and wages in proportion, in the various steel and iron mills hereabouts, helpers of years' standing have left to join the forces for the output of war munitions.

Clarke.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

A. Stoeckle, of Watertown, N. Y., fails to recall a season of planting as extended as this one has been. He has sold heavily and has barely enough left for stock.

F. A. Bennett & Son, of Watertown, are fortunate in having store helpers who can assist in the houses during planting time, although business in the store has been on the jump all the time.

John T. Humphrey, of Gouverneur, N. Y., is a scion of the good old Roman firm of Humphrey, and has made good during his sojourn of five years here.

Perrin Bros., of Potsdam, N. Y., also are passing the fifth milestone. They say business is equal to, if not beyond, their capacity. More glass is on the tapis.

Hay & Co., of Alexandria Bay, N. Y., believe the season would have been phenomenal had it been warmer, as many of his patrons were slow in deciding on their cottage decorations.

The annual outing of the Albany Florists' Club to Frederick Goldring's farm at Slingerlands, N. Y., took place June 6, and brought out almost the entire membership and several visitors. The usual good things were thoroughly enjoyed. Practically every branch of the profession was represented, and many reminiscences were indulged in.

W. W. Hannell, of Watervliet, N. Y., has secured a 5-acre tract of land adjoining his place. It includes a pretty ravine and a brook. The land will be planted to hardy bulbs and plants. His stock of Erica melanthera is promising, for Christmas trade. The extra demand for blooming plants will necessitate a reduction in the number of roses and carnations. Chrysanthemums are a strong item, and are quickly followed by plant stocks. Mr. Hannell expresses the fear that the Ophelia rose will become cheapened, because of its seeming adaptability to almost all conditions and its easy culture. It is the most profitable rose he has ever grown. Hadley and Richmond also are favorites.

J. G. Barrett, of Troy, N. Y., this season noted the best call for window boxes in his long experience. Few good plants are left over and good orders were being filled as late as July 8.

Sambrook Bros., also of Troy, report similar conditions. Evidently the Trojans are setting an excellent example in window and porch decorations.

J. E. Sambrook & Co., of Berlin, N. Y., have their usual fine crop of gladioli in view.

J. L. Watkins & Son, of Hudson Falls, N. Y., report good sales of tuberous begonias. These are doing finely thus far and some brilliant effects are seen. "We are making hay while the sun shines," observed the senior member, who was seated on a hayrake. The younger member, who had just returned from Cornell, where he is taking a course in floriculture, was assisting in the operation.

A. J. Binley, of Glens Falls, N. Y., not long ago removed to a store more centrally located. He notes a large increase in sales. W. M.

HOUSTON, TEX.

Robert C. Kerr went to Dallas to meet John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, and will visit the north Texas florists before the convention.

P. M. Carroll, manager for Kerr the Florist for the last four years, has resigned and is going into the business for himself. He will open a downtown store about August 1.

C. H. Blecker has moved to his new display and salesroom, two doors from his old location. He is interested with Mr. Kutschbach, who has several houses all planted and looking fine. They have a nice lot of outside flowers for funeral work and short-stemmed cut flowers, such as periwinkle, feverfew, snapdragons, tuberoses, lilies and the like. He is going to build another house for roses, which he has already planted in ground beds.

The Oleander Florist, H. T. Neitsch, proprietor, states business has dropped off for the summer, except a little funeral work. He has a fine assortment of begonias and is having good success in growing them in this hot, blistering weather. G. R. L.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Last week's weather was intensely hot and business suffered considerably. There was small demand for flowers outside of funeral work, though business in that line was good. There is little call for flowers for social affairs, except for the Country Club. The florists, however, are grateful for a brief respite and are taking advantage of the lull in business to brighten up their stores and collect slow accounts.

Stock is sufficiently plentiful to meet all demands. Golden Band lilies and Easter lilies are used extensively for funeral work. Roses are in large supply, but only of medium quality. Russell, Kaiserin, Ophelia, Sunburst, Rhea Rheid and Ward are the best summer varieties. Carnations are fast disappearing, as many of the growers are throwing out their plants. Gladioli are becoming more plentiful. Mrs. Francis King, America and Pink Beauty are the best varieties on the market. Outdoor sweet peas are exceedingly plentiful, but are small, owing to the hot weather. There are a few American Beauties on the market, but the demand for them is poor. Cattleyas are plentiful and the prices are reasonable. A small supply of greenhouse asters is arriving. Stocks, Shasta daisies, cornflowers, coreopsis, gaillardias, candytuft and snapdragons are the principal outdoor flowers on the market.

Several severe electrical storms occurred last week, causing considerable damage to outdoor crops.

Various Notes.

The Doswell Floral Co. has been busy with funeral work lately. The firm is closing the store at 5 o'clock during July and August.

It is reported that Ed Hauswirth will close his shop at 220 West Berry street the last of this month and retire from business. He came here from Chicago in April and went into business just at Easter, but he says there are too many florists in this city and he will return to Chicago, to his former position with one of the wholesale houses there.

The Convention Program

THE PROGRAM for the thirty-second annual convention of the Society of American Florists, to be held at Houston, Tex., August 14 to 18, has been planned along the lines in vogue prior to the meeting at San Francisco last year: Three days are to be devoted to the business affairs of the society, with intervals for recreation, but the whole of the fourth day is to be devoted to the trades' exhibition, the Convention garden, bowling and an afternoon trip to Galveston. The idea of the program makers has been to allow the visitors as much time as possible for sight-seeing, appreciating that for many it will be the first trip to the south. To this end the reading of essays has been omitted. There is, however, provision made for consideration of a thorough amendment to the by-laws, the changes proposed having been printed in full in The Review for April 27. In addition, notice is given that R. C. Kerr will propose an amendment authorizing the board of directors to change the date of the convention in future years in cases when the convention is held in sections of the United States where August is not considered the best time.

The Hotel Rice will be convention headquarters. Reservations may now be made.

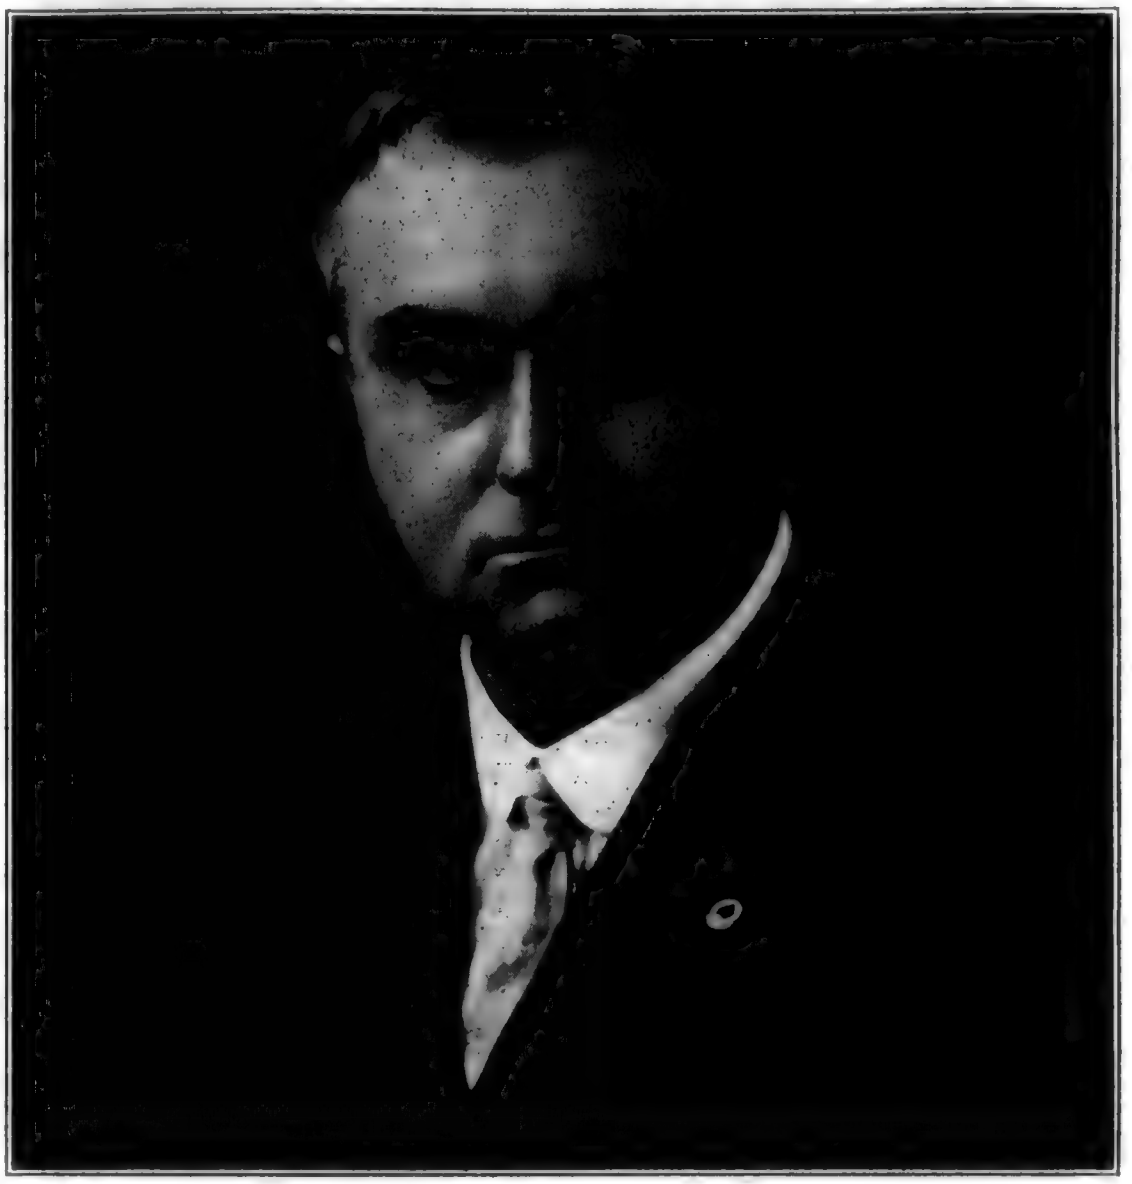
OBITUARY

John Poehlmann.



John W. Poehlmann, president of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago and Morton Grove, Ill., died at his home, 4728 Beacon street, the afternoon of July 14. For several years Mr. Poehlmann's health had been failing. At length his case was diagnosed as cancer of the stomach and several months ago an operation was advised by his physicians, but it proved altogether ineffective. In spite of his condition, however, and due solely to his wonderful constitution and his iron will, he was soon visiting his office at the company's Chicago store and betraying an active interest in trade affairs. But his outworn body could not keep pace with his indomitable energy and his infirmity at last bore him down to his bed again. After this the sands of life ran rapidly, and for the ten days preceding his death he was seldom conscious for more than a few consecutive minutes.

John W. Poehlmann, who was one of the leaders in making Chicago the cut flower and plant growing center of the country, was born in Milwaukee, Wis., June 21, 1867, the son of John George Poehlmann and Caroline Haffermeister. There he attended both the public schools and the private German schools. His business career is familiar to everyone acquainted with trade history. In company with his two brothers, August F. and Adolph H., he started a greenhouse business in Morton Grove, in 1890. Their combined cash capital was $80. Today the corporation they afterwards evolved has the largest investment in greenhouses and equipment in the United States. In September, 1894, he was married to Miss Fredrica Ottenbacher. She died June 11, 1898, leaving two children. Six years later, November 12, 1904, he was married to Miss Emma E. Parker.

Mr. Poehlmann was a German Lutheran by early training, but the press of business and a natural disposition to be retiring deterred him from taking any active part in the church life. It was perhaps due to the same trait that he never affiliated with any fraternal order. He was a man of few words, but possessed of a keen sense of humor, and, because of his well known conservatism, his advice frequently was sought by outsiders. He was unostentatious, but did many a man a service unasked and unknown. Altogether unobtrusive, there have been few members of the trade with a wider circle of friends, and none more highly esteemed for unswerving integrity and loyalty to the interests of the trade.

He is survived by his widow, two children, John G., 21 years old, and Frieda, 20 years old; two sisters, Mrs. Lena Riemer, of Morton Grove, and Mrs. Bertha Hoppe, of Milwaukee, Wis., and four brothers, August F., Adolph H., George and Gustave.

The funeral was held from his late residence, 4728 Beacon street, Sunday afternoon, July 16, with interment in Graceland cemetery. The attendance, which included most of the growers of Chicago and vicinity, representatives from practically every wholesale house and many retailers, was so large that, not only the house and porches, but the adjoining grounds were crowded.

John Poehlmann.

The services both in the home and at the grave were conducted by Pastor Jahn, of St. Paul's Lutheran church. The pallbearers were six Chicago florists: C. L. Washburn, E. F. Winterson, A. Lange, Andrew Chronis, J. C. Vaughan and Ed. Enders. The list of honorary pallbearers given out includes

Amling, E. C.	Nichols, H.
Asmus, George	Olinger, E.
Barker, M.	Pickett, J. E.
Bohannon, L. R.	Randall, A. L.
Breitmeyer, Philip	Reinberg, Peter
Budlong, A. H.	Ringler, Arnold
Elberfield, Alpha	Samuelson, C. A.
Friedman, O. J.	Smyth, W. J.
Howard, H. B.	Wienhoeber, E.
McNeilly, J. H.	Wienhoeber, George
Mangel, John	Wietor, N. J.
Muir, John	Wittbold, Louis

The floral offerings were so numerous that four auto trucks were insufficient to carry them from home to grave. There were pieces from the various wholesale houses, as well as individual and association offerings too many to enumerate. The trade organizations to which he belonged, the S. A. F., of which he was a life member, and the Chicago Florists' Club, manifested their sense of loss by sending handsome wreaths.

Harry F. Hammock.

Florists of Washington, D. C., last week learned with regret of the death of Harry F. Hammock, a familiar figure for the last ten years at the J. R. Freeman store on Thirteenth street, Washington. Mr. Hammock had been complaining of stomach trouble for some time and finally was forced to go home from work because of illness. The next day found him confined to his bed and within ten days death had claimed him. The attending physician gave heart trouble as contributing to his death. Those who were accustomed to visiting the store will miss him, for he was always cheerful, despite a deformity that had made him a cripple for life.

C. L. L.

William E. Dallwig.

W. E. Dallwig, a pioneer seedsman of Milwaukee, Wis., died July 13, at his home, 785 Prospect avenue. He attended to his seed business at 34 Juneau avenue until a short time before his death, although he was far from well. C. Dallwig, who survives, has the sympathy of his host of friends in the trade.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the federal court by D. W. Hunter, doing business as the Chattanooga Nursery Co. Secured claims are listed as approximately $16,000 and unsecured as $18,000. Total assets are estimated at $21,000.

Fall River, Mass.—The estate of the late George L. Freeman is represented insolvent and commissioners have been appointed to examine all claims of creditors. The time for proving claims is six months from June 16.

Wakefield, Kan.—Percy R. Walter reports that outdoor stock, including carnations in the field, is doing splendidly. The rain has been regular, but not excessive. The spring's bedding plant business exceeded last year's by twenty-five per cent.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Thirty-second annual convention, Houston, Texas, August 15 to 18, 1916.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THOUGH it is no news that The Review does not undertake to answer anonymous inquiries, perfectly good stamps continue to be sacrificed sending them in.

WE would laugh at the farmer who expected to get milk from a cow without feeding the animal, yet there are many growers who have a fit over a fertilizer bill.

AGAIN this summer growers of American Beauty are having considerable trouble with black spot. With decreasing vitality the variety seems to be increasingly susceptible to spot.

GREATLY increased interest is manifested by florists who grow for their own retail business in hardy perennial flowers for cutting. City retail stores are seen to be using these to good advantage and the smaller man in the country is quite generally following suit.

IN England and the Channel Islands the shortage of labor has resulted in a large number of women taking the places formerly held by men, in greenhouses as in other industries. The women are found to make extremely capable greenhouse hands in winter, but to stand the summer heat under glass less well than men.

THE scarcity of merchandise, which in many lines was pronounced in the early part of the year, has been quite generally overcome, but this is not the case with the grade of tissue paper used by florists. Mills seldom will promise delivery under six weeks and prices are nearly three times what they were under normal conditions.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

The American Carnation Society's silver jubilee medals were awarded to each winner of a first premium in the competitive carnation classes at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia last March.

REDUCED RATES TO HOUSTON.

For the convention of the Society of American Florists at Houston, Tex., the railroads have granted greatly reduced round-trip rates, as follows:

Chicago to Houston and return	$46.65
St. Louis to Houston and return	34.65
Kansas City to Houston and return	32.00

The Chicago party, occupying special cars, will leave via the Wabash at 11:55 p. m., Sunday, August 13, and arrive in St. Louis at 7:40 Monday morning. The special cars will be attached to the Iron Mountain Texas Limited, leaving at 9 a. m., due at Houston, Tuesday, August 15, at 2 p. m., in time for the opening session.

YOUNG ORPET NOT GUILTY.

The friends of E. O. Orpet, formerly of Boston and now superintendent of the McCormick estate at Lake Forest, Ill., will be glad to learn that the jury acquitted Will Orpet on the charge of murdering Marion Lambert, daughter of Frank Lambert, head gardener on the neighboring Kuppenheimer estate. The girl was found dead in the woods and the chemist made it certain that she died of poisoning with potassium cyanide. The state endeavored to prove that the drug was administered by Orpet, the defense that it was self-administered. On each side it was sought to show that the drug was readily obtainable from the father's stock of greenhouse fumigating materials, but the defense proved that the accessible fumigant was sodium cyanide, not potassium cyanide. The case attracted much attention, the Chicago daily papers devoting many pages to it. That the prosecution had failed to impress the jury was apparent before the close of the trial and the quick verdict of not guilty was not unexpected.

PRICES COMING DOWN.

Slowly but steadily commodity prices, which have been adversely affecting the special interests of florists, are coming down. For instance, the skyrocketing of spelter (zinc) early in the year has caused growers to pay greatly advanced prices for wire stakes and retailers to pay much more than usual for galvanized cut flower storage vases. But spelter recently has lost five-sevenths of the advance. Copper, steel, lead and other markets are less strong and prices are falling. The period of inevitable reaction from the boom of the last year appears to have set in. Munitions factories are completing their contracts and are reducing their forces; demands of nearly every nature are less insistent. That a rapid decline is in prospect seems improbable, but that general commodity prices have passed the apex appears sure. On a falling market the rule is to buy only for present needs.

How the trade will be affected, in the larger way, by a turn in general business is not yet apparent. A reduction in commodity prices will be of direct and immediate benefit, but a slowing up in general business could not go far without affecting the demand for and prices of flowers.

THE QUICKEST WAY?

This is by Edward N. Hurley, vice-chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, in an address to the Advertising Clubs of the World:

"Gentlemen, is there any quicker way to separate friends, or to force customers off your books, or to create a break between business men, than to send out cold, sarcastic letters?"

TROUBLES NEVER COME SINGLY.

Fire completely destroyed the building of the W. F. Kasting Co., 383 to 387 Ellicott street, Buffalo, on the morning of July 19. At nine o'clock temporary quarters had been secured at 493 Washington street and business was going on much as usual.

The Kasting company lost its president by apoplexy only a month ago.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The continuance of sultry weather has resulted in a continuance of the market conditions that go with it. The market is well filled with inferior stock that can be moved only at a ridiculously low figure, and even then some of it never sees the retail store. But this is only one side of the matter. There is a fairly liberal supply of young stock coming into the market and this sells readily. So when all the circumstances governing the market are taken into consideration, there is no valid ground for complaint, and in justice to the trade it may be added that little complaint is heard; the general report is that the volume of business exceeds that of a year ago.

New Beauties are coming in more heavily and these sell promptly. Of other roses, good stock is decidedly scarce, but open stock, small stock and stock that is palpably worthless is more than abundant. As usual, but small salesmanship is required to dispose of the really first-class stock, but it requires the greatest ingenuity of the wholesalers to get the greater part of the receipts out of the market. Ophelia has lost its favor; it pops open under the heat. Russell is off color, but still is the best seller. It is too hot for red roses to be in request.

He who can use little carnations of indifferent quality can find his opportunity in the present market, particularly if he is inclined to buy in quantities. It was not to be expected that valley would long continue to meet the demand and it did not. It is now well on the short side of the market, which seems to be its normal position in Chicago. Easter lilies are plentiful in the extreme, but they are also almost stationary. The supply of cattleyas, though no larger, is much easier as a result of the decrease in demand.

Really good sweet peas are noted for their great scarcity, most of those received being unqualifiedly poor. Daisies are available in any quantity, including excellent Shastas. Snapdragon, gladioli, coreopsis, gaillardias, cornflowers, candytuft and feverfew are plentiful, but they are in a decidedly disadvantageous position, as this has been a remarkably good season for growing outdoor flowers and, as a result, garden flowers on the market find little call. To this rule, gypsophila may be an exception, for it has enjoyed a fairly steady call. A few early asters may be found, and still fewer dahlias. The good asters are perhaps the best property in the market today.

There are plenty of greens of all kinds to be had at a surprisingly low figure.

Various Notes.

The change to real midsummer weather that came in the middle of last week, while it cut the average price of flowers to the lowest in a year, did a great deal for certain growers, the ones who have been battling against black spot in the houses of Beauties and Mrs. Russell especially.

George Hagen, father of Frank Hagen, of the George Reinberg city store staff, and grandfather of Fred Klingel, of Erne & Klingel, died quite suddenly July 17. He was 78 years of age, a pioneer carpenter in the Bowmanville district, who helped build some of the first greenhouses there.

Commenting on last week's business, John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says it contained the smallest day's sales his house has made this year, but that nevertheless the day's record was $300 better than the same day last July.

A most pleasant vacation plan has been worked out by O. J. Friedman. He spends a week with his family at his summer home in Omena, Mich., then runs over to Chicago for a day or two to look at the business. Victor Bergman left July 15 for a month's fishing and camping in the wilds of northern Wisconsin. In the absence of Mr. Friedman and Mr. Bergman, Tom Fogarty will have charge of the stores.

July 15 Pyfer & Olsem obtained possession of the Peter Nepper place in Evanston on a lease for five years. The houses have been in vegetables, but will be given a thorough overhauling and will be planted to carnations, of which there will be bench space for 75,000 plants.

That the flower business in general is better than usual at this time of year is the view of George Wienhoeber.

Rustic window decorations with water instead of flowers now are in season. Especially attractive ones are to be seen at C. A. Samuelson's and at the store of the Fleischman Floral Co.

For the first time since his connection with the business Felix Reichling his annual trip through the southwest. He will be at the Houston convention.

W. J. Smyth and family are at their summer home on Lake Marie, Antioch, Ill. Mr. Smyth visits the store for a few hours every few days, usually making the trip in his new Pierce-Arrow.

Edgar Winterson suggests a tent on Mackinac Island as an excellent place to hold an S. A. F. convention.

With one and one-half houses planted to chrysanthemums James Psenicka, of Gross Point, is taking a breathing spell before throwing out and replanting seven and one-half houses of carnations. He says one insertion of a classified ad in The Review cleaned up his surplus of chrysanthemum plants and there were several nice looking checks that had to be returned after the stock was gone.

Al Lehman having returned from his vacation, A. C. Kohlbrand outfitted with all the latest fishing tackle last week and left July 15 for a fortnight in Wisconsin at his favorite pastime.

The moving picture exposition at the Coliseum last week made quite a little business for the trade. The A. L. Randall Co. furnished a considerable quantity of artificial material for decorating purposes. The Geo. Wittbold Co. put up a number of decorations, of plants and artificial flowers, and John T. Muir decorated one of the booths with natural flowers.

As is now quite well known, the A. L. Randall Co. is operating a basket factory at Burlington, Ia. Last week there was a civic celebration at Burlington and George Heusman went out to represent the company.

Miss H. A. Simpson, C. B. Le Mar, Miss Ethel Oakfield and Miss Pearl Sanborn, of Simpson's flower stores, motored to Aurora July 13 to attend the picnic of the Austin Business Men's Association.

The garland of American Beauties worn by the winner of the derby, July 15, was made by S. M. Michels & Co., 143 North Wabash avenue.

Plans are being made by John Ziska, of Joseph Ziska & Sons, for an automobile tour covering the greater part of Wisconsin. He will take his family with him.

Another Chicago florist to seek surcease of work in the Wisconsin lake region is W. A. Lange, son of Robert Lange, 3339 North Whipple avenue, who will leave July 23. Mr. Lange is making plans for the rebuilding of his store the first part of August.

A pleasure trip to the east has taken Martin Schoepfle, son of J. Schoepfle, 933 Belmont avenue, out of the city for a few weeks.

After a most enjoyable month spent in Eldora, Ia., Herman Wallace, of the W. L. Palinsky establishment, 2865 Palmer street, and family have returned to the city.

Raymond Ziska, of Joseph Ziska &

Sons, celebrated his nineteenth birthday last week.

Another member of the Bassett & Washburn force is outing. George Heidenreich is taking two weeks.

Miss Clara Burkhart, assistant manager of the Poehlmann Bros. Co. supply department, is taking a two weeks' vacation in the Wisconsin lake region.

Manager Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., spent July 13 to 17 at Twin Lakes, Wis. Miss Agnes Corrigan is back in her accustomed place at the switchboard. While away she visited the establishment of Edward Amerpohl, Janesville, Wis. Miss Viola French, who operated the telephones in her absence, is taking an automobile trip through the east. Others of the Randall force who are vacationing are: George Pelz, shipping clerk, who is visiting a sister in St. Paul; Henry Dalberg, who is visiting his mother in Minneapolis; C. Guza and August Adams. H. Brandon, who has been out of town on a two weeks' vacation, is back on the job.

Visitors.

Henry W. F. Goetz, of J. B. Goetz Sons, Saginaw, Mich., arrived July 14 to spend several days visiting in this vicinity. He makes his business headquarters with the A. L. Randall Co.

Miss H. B. Whitted, of Minneapolis, came to attend the funeral of John Poehlmann July 16 and has been visiting the trade the early days of this week.

W. E. Tricker, with Holm & Olson, St. Paul, was in the city July 17 on his way home from Arlington, N. J., where he was called by the sudden death of his father, reported in The Review of July 13.

James McHutchison, of McHutchison & Co., New York, and wife passed through Chicago this week on their return from a far western trip.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Last week business was extremely quiet. Funeral work was the principal item of the little activity there was, decorations having dropped off suddenly. Outdoor stock of all kinds is coming into this market in great abundance. Gladioli, gaillardias, coreopsis, delphiniums, campanulas, chrysanthemums, etc., are of fine quality. Sweet peas are constantly becoming better and the market is flooded with them, some of them moving at almost nothing. Summer roses are good and the demand readily takes care of the supply.

Various Notes.

Many growers of outdoor stock have been troubled with the soft-shell borer. Dahlias seem to be the plants chiefly infested, although reports mention zinnias, hollyhocks and, in fact, nearly all soft-wooded stock as being subjected to the attack.

The West Side Floral Co. is remodeling its store and reports a fine season. The company placed on this market a large supply of bedding stock and its cut flowers have found a ready market.

Henry Puvogel is building a dwelling on Chatsworth street, alongside his greenhouses.

L. L. May & Co. report business good in all lines. Mr. May is improving in

McCray Florists' Refrigerators

The McCRAY construction keeps flowers cool and fresh longer than by any other system of refrigeration. It provides an even temperature of the correct degree for cut flowers and stops the great waste and profit loss that is caused by imperfect refrigeration.

The various compartments in a McCRAY are of different sizes to accommodate the different lengths of cut flower stems and your flowers are given an inviting display.

For interior linings you have your choice of either handsome bevel plate mirror or beautiful white enamel, which are very easy to clean. The exterior may be of any finish desired to match the interior of your store woodwork or other fixtures.

Invest in a McCRAY. Make it a partner in your business. You will value it more highly than its mere intrinsic dollar-and-cents value. Investigate anyway!

roses during the extremely warm weather.

Beauties still are quite plentiful, with the demand a little lighter than usual. The quality remains good. Ophelia, Sunburst, Russell and Kaiserin are of good quality and have been cleaned up from time to time. Carnations are about done for and are hardly worth the trouble of caring for and bringing them in. Gladioli are more plentiful, with America much in evidence, and they find a ready sale. Sweet peas are about done for during this warm spell. There still are some good snapdragons to be seen, as well as Shasta daisies, fancy marigolds, etc. Lilies are more plentiful at present and are used up nicely in funeral work. J. M.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The extreme heat has changed conditions in the supply of cut flowers. Carnations and sweet peas have suffered most; these are not counted on to the same extent in filling orders as in the past. Roses, too, are less plentiful, though the falling off in the supply is only apparent at times. Gladioli are still coming in from the south, with an increase in the cut from near-by. Asters are slowly coming into the foreground; their quality is only moderate so far. Easter lilies are exceedingly important at present; they are used in numbers at fair prices. Greens sell unusually slowly. The outdoor flowers continue in oversupply. Valley is quite scarce, while orchids have taken a turn toward greater abundance, with lower prices.

Taking the market as a whole, flowers are selling fairly well for the season, with the average price hardly up to the usual standard.

The Black Spot Crusade.

An earnest effort is being made by the workers of the American Rose Society to raise the sum of $1,000 now for the purpose of making a thorough investigation of the cause and cure of black spot. All those public-spirited florists and amateurs are asked to contribute $20 each for this purpose. The subscription may be sent either to Samuel S. Pennock, 1620 Ludlow street, Philadelphia, or to J. Horace McFarland, of the Point Pleasant Press, Harrisburg, Pa. The money when raised will be devoted to paying the time and expenses of Prof. Louis Massey, of Cornell University, who has undertaken the work. Four hundred dollars already have been raised through the interest of some twenty of our leading men, and it is earnestly hoped that thirty more will be found who would insure the completion of the undertaking.

A West Philadelphia Shop.

The handsome show case of M. J. Callahan is as well filled this week as in the season. Its electrically-lighted, ammonia-cooled interior presents a charming picture of the best in cut flowers, attractively displayed. Wedding decorations, so plentiful in June, have run over into July. A handsome affair last Saturday was arranged with

PLANT BASKET
All our baskets contain liners

All Baskets Look Alike on Paper--

But you can't use the paper they are on—at least, not as a basket. Every basket made in the Neidinger factory is tested with the natural flowers or plants, whichever the case may be, before they are made up as stock, to ascertain whether they are practical in every way for the purpose for which they are intended. This insures you against getting a cut flower basket that will not hold cut flowers, a plant basket that you cannot plant in satisfactorily or a tumbler basket that will tumble over when filled. In fact, any basket turned out by us has the guarantee of the Neidinger quality, which is why we call them practical.

Exchange. It is shrewdly surmised that the wedding will take place August 15.

Robert Craig and Mrs. Craig are at Ocean Grove, N. J.

Recent visitors included Walter H. Taepke, of Detroit, Mich.; Charles F. Edgar, of Lancaster, Pa.; Samuel Cape, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and J. M. Carey, of Detroit, Mich. Both tigers motored here separately.

An engagement of great interest in florists' circles is that of Miss Campbell, daughter of the well known rose grower, George E. Campbell, of Flourtown, Pa., to Joseph S. Myers, son of Frank P. Myers, Beauty specialist, of Myers & Samtman, Wyndmoor, Pa. Both young people have many friends who extend hearty good wishes.

Robert Kift is at Bar Harbor, Me.

William J. Young, Jr., is bringing gladioli from his Linfield farm to his store in Germantown—early gladioli. By the way, Mr. Young tells a story of a man at Linfield who is so powerful that he stops an express train at will by raising his hand.

Regret is expressed in this city at the death of John Poehlmann, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago. Mr. Poehlmann was the uncle of Mrs. E. Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa.

Julius Kohler, of Frankford, Pa., is at Avalon, N. J.

George Burton, of Wyndmoor, Pa., has taken his family to Ocean City, N. J.

Herman Schoenfeld has marketed a large stock of spring plants from his greenhouses at Eighty-sixth street and Crothers avenue.

The Orchid Flower Shop was closed for the summer July 8. It is expected that Miss Violet Rose will reopen the store early in September.

A package of German flower seeds without legible postmarks has just reached the Henry F. Michell Co., "probably by submarine," as Franklin Ely told his associates.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business is exceedingly quiet; there is hardly enough work in the stores to keep the clerks busy. There is not the usual oversupply, as stock from the north is in an unsalable condition, the flowers so fully opened as to be almost worthless. American Beauty and other roses are particularly hard hit, and valley is in poor condition on arrival. While this is annoying, it is serving to keep down the surplus of stock so usual at this time of the year.

Asters and dahlias have made their appearance. They are not yet obtainable in sufficient quantities to constitute a nuisance and therefore sell well as novelties. Asters are somewhat behind time this year. This is due to the continued rains of June and the cool nights. Of the dahlias, Sylvia and Delice form the bulk of receipts.

Among the orchids there still are some C. gigas to be had. The supply of C. Mossiæ is somewhat heavier than that of gigas. These are in but little demand. There is a large quantity of gardenias offered. Easter lilies are moving in a large quantity of funeral work, but they are not bringing much by way of price. There still are some sweet peas to be had. These are fair, considering the season. Outdoor sweet peas are about done for. Some double gypsophilas and achilleas are obtainable. Both cornflowers and mignonette are showing the effects of the heat.

The Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., was devoted largely to a discussion of plans for the outing July 19 and to the forthcoming convention at Houston, Tex.

The outing committee rendered an interesting report, showing that the members were to expect one of the most enjoyable events in the history of the club. A report was made on the participation of the florists in the preparedness parade May 14. It was estimated that there were more than 100 florists in line.

In the convention discussion it was stated that the Washington representatives probably will include William F. Gude and Mrs. Gude, Adolph Gude, Mr. and Mrs. C. Schellhorn and Theodore Dietrich.

Samuel Everett was proposed for membership.

Various Notes.

William F. Gude, J. Richards, George C. Shaffer and Edward S. Schmid participated in the parade of the Elks at Baltimore last week. Mr. Gude is the leader of the local lodge and as such marched at the head of the Washington contingent. In this line were members of the House of Representatives, the Senate and the government departments.

George Field has disposed of his stock of orchid plants to W. J. & M. S. Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind. Will J. Vesey, Jr., recently came here for that purpose and arranged to have the stock shipped to the Vesey houses by express. Three cars will be required to transport them from Washington to Fort Wayne. It is the intention of Mr. Field to give up his present business. Following the sale of his orchids he announces the sale of his property. Mr. Field is undecided as to what he will do in the future, but it is safe to say he will not remain long out of the business.

Otto Bauer, manager of the local store of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., has gone to Wildwood, N. J., for a two weeks' vacation. He joins Mrs. Bauer and their two children, who have been at this popular seaside resort for several weeks. Mr. Bauer is desirous of getting some sea bathing, for which Wildwood is famous, but does not feel like taking a chance with so many man-eating sharks on the New Jersey coast.

Hetherington, has gone to his old home in Philadelphia for a two weeks' vacation.

There are many among the local florists who have relatives and friends fighting with the French, English, German and Austrian armies, and all are intensely interested in news from "home." Henry Witt, of Silver Hill, last week received a letter from Germany bearing a postmark date of March 31. Another of his brothers, D. Witt, recently joined the German army.

The Market.

The supply of stock has shortened considerably. Everything at all worth while is cleaned up by the demand, which is weak but steady. Roses are fairly plentiful, but the majority of the offerings are short-stemmed. Carnations are shortening rapidly. Easter lilies are plentiful. The cut of gladioli is fairly large and includes some excellent offerings. Asters are becoming more plentiful and water lilies, cornflowers and snapdragons are listed under the miscellaneous heading.

Various Notes.

At the annual meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Club last week the following officers were elected; President, William Schumann; vice-president, James Allen; treasurer, J. Charles Murphy; secretary, Alex. Ostendarp; director, Gus. Adrian.

C. E. Critchell received the first of his leucothoe and green galax last week.

Mrs. Murphy and Miss Claire Murphy have gone to their cottage at the Chenaux.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange reports that this month so far has been the busiest July ever experienced.

E. G. Gillett has purchased a new 6-cylinder car.

Miss Christine Bossmeyer, of C. E. Critchell's force, is on her vacation.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business is brisk about the city for this time of year. All florists report a great deal of funeral work and many decorations for fetes. The weather has been intensely warm all the week, and the hot wave still is with us. Never before has the city been so resplendent with arrays of gorgeous flowers, in window boxes, gardens and general decorations about homes and places of business. The gardens are particularly fine, as Minneapolis people now take much delight in work of this kind.

Roses now are arriving in fine shape. Carnations are much in evidence, but are not of the best quality, as the intense heat is playing havoc with the plants. Sweet peas are fine and abundant. Many excellent displays of daisies, coreopsis, gaillardias and gladioli can be seen about the city.

Various Notes.

Miss H. B. Whitted left July 15 for Chicago, to attend the funeral of John W. Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co. The news of his death came as a great shock to his many friends in the Twin Cities. Business has been fine at Miss Whitted's stores and has included the decorations for several large weddings. The McLain wedding was a magnificent affair and this firm did all the floral work for it. The two Whitted stores are elegant in style and equipment. Splendid, large vases of antique ware, mixed with fine receptacles of more modern design, hold plants and flowers of rare beauty and make the stores wonderfully attractive.

Wm. F. Holmes is exceedingly busy with design work. Many fine designs are sent out of his store, all bearing the marks of an artist's skill. His window decorations also are artistic, and last week the display consisted of fine pottery, such as vases, fern dishes, etc., with lace ferns, delphiniums and other garden flowers.

The Mazey Floral Co. is always busy and has a high-class trade, attracted by the large and excellent stock, the artistic store and the courteous treatment of customers. This firm also has had several large wedding decorations.

The New York Florists have a fine selection of plants and ferns. Funeral work here is done in large quantities and shows fine workmanship.

and Mrs. Swanson will miss them from the trade, but Mrs. Swanson will still be identified with the business for some months to come. The business will be taken over by John Nyloff, C. H. Janssen and Henry Johnson, who will incorporate under the old and familiar name of Swanson's. Mr. Nyloff is president of the St. Paul Florists' Club and has for many years been identified with the firm of Holm & Olson. Mr. Janssen also comes from Holm & Olson's, where he had charge of the credit department. Improvements will be made in the store and the new firm is looking forward to a successful career.

CLEVELAND, O.

November Show Is Planned.

At the last meeting of the Florists' Club a report was read by the flower show committee in which it was stated that the executive committee of the flower show, composed of members of the Ohio Horticultural Society, the Cleveland Garden Club and the Florists' Club, had reported favorably on the holding of a small local show November 10 to 12, in connection with the competition for the Corrigan cup. The Corrigan cup, it will be remembered, was first put up at the Cleveland show last year. The class reads as follows:

Open to private gardeners of Ohio. Thirty-six blooms of chrysanthemums, six varieties, six blooms of each, to be staged in two vases.

OF "THE FLOWERS"
336 Superior Street, TOLEDO, OHIO

Exhibitors may furnish their own vases and any accessories and greens are allowed. The arrangement is to be considered. The prize, the Corrigan cup, valued at $500.

The cup is to become the temporary property of the winner for one year, to be returned to the Cleveland flower show committee one month before the date of the next fall show. Before this cup becomes the permanent property of any private grower, he must win it three times at the Cleveland flower show.

The cup was won in 1915 by William Fisher, gardener to H. S. Firestone, of Akron, O.

The Florists' Club's Committee.

A committee consisting of the following was appointed by President Bate to arrange a premium list for a few classes of cut flowers and plants, both private and commercial, and to conduct the show: William Blackman, R. P. Rapley, William Bause, Rudolph Thurman, W. E. Cook, Chas. E. Russell, Frank A. Friedley, chairman.

The premium list will be mailed shortly. Besides the Corrigan cup class, there will be other classes for large mums, pompons and singles; also classes for cyclamens, begonias, primulas, etc., all for private growers of Ohio only.

The Market.

Extreme midsummer dullness now reigns in the flower markets. Arrivals have fallen off heavily. Many growers now are sending nothing in, as they are busy pulling out crops and replanting. The demand is quite feeble and so far shipping business is not robust. There still is a good supply of roses and they are by far the best selling flowers on the market. The quality remains good, considering the recent torrid weather we have experienced. Prices vary from 50 cents to $8 per hundred for hybrid teas. Varieties now selling well are Double White Killarney, Francis Scott Key, Milady, Ophelia and Hadley. American Beauties meet with a fair sale, the best realizing $20 to $25 per hundred. Carnations are coming in greatly reduced numbers and move sluggishly at 50 cents to $1 per hundred. The demand for valley is poor. Sweet peas of good quality are quite scarce. Indoor crops are over and frequent thunder storms have seriously damaged outdoor crops.

Gypsophila, candytuft and bachelor's buttons, with sweet sultans, form the leading outdoor flowers. Gladioli sell slowly; so do lilies. Gardenias are in fair supply, but there is no great demand for either these or cattleyas. There is little call for asparagus and adiantum.

The Show at Horticultural Hall.

Japanese irises were the feature at the exhibition in Horticultural hall July 15. Allen J. Jenkins, of Shrewsbury, put up an extensive collection, which secured first prize. A smaller collection came from Dr. Harris Kennedy. The Eastern Nurseries had a fine table of hardy herbaceous perennials; also an excellent collection of shrubby spiræas, the bulk being pink-colored. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had a group, covering over 600 square feet, of the fine new Chinese lily, myriophyllum, or regale, as it is now being called. Small fruits were well shown.

Boston to Bar Harbor.

Boston and vicinity was well represented at the Bar Harbor sweet pea show. The superior attractions of Bar Harbor as a beautiful watering place acted as a magnet. Some visitors left July 13 and a few did not go until July 15, but the greater number were attached to the party organized by the Gardeners' and Florists' Club and sailed on a steamer that left Boston at 6 p. m., July 14, and arrived at Bar Harbor at noon the following day.

Included in the party making the delightful all-water route were: Mr. and Kenney, J. Harrison Dick and Thomas Knight. At Rockland, Me., which was reached at 4:30 a. m., there were additions to the party and everyone enjoyed the beautiful scenery during the rest of the route. The skies were clear and the weather conditions as near perfect as possible.

Various Notes.

William Nicholson, of Framingham, is coming rapidly to the fore as a golf player. July 7 he won two open golf tournaments, including a sweepstake, over a large field of players on the grounds of the Framingham Country Club.

The Welch Bros. Co. has been receiving some large shipments of the new Lilium myriophyllum and has made shipments as far as Chicago. Gladioli, Beauties and valley are all good and shipping business remains satisfactory. The Welch Bros. Co. will vacate its present quarters during the present summer and move nearer the center of the wholesale market district before October 1.

Norris F. Comley says his business this year has been at least double that of 1915. At present he is picking heavily of tomatoes. He has nine houses of this crop and prices are good. He has finished planting 100,000 chrysanthemums, but will not house carnations for several weeks yet. A new Dean pump recently installed is giving much satisfaction.

The Budlong Rose Co. finds Double White Killarney a rapid selling rose at this season, their full shipments being cleaned up within an hour each day. Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, Milady and the deep Sunburst sport are fine at present.

A show promoted by leading spirits in the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is being planned for June, 1917, to be held on a vacant lot near the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. A guarantee fund of over $7,000 has already been secured. It is understood that there will be no competitive classes and that no money or other awards whatever will be made. Impressive exhibits of rhododendrons, azaleas, rock gardens, etc., are promised, as well as splendid music. This will prove an interesting experiment. Hitherto summer shows, no matter where held, have been disappointing. It remains to be seen whether Boston can prove an exception to this rule.

regale, covering several acres of ground in the nurseries of R. & J. Farquhar & Co. There were hundreds of thousands of flowers open, some spikes carrying fifteen to twenty-five flowers each. Later the party were taken to the Dedham nurseries of the concern and were shown immense quantities of Chinese and other plant novelties growing and being propagated. Although it was the hottest day of the summer—95 degrees in the shade—everyone enjoyed the outing thoroughly; also an excellent lunch, furnished by J. K. M. L. Farquhar.

Arrangements are practically completed for the annual picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to be held at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 27. Contributions toward the prizes and other expenses have come in most liberally and an attractive list of athletic events has been arranged. nice presents. Mr. Wax is the oldest living florist in this section.

The fatalities to a number of bathers from man-eating sharks of late recall the fact that one of our local florists, J. W. Howard, of Somerville, and his son, landed a 300-pound shark at Manomet beach, Mass., September 1, 1911, after a hard two hours' tussle.

Thomas Roland still is picking a ton of tomatoes daily from one of his big Revere houses. He is sending in thousands of roses of good quality. He has not replanted any of his roses this season, largely because of the severe local labor shortage.

James L. Miller, of Lynn, with George Gordon, of Beverly Cove, made the trip to the Bar Harbor sweet pea show in Mr. Miller's motor boat.

William Sim threw his grounds open to the public July 13, to afford an opportunity to inspect his extensive display of beautifully flowered rambler roses. He advertised the fact in local papers and hundreds came to see the display.

Patten & Co., of Tewksbury, are pulling down one or two old houses and replacing them with a more modern structure. Their carnations in the field look well and are being housed as rapidly as possible.

Joseph S. Spey, the courteous and popular janitor at Horticultural hall, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his wedding July 12. Every caller at Horticultural hall has a good word for Mr. Spey, who is always genial and most obliging.

John A. Nelson, of Framingham, started planting one of his carnation houses with Matchless July 18. All his young stock is in excellent condition.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, is sending in some good Renanthera Imshootiana, Dendrobium formosum giganteum, miltonias and cattleyas. Of gardenias he now has a good summer cut.

A duck farm in one of Penn's Tremont street windows proves a potent attraction these hot days, to judge by the crowds constantly gathered about the window. W. N. Craig.

SEED CATALOGUE MAKING

A seedsman who thoroughly understands SEED CATALOGUE MAKING in all its branches, would like to arrange to do this important work for a few members of the trade. Full particulars upon application.

Address SEED CATALOGUE, No. 264, care Florists' Review, Chicago.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CARL BRANDT, of Sabin, N. D., for eight years has been in the business of growing and shipping Red River Valley seed potatoes.

ON the Bermudian, which arrived at New York July 13, from Hamilton, there were only eight cases of bulbs, where a considerable shipment had been expected.

HOWARD M. EARL, commenting on early closing during the summer months, says: "It might be of interest to you to know that W. Atlee Burpee & Co. are following the plan of last year and at our Philadelphia office we will be closed all day Saturday during July and August."

IT seems apparent that, while the shortage of French bulbs may be exaggerated, as such things usually are, many orders will not be filled. The man who placed his requirements at low prices with some Holland house that thus secured his order for Dutch bulbs is lucky if he gets his French order filled even in part. He will get his Dutch stock all right; there's plenty of that.

A LETTER FROM OLLIOULES.

In The Review I have always followed your reports from France and it might be of interest to know the situation here, as we are now able to see it after the bulbs are lifted.

The crop is bad, on account of the dry weather, and it is quite certain that a large percentage of the orders will not be filled. Several exporters have notified their customers that they are forced to reduce the orders by at least twenty-five per cent and, in order to obtain even a reduced quantity, bulbs are purchased from twelve centimeters and up, which is below the size purchased other years. Prices have gone up considerably and many who have postponed ordering will be unable to obtain the bulbs.

Especially the crop of Roman hyacinths is bad and other bulbs, such as Grand Soleil d'Or, Trumpet Major, etc., are not to be had any more.

There is a shortage of labor and many bulbs which were not lifted last season are unfit for sale, which most likely will make the situation for 1917 even more grave than at present.

A. G. Pruyser.

"EUREKA" CLOVER.

Under the name "Eureka" clover there is being advertised a forage plant for which enormous yields of green fodder are asserted. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the plant in question is sachaline (Polygonum sachalinense), introduced into the United States in 1883 and much exploited in 1893 and for a few years thereafter.

MIGNONETTE SEED

We offer seed of a strain of Mignonette which we have reselected for many years. Read the following letters and judge for yourself if it is not worth while to buy the best seed obtainable:

FROM WHOLESALERS

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 4, 1916.

Mr. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

Dear Sir: The Mignonette that you have been shipping us is the best that is coming to this market, and we have been able to sell this in preference to other shipments, and maintaining a higher price. I think you have an exceedingly fine strain—in fact, the very best one that I have ever seen.

Very truly yours,
GEO. B. HART.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 20, 1915.

Mr. David J. Scott, Corfu, N. Y.

Dear Sir: We received the Mignonette this a. m. and would say the shipment was sold out as soon as it was laid out on the sales table. The quality certainly was excellent; no finer has been received in this market in some time, and as the time is nearing the holidays we hope to be able to receive and handle all you can ship. We will warrant that the returns will prove satisfactory.

Yours very truly, WM. F. KASTING CO.

PRICE OF SEED: Tr. pkt., $1.00; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.50; 1 oz., $7.00—Postpaid

Sachaline is a native of the island of Saghalien, whence it obtains its common name, and from where it was first described in 1859. The plant is a hardy herbaceous perennial and spreads by stout creeping rootstocks. The stems of well grown plants become six to fifteen feet high and bear numerous large, heart-shaped leaves. The flowers are small, greenish white and form in small clusters in the axis of the leaves. Seeds are produced rather sparingly.

Sachaline was cultivated as an ornamental for some years in Europe before M. Doumet-Adamson in France called attention to its value as forage. As the plant was said to be easily propagated and vigorous in growth, this resulted in its enthusiastic booming. It was even extolled as a crop for arid regions, though it is native to a cool, moist climate. In the years immediately following the plant was much advertised in the United States.

Tests of the plant were made about this time by the Department of Agriculture and by many experiment stations. Most of the reports are adverse, the plant not thriving well under the conditions tested, but partially favorable results were secured in Florida, Iowa, North Carolina and Massachusetts.

In spite of its vigorous exploitation by interested parties, it is significant that sachaline has never secured any definite agricultural status in this country. Occasionally splendid specimens are found in gardens, which seem to indicate that great yields under field conditions might be obtained, but such hopes thus far have not been realized.

CONDITION OF CANNERS' CROPS.

The U. S. Bureau of Crop Estimates has received, from a special list of canners, reports relating to the condition July 1 of truck crops grown for canning purposes. Correspondents were requested to estimate the condition on the basis of 100, representing a normal condition. The results of the tabulation of the replies are given below:

ZVOLANEK'S Sweet Pea Seed

We have a copy of Mr. Anton C. Zvolanek's interesting price list ready for you, if you failed to receive the one mailed you a few days ago. Mr. Zvolanek is the originator of the Winter Sweet Pea, having produced all but two of the several hundred Winter-flowering Sweet Peas now known to the botanist—more than 106 distinct varieties developed from his Orchid-flowering type are now grown throughout the world. Sweet Peas from Zvolanek seed, exhibited by Mr. Zvolanek and other prominent growers, have gathered first prizes everywhere. The four latest honors were First Prizes at the Philadelphia National Flower Show and the New York International Flower Show, and the Gold Medals of Honor at both the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions. Last year's crop was sold out very early. Orders are filled in the order of their receipt. We urge ordering now—from the novelties offered below or from the price list we will gladly send.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Trade was quiet last week, but there was not sufficient fancy stock for even so small a demand. In retail circles it was a dull week and the only work was for funerals. The weather, too, was hot and stock was in poor condition. Especially was this true of roses. Russells were among the best that arrived. Carnations are becoming extremely poor in quality, especially home-grown stock. The supply of gladioli was the feature of the market last week. The stock was extra good and plentiful. Wholesalers found it difficult to dispose of the large quantity. Asters, as yet, do not make much of a showing, but will soon arrive in large quantities. Easter lilies are the mainstay of the market when white flowers are needed. The demand for valley and orchids has fallen away and the light supply seems abundant for present needs. Sweet peas are few these hot days, but outdoor peas will soon be a factor in this market. A lot of common outdoor flowers are arriving daily and meet with a poor demand. Prices are low in all grades. Green goods are in excellent demand.

Club Meeting.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held another of its delightful outdoor meetings July 13, at the establishment of the Bourdet Floral Co., Magnolia and Tower Grove avenues. It was largely attended. President Bourdet called the meeting to order, with all officers present.

After the usual preliminaries, Chairman Ohlweiler, of the trustees, an-

Burpee's Sweet Peas

YARRAWA
From a Fordhook Photograph.

Early Winter-flowering Spencers

After seven years of patient work at Fordhook Farms, supplemented by careful trials at our Floradale Farms, it is our pleasure to offer to Commercial Growers, Burpee's New Early or Winter Flowering Spencers, which we feel will give entire satisfaction.

THE HOUSE OF BURPEE has been long recognized as "American Headquarters for Sweet Peas," and the introduction of these Winter-flowering Spencers marks an era in commercial Sweet Pea growing.

The novelties offered below, with the exception of "Yarrawa," are the results of crosses made at our Fordhook Farms during the past seven seasons, and all stocks are grown at our Floradale Farm, "The California Home of Sweet Peas."

Fordhook Pink and White:—A color that is always in demand, similar to the old Blanche Ferry. Bright rosy-pink standard, wings almost pure white. The large flowers measure two and one-half inches in diameter and are perfect in form. A very early, free and continuous bloomer. Awarded Certificates of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915, and the American Sweet Pea Society, San Francisco, June, 1916. ¼ oz., $1.25; ½ oz., $2.00; oz., $3.50.

Fordhook Pink:—This is a distinct shade of pink suffused with lavender throughout. Flowers are large size, exquisitely waved, produced in threes and fours on long stems. ¼ oz., 40c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $3.50; ½ lb., $6.25; lb., $12.50.

Fordhook Rose:—Introduced by us in 1915. Flowers of largest size usually borne in threes and fours. A charming shade of rosy-carmine. Awarded a Certificate of Merit at the International Show in New York, March, 1915, and the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915. ¼ oz., 50c; ½ oz., 85c; oz., $1.50; ¼ lb., $4.00; ½ lb., $7.50; lb., $15.00.

Yarrawa:—This magnificent Australian variety has proved its unusual merit with commercial growers in all parts of the country. It has an exceptional reputation as a "sure money-maker." First exhibited by us at the great International Show in New York, March, 1914, and awarded a Certificate of Merit by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, March, 1915. Flowers exquisitely waved, averaging two and one-half inches in diameter, many of them being duplex or double. A bright rose-pink, with a clear creamy base. ¼ oz., 35c; ½ oz., 60c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $2.75; ½ lb., $5.00; lb., $10.00.

F. M. Hansen, Florist, Peoria, Illinois, July 5, 1916, writes:—"Among the Winter-blooming Spencer Sweet Peas which we had under culture for cutting last winter, 'the best of the best' were your Yarrawa. Never have we seen anything so perfect and exquisite in every respect; so, of course, we are wanting your seed again, only much more of it."

JULY and AUGUST

THESE ARE THE MONTHS in which to start seedling Snapdragon plants to follow Mums. Snapdragons have become immensely popular, and for profit to grower there is no plant that touches them. Seed of our original Silver Pink Snapdragon, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, Yellow, Buxton, Phelps' White and fancy Mixed, 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00. Free cultural directions. All orders cash.

There is a big shortage of Snapdragon plants, due to rainy season, so grow all the plants that you can and market any surplus. Our famous Silver Pink will be the leader, with our other good ones in their color. Every mail brings repeat orders and puffs for RAMSBURG'S SILVER PINK.

Remember July and August and start some seedling Snapdragon plants.

nounced the various committees to serve at the picnic. He also read the program of games and mentioned that everything was in readiness for the most successful picnic the club has held.

George Pring, chairman of the committee to select an official flower for St. Louis, reported that his committee had selected the coreopsis, commonly known as the tickseed, as the most representative flower for St. Louis.

Messrs. Geddis, Pilcher and F. Windler were appointed a committee on transportation for the coming convention of the S. A. F., at Houston, Texas.

The committee on the applications for membership of Henry Ochs, Edward Sedivic, Alexander Volkman, H. M. Studdard and Emmett McDonald reported favorably and their election followed.

The second reading of a change in the by-laws for the creation of an associate membership was read and approved by a full vote. The final adoption of the change will come up at the next meeting.

The nomination of officers took place and resulted as follows: President, Jules Bourdet; vice-president, W. S. Wells, August Hummert and Frank X. Gorly; secretary, J. J. Beneke and J. J. Windler; treasurer, W. C. Smith.

A committee, consisting of Frank X. Gorly, W. C. Smith and J. F. Ammann, was appointed to prepare plans for the boosting of the various flower days during the year, also to estimate the cost of such publicity and to report at the next meeting.

A. Jaenicke, H. C. Irish and David S. Geddis were appointed a committee to adopt ways and means to secure the National Flower Show for St. Louis. They are to report at the next meeting as to the outcome.

Stephen Beer, private gardener for the John T. Davis estate, invited the members to hold the August meeting on the Davis estate, in St. Louis county. The invitation was accepted with thanks. C. C. Sanders extended an invitation to the members to hold the September meeting at his place and the St. Louis Wholesale Floral Co. has asked that the club meet at the home of the new company, 1410 Pine street, in October.

The secretary was instructed to write to the Retail Florists' Association, asking it to affiliate itself with the Florists' Club, become an auxiliary and conduct its affairs through a retail committee appointed by the club.

Before adjourning, a rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Bourdet for his entertainment. The next meeting will be held August 10, at 2 o'clock.

Various Notes.

H. C. Irish, secretary of the National Commercial Apple Growers' Association, has mailed programs for the first convention of this association, to be held at the Warwick hotel, Fifteenth and Locust streets, August 2 and 3. There will be two sessions each day. Senator H. M. Dunlap will call the meeting to order. A large attendance is expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Jules Bourdet left July 17, with their family, for a ten days' stay in the Ozark mountains. The trip was made in Mr. Bourdet's touring car.

Martin Lechner and Walter Young, who are with the soldiers on the Mexican border, write that they are in the best of health. Both expect to be gone until the first of the year and possibly longer. We shall miss these two live wires at the picnic this week.

James Arado, for many years head of the cut flower department of C. Young & Sons Co., is reported critically ill and the family physician has given up hopes of his recovery. He has been ill for several months.

John Connon, for many years head of the Connon Floral Co., at Webster Groves, will leave this week with his family for Twin Falls, Idaho, where they will make their future home. His many friends in the trade wish him much prosperity in his new home.

Henry Ostertag, head of Ostertag Bros., says the summer so far has been good to him. Business has been brisk, especially in funeral work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Windler have been away for two weeks, spending a vacation at Valley Park, and boating and fishing in the Meramec river. On Mr. Windler's return, Ed Guntly will take a few weeks' vacation at the same place.

The transportation committee of the Florists' Club for the trip to Houston, for the S. A. F. convention, has been advised that the round-trip rate, via New Orleans, will be $32.65. Anyone contemplating going should inform David Geddis, chairman of the committee.

The wholesale florists closed at noon July 20, so that all could attend the picnic at Romona park, the event of the year for the St. Louis florists and their families. A great many of the retail shops also closed.

The Westover Nursery Co., of Clayton, has established a city office at 1444 Syndicate Trust building. H. M. Endres, vice-president of the company, says that they are busy getting the place ready for the fall business.

Chas. H. Gelven, of Gelven's Greenhouses, Cape Girardeau, Mo., spent a day in the wholesale district buying supplies. Mr. Gelven says he is one of the original readers of The Review and has never missed a copy since the first issue.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle was entertained July 12 by Mrs. Andrew Meyer, Jr., at her home on South Jefferson avenue. A pleasant afternoon was spent. Mrs. Otto G. Koenig will receive the ladies next month.

New Early Flowering Giant Pansies

Or Winter Blooming

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the Summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers. Each color separate or mixed.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED.

The above four colors, with other shades and variations, 500 seeds 50c, 1000 seeds $1.00, 1/8 oz. $2.00, 1/4 oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00.

For list and price of other Kenilworth Pansy Seed see my ad of June 15.

FREE OFFER RAINBOW is a mixture of themost beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow and with other amounts in like proportion.

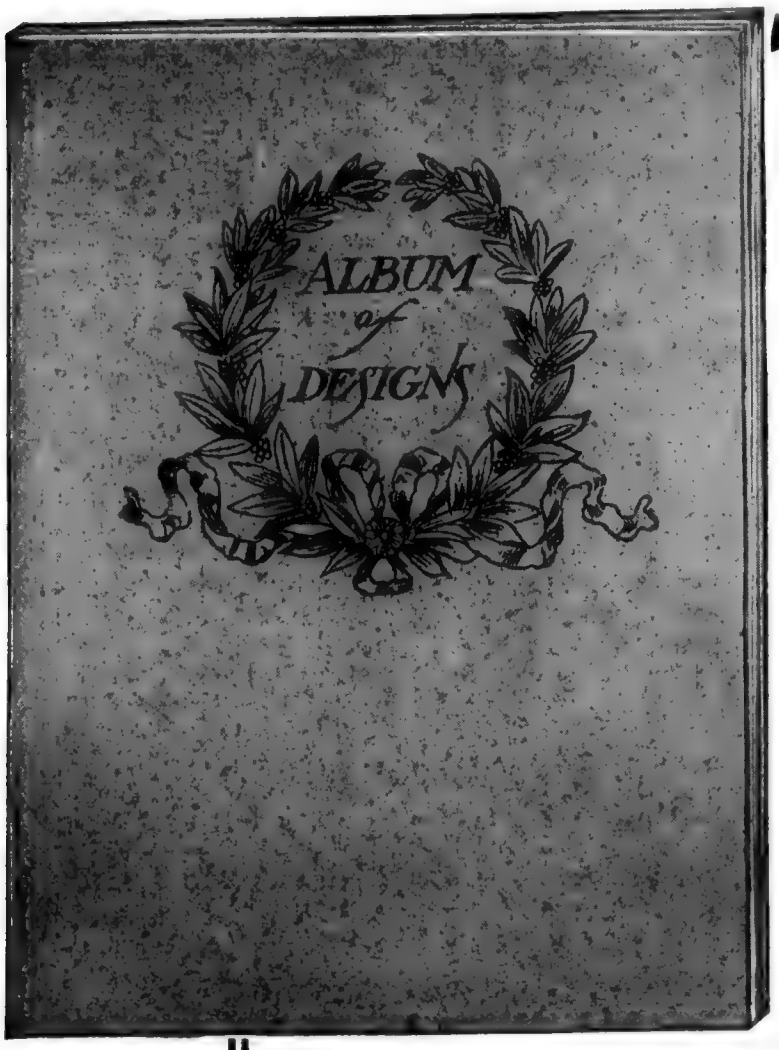
strong are out west for the summer, enjoying the cool breezes of the Colorado mountains. They expect to return in September, ready for a busy fall season.

Most of the west end florists are engaged in the clean-up season and are making improvements of all kinds for the opening of the fall season. C. Young & Sons Co. is redecorating the interior of the Olive street store.



Adolph Steidle, son of John Steidle, is helping out at Vandervoort's flower department in the absence of those on vacation. David Geddis still is on the job, but expects to take his vacation after August 1.

While most of the florists' clubs throughout the country dispense with meetings during the summer, the St. Louis Florists' Club thrives on the meetings during these months. The meetings are held outdoors and the entertainment features bring out large attendances. The membership, too, is always increased at these meetings, more than at the meetings during the fall and winter. J. J. B.

DECATUR, ILL.

N. Bommersbach has sold his business and greenhouses to Andrew Peterson, of Gibson City, Ill., who will continue the business in connection with his stores at Gibson City, Clinton and Decatur. Mr. Bommersbach, after thirty-five years in the florists' business, will retire.

John N. Bommersbach has sold his greenhouses and land to Nick Svendsen, of Chicago, who will continue to grow cut flowers for the wholesale trade. Mr. Bommersbach expects to visit the Pacific coast.

THE THIRD EDITION

OF THE

Album of Designs

(A Book Every Retailer Needs)

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, and a second edition went quickly. Now a third edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new and heretofore unpublished pieces.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Salem, Ore.—The automobile representing the Salem Floral Society in the Fourth of July parade won the first prize of $40. Carl Ruef's car won the second prize.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Stock has piled up considerably in the retail stores and wholesale houses this week. While the weather has not been particularly hot, yet there seems to be no life in the trade and funeral work is the retailers' only salvation. Roses are poor in color and substance and are not worth the prices asked. Carnations are much improved. Those coming from new land in the foothill sections are especially fine, while the new-crop flowers from the beach locations are also good. Asters generally are not so good as usual. Sweet peas are keeping up well for this time of year and a large quantity of all classes of outdoor stock is to be had cheaply. Vacations, rather than business, are the topic of discussion now.

Various Notes.

About forty members of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society sat down to an elegant supper and smoker July 8. President Felgate was in the chair and provided the cigars. As usual on such occasions, little business was talked of, but the perennial matter of a show in this city was again brought up and E. Hunt, manager of Hamburger's flower department, asked for the society's aid in holding a rose show. No executive action was taken, but a pleasant time was spent.

Manager W. Wern, of Wright's Flower Shop, is starting on a vacation trip in which he intends to visit Lake Tahoe, driving from there over the mountains to San Francisco and returning by the coast route. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Wern.

Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, is calling on the trade here this week.

H. Ikeda, a prominent Japanese cut flower grower, who consigns all his stock to the Los Angeles Floral Co., had the misfortune to lose his 6-months-old boy this week.

The Los Angeles Floral Co. is handling the entire cut of the new pink seedling carnation raised and grown by Elgert & Martin, of Covina. This is a medium-sized flower, but grand in color and one of the most wonderful keepers ever sent out. The "busiest place in town" is the new description of this store.

A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., is taking a few days off and is going into training for a real vacation trip in the mountains later. Albert Knopf leaves for San Diego this week with his "Ford and family." Pete Wilson, of this firm's staff, will leave for a vacation next week. He will run his machine to Frisco, where he expects to land on schedule time, but "man proposes"—and sometimes the speed cop decides. Pete is known as the original little speed cop dodger.

H. W. Turner is now making streaks with his little Oakland, painted the real Turner color. The "bug" kicks up dust, but does not show it.

Murata & Co. are showing extra fine new-crop carnations in all colors. The newer shades of pink and rose are especially attractive.

A visit to the Hills Nursery shows the large new fern grown by Mr. Hills in fine condition. It is a magnificent grower and rapidly makes large plants. So far Mr. Hills has not named it, as he wishes to make sure that there is nothing else in the market at all like it.

Miss Kate Parsons, of Fresno, is on a visit to this city.

M. Lambert, the genial superintendent of Elysian park, has left on an extended trip north, having returned from San Diego, where he spent a week. Mr. Lambert is on a partly pleasure and partly business trip, as he will inspect the various parks, cemeteries and nurseries en route. He proposes going as far as Spokane at least, and possibly farther.

H. Reeve Darling has quit the old store entirely and is now well established in his new one.

J. Morris, of the California Evergreen Co., was under the weather a few days last week, but is back on the job again. J. Rolleri is always on deck and the stock handled here is in fine condition. H. R. Richards.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

There prevails the usual lull in the flower business and, with the exception of funeral work and an occasional wedding, there is nothing to relieve the monotony. The supply of flowers is more than adequate for all demands and there seems to be more than the usual quantity of outdoor flowers peddled by itinerant growers, who, if they serve no other purpose, help to fill the stores with cheap stock, the handling of which brings little profit to grower or retailer. There is an abundance of sweet peas and they retain their keeping qualities longer than usual. A few outdoor gladioli are offered and irises are plentiful. The summer prices of carnations are slightly better than usual. The outdoor roses are becoming scarcer and it almost pays to take them to the stores now.

Cucumber growers are making more money than usual, despite the strong outdoor opposition, and the tomato market is improving. Nearly all growers have to rely on one or another of these vegetables as a part of, in some cases all of, their summer crop. The favorable returns they now are receiving help to cheer the erstwhile mournful greenhousemen.

Various Notes.

Ralph Richardson is the proud father of a bonny wee lassie, born last week, and smiles predominate at the greenhouses—even Uncle Joe is tickled to death.

Thomas Rhoades was called away from the Woodlawn store on account of the serious illness of his mother.

Carl Melby has purchased the Flower Shop, on Pike street, which he will operate in connection with his greenhouses at Madison park.

W. Hawkins now has secured the entire interest in the Seattle Pottery Co. and will go in more extensively for the manufacture of flower pots, making pots almost the exclusive product of the business. T. W.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Cool weather checked the receipts of outdoor flowers last week and the calls for funerals, weddings and home decorations took the surplus. Since the first of June shippers have been able to fill all orders, but there has been no waste to speak of. Including outdoor flowers, there probably are more varieties offered in midsummer than at any other season. Prices are normal and little price cutting is done.

The Sweet Pea Show.

The Oregon Sweet Pea Society held a successful show in the auditorium of the Meier & Frank department store, July 12 and 13. Although the date was later than usual, the late opening of the summer season brought the flowers into prime condition and the display was of unusually high quality, both as to bloom and stem. The number of entries was nearly double that of last year's and included several exhibits by florists.

Henry Clemmens, of Newberg, Ore., had the largest exhibit in the commercial growers' class, showing seventy varieties in about 100 vases. In the amateur classes entries were made by growers of Oregon and Washington. Decorated tables and set pieces filled one side of the room.

Aside from sweet peas, there was an interesting exhibit of delphiniums by Charles F. Barber. Max Smith showed a basket of Gladiolus Mrs. Lehmann. The Mountain View Floral Co. occupied a corner with a display of roses and perennials. R. R. Routledge, Max Smith and Henry Clemmens were the society's committee on arrangements.

President J. H. Dundore said the society was growing and in a most satisfactory condition. Henry Clemmens remarked that the season was favorable for producing high-grade sweet pea seed and that his crop was in splendid condition. His vase of Constance Hinton, the variety he said was the best white Spencer for outdoor planting, was a feature in his display.

Various Notes.

Robert Rae, a pioneer florist of Eugene, Ore., died July 13, aged 67 years. He is survived by his wife and three grown sons.

William Dungey has had a good season, having disposed of all his stock. His Meteor geraniums were excellent.

Gustav Kock, of the People's Floral Co., is well pleased with the results of the season's business.

J. B. Pilkington has returned from his trip to attend the N. A. N. convention at Milwaukee. He stopped one day in Spokane. He is vice-president for Oregon and a member of the executive committee. S. W. W.

The Market.

The middle of July finds the local flower business in about the usual state of summer dullness. The city schools are to open earlier than usual this year, so the period of dullness probably will not last so long as in former years, as families soon will be obliged to return from their summer homes in order to get the children ready. At present about the only activity is funeral business. Flowers of splendid quality continue to arrive, but in such quantities that some varieties are a drug on the market, notwithstanding their perfection. This applies particularly to gladioli, the supply of which seems to become larger every day. The best blooms may be purchased at moderate prices and some cannot be sold at any price. The situation is similar with regard to dahlias. A few chrysanthemums made their appearance last week, about three weeks earlier than usual, but they did not cut much figure in the market, although the quality was all that could be expected. Asters have been on the market for some time, but the stems have been so short that most of the offerings found an outlet only through the street venders. Good asters are due within a week or ten days.

Carnations are cheap, and hard to move at that. Roses are quite plentiful and all varieties show good quality except American Beauties, which are not so good as they were two or three weeks ago. A good many zinnias are arriving and they receive more attention. A number of growers are bringing in an abundance of good snapdragon and some unusually fine stocks are offered. reopsis, Shasta daisies, statice and cornflowers continue popular and in ample supply. Many growers still are bringing in a big cut of sweet peas. Lilium rubrum and L. auratum sell well. Valley is a trifle scarce, but several growers have some of it and no real shortage is felt. Gardenias are off crop, while the supply of orchids is about equal to the demand.

San Francisco Dahlia Show.

Plans are under way here for a dahlia show this fall, but it has not been definitely decided how many organizations will coöperate in the arrangements. At its last meeting the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society announced that it intended to hold a dahlia show, and it is understood that the California State Floral Society also is figuring on a show. In addition, the dahlia growers have held several meetings within the last week or two and it seems that two different organizations have been formed. In all probability representatives of the four bodies will unite and all participate in the same show.

The California Dahlia Growers' Association has fully decided to have a show, probably early in September, at the Palace hotel. This, it is said, will be the biggest dahlia show ever held here. This organization has held several meetings and has about seventy-five members pledged, including amateurs and professionals. The officers are: President, T. A. Burns, of San Francisco; vice-president, A. W. Porter, Alameda; second vice-president, Mrs. Jessie Seal, San Francisco; third vice-president, Arthur Twitchett, San Francisco; secretary, C. S. Quick, Berkeley; treasurer, F. C. Burns, San Rafael; manager of exhibits, Leslie E. Doolittle, Pacific Grove. Mr. Burns, the head of the association, has a large dahlia farm

.....We were certainly pleased with the results secured from your Seed last year and florists who visited the University greenhouses said they were the finest sweet peas they had ever seen. They made an unusually strong growth and produced great quantities of blooms.

I have received over 1000 such testimonials inside of ten months.

WARNING:—There are or will be advertised many so-called new Winter Spencers. I have seen many new names on the Exhibition tables, but by careful examination all were identical with my older Winter Orchid, years in commerce, excepting the Yarrawa. NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

ONE of the plants that made many new friends this spring was Weigela Eva Rathke.

PRACTICALLY all nurserymen recognize the increasing importance of the department devoted to ornamentals; the call for shrubs seems insatiable.

THIS is proving an excellent growing season for nearly all classes of nursery stock; the weather conditions have been such that the lateness of the spring has been fully counterbalanced by the rapidity of the summer's growth.

LAND LIENS COVER STOCK.

When a mortgage is given upon land used for nursery purposes, any question raised as to whether the lien covers growing nursery stock is a matter to be settled by the intention of the parties to the mortgage, if expressed, according to a late decision of the Texas Court of Civil Appeals (184 Southwestern Reporter 537). In the absence of an expression of understanding on the point, the court holds that it must be presumed that the parties intended that the stock be subject to the mortgage covering the real estate. In the opinion the following rule of law, as decided by other courts, is approved by the Texas tribunal.

Trees and shrubs planted in a nursery for the temporary purpose of cultivation and growth until they are fit for market, and then to be taken up and sold, are subject to a mortgage on the land, so that neither the mortgagor nor his assigns or creditors can remove them as personal property. One claiming that trees and shrubs, whether growing naturally or planted and cultivated for any purpose, are not part of the realty must show special circumstances which take the particular case out of the general rule; he must show that the parties intended that they should be regarded as personal chattels. The mere fact that the trees and shrubs were the stock in trade of the mortgagor in his business as a nurseryman is insufficient for this purpose. They are prima facie part of the land, unless specially excepted, and, in the same way, unless specially excepted, pass to a mortgagee. Although planted by the mortgagor after the execution of the mortgage, they become a part of the realty and part of the mortgage security.

Concluding, the Texas court says: "If the evidence justifies the conclusion that at the time the mortgage was executed it was contemplated by the parties that the mortgagor should have the right each year to sell the nursery stock, without accounting to the mortgagee for the proceeds of such sales, and that this right has been exercised by the mortgagor continuously since the execution of the mortgage, we think it should be held that it was the intention of the parties that the nursery stock placed or grown on the land was to be regarded as personal property, and not subject to the mortgage."

CUTTINGS IN "SWEAT-BOX."

Will you kindly tell us if it would be advisable to keep greenwood cuttings in a propagating bench called a "sweatbox"? By this we mean a frame with sashes closed day and night. What is the best way to stop fungus in the greenhouse? D. H. N. C.—Ill.

The cuttings of various deciduous shrubs made at this season from half-ripened wood can be rooted successfully in either greenhouses or frames. Of course, they require careful shading and frequent light sprayings in hot weather. I would not, however, advise you to keep the ventilators or sashes closed night and day, but would give the cuttings a little air about 9 a. m., removing it entirely by 3 o'clock, at the same time spraying everything over and bottling up a brisk, moist heat. The length of time that only a small amount of air can be safely given varies with the class of stock you may be propagating. When the cuttings are calloused nicely a safe plan is to air them a little more freely.

Fungus in the greenhouse will spread rapidly if the ventilators are shut tightly both day and night. Care should be taken to use sand that is perfectly clean. Sometimes a sand bank in woods apparently will give clean sand, but it really contains considerable humus. If old sand is used it should be sterilized by steam or boiling water. If the sand is quite fine and inclined to become scummy on the surface, it may be improved by adding some fine charcoal or even clean coal or coal ashes to it. This will make it more porous.

HOLYOKE, MASS.

The regular meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Gardeners' and Florists' Club was held July 11 at Bonnie Brae, Holyoke, the estate of C. E. Mackintosh. George Strugnell has been in charge of the gardens for several years and is well known in the district for his all-around ability. Members enjoyed a stroll through the flower garden and vegetable quarters, noting with satisfaction the flourishing appearance of the crops. A large cherry tree laden with luscious fruit came in for special attention.

D. J. Gallivan extended an invitation to members to hold their annual picnic on his farm at Smiths Ferry. The offer was accepted, but the date depends on the progress of the sweet corn, which is an indispensable item on this occasion.

H. E. Downer read an essay on herbaceous perennials and exhibited sprays of Achillea Perry's White, Thalictrum Fendleri and Pentstemon gloxinioides.

OUR NEW SCARLET

"There is room for a good scarlet," is a common expression among carnation growers these days. We think that in MERRY CHRISTMAS we have the nearest approach to the scarlet you are looking for, that has been offered to date. High-grade blooms freely produced and of a deep scarlet color. Always good color. Always strong in stem and does not split. The best scarlet in sight. We are booking orders right along now. Better let us have yours, too.

Catherine Whitter, the 6-year-old daughter of John Whitter, gardener at Haladene hall, is suffering from attacks of infantile paralysis.

The Newport Horticultural Society has commenced preparations for the show to be held August 17, 18 and 19, and considerable enthusiasm was shown at the meeting of the society held July 13. Interesting reports were received from the various committees and much routine business was transacted. Fiery Cross sweet peas, some having ten blooms on a single stem, were exhibited by Victor May, gardener of the Reef Gardens. He was awarded a cultural certificate. W. H. M.

The Market.

It has been hot and sultry for several days, and if it were not for funeral work there would not be much doing. There have been many deaths, so a great deal of funeral work is being done. Good flowers are scarce.

Various Notes.

The William Blackman Floral Co. is having as good business as can be expected at this season.

Two baseball teams, organized from men at C. L. Niednagel's and Julius Niednagel's, played a game July 14. The Salivas were captained by C. L. Niednagel, and Emil Niednagel was captain of the Spittonnias. The score was 50 to 49. Fred Chapman was umpire.

J. C. Elspermann still is on the sick list. He is having a good business in funeral work.

Karl Zeidler has his new range planted to roses and carnations.

The Evansville Florists' Club journeyed to Newburgh July 12 and were entertained by Otto Kuebler. After an inspection of the greenhouses the business meeting was held on the lawn, and was followed by lunch served in Mr. Kuebler's beautiful home. All enjoyed themselves immensely. Austin Wallace made application for membership and was accepted. The next meeting will be combined with a picnic and will be held at Cypress beach, August 9. All the florists of the city are invited. All who can should be on hand to take the 9 o'clock traction in the morning and spend the whole day at the beach. E. L. F.

Greensburg, Ind.—Robert C. Bertsch, Wilbert A. Bertsch and Ira Clark have combined their resources and incorporated the Clark-Bertsch Floral Co. at $50,000.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The weather was really hot last week. We have seen some of the hottest days of the season and they have put a quietus on business. Stock is exceedingly plentiful and of only medium quality. The sales are light. There is a glut of carnations just now, despite the fact that the growers are busy throwing out the plants and preparing for new stock.

There is no shortage of anything, possibly because the demand is not there. Shipping trade holds up better than the local sales and some good stock is disposed of at rock-bottom prices. The spring was exceptionally good and we can stand an easy time of it for a short period. No trouble is being experienced in handling the work in shifts, so that some of the force can get away for their vacations.

Various Notes.

R. Lietz has taken his family to their summer home at Cedar lake and each week goes out himself. It is a relief, he says, to get away regularly for over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller, who operate the Racine Floral Co., at Racine, Wis., stopped at Milwaukee for a short time July 15, while on their way to West Bend, where they spent Sunday.

Ella Voelzke, of 3803 Lisbon avenue, is taking her vacation at Okauchee lake this week.

M. A. McKenney & Co. moved last week from their old stand at 417 Milwaukee street, to 113 Wisconsin street. The new store is spacious and well equipped. It is handsomely decorated and is an ideal location. The decorations are white and light gray and the fixtures fine indeed. The windows are large, permitting a big display.

A. A. Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, was a visitor July 15.

The death of W. E. Dallwig, a pioneer seedsman of Milwaukee, which occurred Thursday, July 13, is recorded in the obituary column of this issue.

The trade got a half holiday Saturday, July 15, when Milwaukee turned out for the monster preparedness parade. H. J. S.

Nappanee, Ind.—July 1 was the day of Morton Gibson's return to his first love, the florists' business.

Stellarton, N. S.—The Stellarton Nurseries of L. McLaughlin & Sons were established in 1875. A general nursery and florists' business now is done and a new house 23x100 feet is in process of erection to increase the retail trade.

The Market.

The last two weeks have seen much of the summer lethargy, yet business has been good considering the season.

Outdoor crops are coming on slowly, the cannas and other heat-loving bedders being fully two weeks later than usual. Gladioli are holding the center of the stage this week and we have never seen so good an assortment in the stores. They are selling better, too, because people are not confined to one or two varieties. America remains the favorite with the buyers, but Baron Hulot is selling unusually well.

Roses are in good supply, fully as good as the demand. A few asters are making their appearance, but they are lacking in quality. Cosmos is blooming well for so early in the season. This flower cuts little figure in the market here, but it helps when there is a shortage. Gaillardias are beginning to be recognized in a small way as cut flowers. There are few flowers that can be used so effectively in decorations, especially where something out of the conventional is required.

Various Notes.

The Joys have their planting finished and are busy cleaning up. They have cut down the space devoted to American Beauty and also to red roses. They say that the tendency in this market is to demand pink roses.

J. F. Corbett has found outdoor roses so profitable for cut flowers that he planted a new block recently.

Mr. Alderson, who has been private grower for the Belle Meade estate, has accepted the position of manager of the Ward-Belmont greenhouses. He entered upon his duties last week. Mr. Johnston, who has been employed in various capacities in several of the leading establishments during the last ten years, has accepted the position formerly held by Mr. Alderson. Mr. Palmer, who formerly owned the Edenwold estate, has purchased Belle Meade.

McIntyre Bros. have their houses planted and are selling their surplus plants. They have things in good shape for the fall business. F. B.

Elkhart, Ind.—A large greenhouse and conservatory are to be erected on the renowned 800-acre estate of C. G. Conn. H. D. Seele, landscape gardener, is superintendent of the estate, which is one of the finest in Hoosierdom.

Greenhouse Heating.

TEMPERATURE IS NOT STATED.

I am mailing to you a blue print of my new greenhouse. Will you please advise me as to the best way of arranging the piping for a hot water heating system? The house runs east and west and is of first-class construction. It contains four benches.

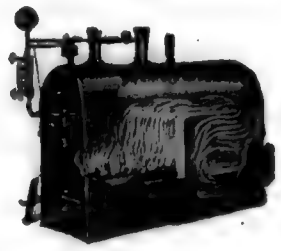
S. C. H.—N. Y.

The blue print shows a house 28x75. Its walls are six feet high, with 37-inch sashes in each. The boiler house and workroom are at one end of the greenhouse.

There is nothing either in the letter or blue print to indicate what temperature is desired in the house, but most houses are piped either for 60 to 65 degrees or for 50 to 55 degrees. We would suggest, therefore, for a rose house, the use of three 2½-inch flow pipes, running one about three feet below the ridge, and one of the others on each plate, or at the purlins. Connect these flow pipes with the return coils at the farther end of the house. Run three 2-inch returns under each of the four benches and place two on each side wall, below the flow pipe.

If a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees is desired, use three flows and twelve returns, placing two under each bench and upon each wall.

PIPING IN A MILD CLIMATE.



We have a greenhouse 18x85 and nine feet high to the ridge, with two and one-half feet of glass in the side walls. There are solid beds at the sides, to make the house warmer, and there is a bench in the center. We should like to have you tell us the best way to heat this house for carnations. The winters here are quite mild; the outside temperature seldom drops below 24 degrees, and then only for one night at a time. The winter temperature averages from 35 to 45 degrees at night. We are thinking of using four 3-inch blue-flame kerosene burners, under a boiler with water circulation. We do not wish to be up at night to attend to the boiler. Your advice will be highly appreciated.

M. N. T. P.—Ga.

We have had no experience in heating greenhouses under such climatic conditions as those mentioned, but we are confident that there will be no difficulty in maintaining a temperature suited to carnations if a 2½-inch flow pipe is run with a slight fall about two feet below the ridge and connected with six 1½-inch returns. Two of these should be upon each side wall, just below the plate, and the others under the middle bench. While we would use hot water circulation for heating the house, we cannot advise regarding the use of blue-flame kerosene burners, although we do not see why something of the kind could not be arranged.

ADDING A 2-ROOM HOUSE.

Can you give me any information about the new under-feed boilers made by the Williamson Foundry Co., at Oakley, Cincinnati, O., for greenhouse heating? boiler and stable, the main is connected, at right angles, with a pipe which runs to the hotbeds and the present greenhouse. I shall make some changes in the system, if by so doing I can save fuel and get better results. With the present piping the stable and garage are much too warm and there is no way to cut off the superfluous heat. You will notice that in the proposed 2-room greenhouse I want temperatures of 55 and 60 degrees, but the results will probably be satisfactory if the 60-degree section is piped the same as the 55-degree section, as the latter room has the colder exposure.

Can you tell me whether there is any demand for Lord & Burnham boilers that have been used? I have one which has been used only two years, but which I fear will be too small to take care of the additional glass.

boilers in question, but it would seem that the claims made for them have some foundation and that the boilers are adapted for the heating of small greenhouses.

The diagram shows the present greenhouse to be 20x35. Beyond it—that is, at the side of the range farthest from the boiler—is shown the proposed house, which will require a temperature of 60 degrees at one end and 55 degrees at the other. The proposed house will be parallel with the present one, but detached from it.

If the heat furnished to the present house is satisfactory, we would not advise any change, but we would put in a valve by means of which the heat furnished to the garage and stable can be regulated.

For the new house we would use 4-inch main flow and return pipes, and from the main flow we would take off three 2½-inch pipes as flows inside the house. If there is no glass in the side walls, we would suggest the use of nine 2-inch returns, placing three on each of the side walls and the others under the middle benches. One of the flows should be upon each plate and the other about two feet below the ridge. The difference in the exposure of the two ends of the house will probably make the 35-foot section about 5 degrees cooler than the other room.

While we have no one in mind who is looking for a secondhand boiler, a customer can undoubtedly be secured by using the advertising columns of The Review, at a cost of 10 cents a line.

WATER DOES NOT CIRCULATE.

Enclosed you will find a sketch which shows my boiler and the way in which it is connected with the piping in the greenhouse. It is a Wilks boiler. I tested the outfit today, but found that the pipes barely get warm and the water boils out of the 1-inch pipe on top of the expansion tank. Can you state the cause of the trouble and suggest a remedy? I cannot use the heating system in its present condition and I am anxious to get it in shape as soon as possible. L. A. W.—Miss.

The sketch shows two 1½ inch flow pipes running overhead, about forty inches above the top of the boiler. Each of these flows, presumably, feeds a return coil of five 1¼-inch pipes, which appear to be but little, if any, above the bottom of the boiler. The expansion tank is located seventy-eight inches above the top of the boiler and is connected with one of the main returns, as well as with the highest point in each of the flow pipes.

The only way in which it is possible to make water circulate in a system where the returns are on about the same level as the bottom of the boiler is to carry it under pressure. If the system is connected with a city water service, a safety valve may be placed upon the vertical pipe running up from the top of the expansion tank, and may be set at a pressure slightly higher than will be carried in the water system. A pressure gauge should also be attached at some convenient point in the system. There should be a shut-off valve in the pipe connecting with the city main, but this should be kept open. Care should be taken to allow any air which may collect in the system to escape through the safety valve. Another way would be to install a mercury generator to place the water in

The Market.

The middle of July finds us in the grip of a hot wave, and, aside from a little funeral work, there has been little business. The market is well supplied with all kinds of stock, although more good asters could be used to advantage. There are many of them too small. Roses are poor and their sale slow. While the few good carnations coming in are sold, there are quantities for which there is no demand even at low figures.

Southern-grown gladioli have filled the market and lowered the price far beyond the former figures, but even at low prices many were left unsold at the end of the week. Lilies have been in fair demand, but valley has had few calls. Quantities of outdoor peas, phloxes and hydrangeas are coming in, but they meet a small demand and a large supply of greens moves slowly.

Various Notes.

B. G. Merritt has a fine lot of Mrs. Russell roses for next season, but he has not entirely gotten rid of the rose midge, which caused much damage for him last season.

George Morrison is rearranging his heating system and putting new bars and glass on each of his four greenhouses.

John Symon has purchased the lower section of greenhouses owned by J. E. Bartell, on the York road, near Radnor avenue, and will run them in connection with his store on Eastern avenue. Walter, a brother, formerly with Andrew Anderson, will be in charge.

Lehr Bros. have finished planting their rose houses and have added Baby Doll, Prima Donna and Hoosier Beauty to their collection.

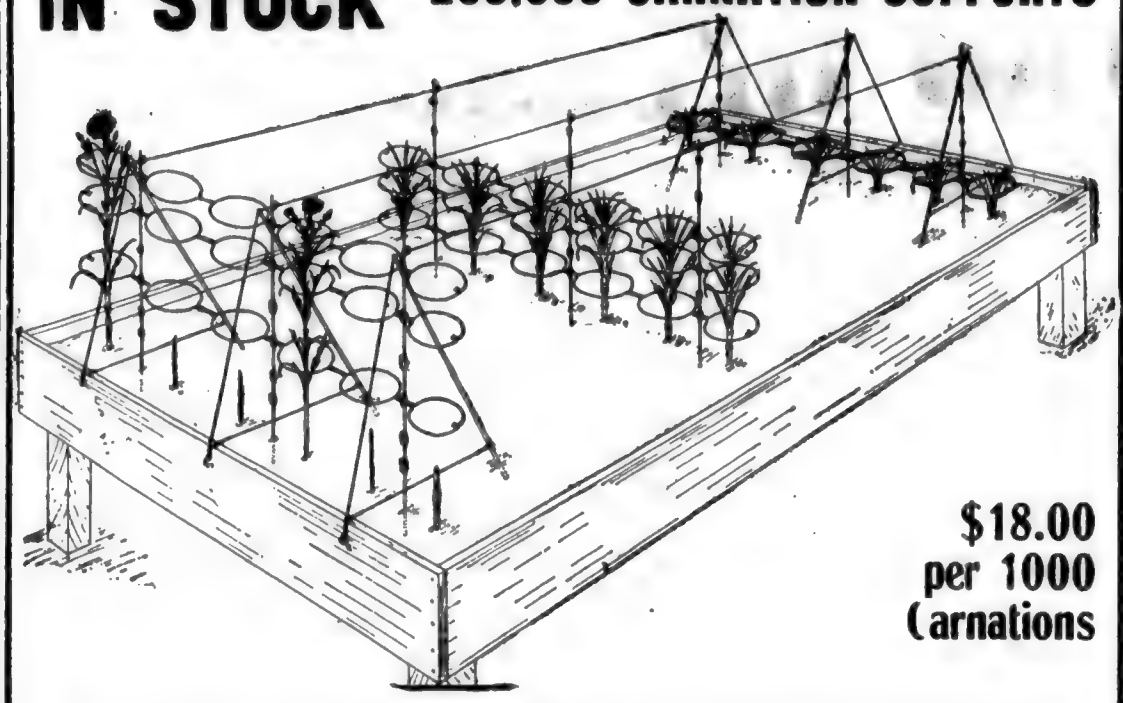
The auto parade held in connection with the Elks' convention was of little benefit to local florists, as only a few cars were decorated with natural flowers. W. L. Simmers had three cars and Edward Kress had one. Other than these, none have been reported.

W. F. Gude, of Washington, D. C., was in town in connection with the Elks' convention.

Lohr & Fritze have discarded Richmond and in its place have planted Hoosier Beauty and Hadley.

C. E. Akehurst, instead of planting out his carnation plants, has constructed a number of frames and grown his entire planting stock in 4-inch pots. The plants are in good shape and should prove much easier to replant than field stock. A number of seedlings are being grown.

L. B. Glick, of the Leo Niessen Co., is away on a two weeks' vacation.



Stevenson Bros. have finished replanting their rose houses and are trying out Sunburst for the first time. A fine lot of Mrs. George Shawyer has been planted.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Seidewitz and daughter, Adele, are attending the international convention of Rotary clubs, in session at Cincinnati, O.

A. A. Niessen motored down from Philadelphia last week, and, accompanied by W. E. McKissick, made the rounds of some of the firm's consignors.

Charles Schmidt, of Harrisburg, Pa., and C. A. Schaefer, of York, Pa., were in town last week. W. F. E.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

in this city. He is actively working for the organization and show. The California Dahlia Society, the other new organization, has elected the following officers: President, N. Durbrow; vice-president, William Kittlewell; second vice-president, Mrs. J. A. Scannavino; secretary, Mr. Vanderbilt. It is composed of both amateurs and professionals.

Various Notes.

B. M. Joseph has returned from an automobile trip to Lake Tahoe. His manager, F. J. Bertrand, hopes to get away this week for a trip north, and possibly east before returning. He says funeral business was active last week.

K. & M. Hannon have definitely decided to remain in the Sutter street store, which they occupied temporarily a few months ago when they moved from 1438 Polk street, where a new building was to be erected. As soon as it was learned that they did not want to return to the former location on Polk street, A. F. Lundberg, who had been conducting a shop at 1725 Polk street, arranged to take the new quarters. The place is nicely finished to suit the needs of the florists' business and Mr. Lundberg moved in July 8.

The E. W. McLellan Co. still is bringing in a fine cut of roses.

Mark Ebel, florist of Sacramento, Cal., paid the trade a visit last week.

The renovation of the Art Floral Co. store, on Powell street, has been completed and the appearance of the place is greatly improved. A new electric sign is being put up this week and the front of the store is being repainted.

About all the orchids available in the local market are coming from J. A. Carbone's place at Berkeley. He has been bringing in some fine specimens and will have a heavier cut within a week or so.

Podesta & Baldocchi have been shipping a good many orchids lately. Last week they sent a large order to Salt Lake City, Utah.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is back in town after spending some time at Byron Hot Springs, in Contra Costa county, where he recuperated from a bad attack of rheumatism.

Upon his return from Eureka, Cal., where he went to assist Charles Willis Ward during the Fourth, Frank Thatcher, with Pelicano, Rossi & Co., said the Eurekans had a fine sweet pea show as part of the celebration. Mr. Ward took first prize for the best bouquet and for the best float. S. H. G.

Webster City, Ia.—The Curtis Floral Co., which now has 24,000 feet of new glass, is preparing to put up a large addition this summer.

Minneapolis, Minn.—F. E. Boyes, until recently in charge of the greenhouses of the Lakewood Cemetery Association, leaves July 20 for his old home in England.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

As was to be expected, business is a little slow, though it has kept up well, considering the experience of former years. According to reports, there has been a considerable number of funerals.

Rambler roses have practically gone. Carnations are petering out and their quality is much inferior. The same is true of sweet peas. Valley is good for this time of the year. Some good outdoor snapdragons now are coming into the market and black-eyed susans are in their prime. The colors of this flower happen to be the colors chosen for Newark's anniversary celebration, and, for that reason, many of them have been used. There are fine callas and Easter lilies in the market. Each week sees a larger supply of gladioli—larger, better flowers. There are some asters coming into the market, but they are the greenhouse-grown variety and not overplentiful. Some of the florists are offering aster plants for bedding purposes. Roses are good for this time of the year and are moderate in price.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros. recently had a 3-room decoration consisting of black-eyed susans and oak foliage.

Edward Jacobi, of Irvington, reports a good business for the first six months of the year. He has great difficulty in procuring sufficient help, laborers of all kinds being at a premium at the time. Higher wages were offered, but even at that it was impossible to get all the help needed.

Fred Philips, of Philips Bros., has gone to Corson's inlet on an extended fishing trip. He will work his way down the New Jersey coast. When he returns his brother, Frank Philips, will go on a month's fishing trip.

William H. Witheridge remarked that while business has dropped off during the last few weeks, it still keeps up well in view of the fact that it is nearly midsummer. R. B. M.

Negaunee, Mich.—The Negaunee Greenhouses, established by the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co., have been leased to Frederick Nielsen, of Chicago. Mr. Nielsen will retain William Gilbert, Harry Harding and F. Harris in his employ. The business is a large one, having been established nearly twenty-five years, there being agencies in many towns in the peninsula. The nursery is not included in the lease.

The Sign of Superiority

The success of your greenhouse depends largely upon the results previously shown by the builder you employ.

Therefore, every grower should investigate the capabilities of the greenhouse-builder he selects for the job.

The above full iron frame, patented curved eave Metropolitan greenhouse was erected by us for Mr. W. W. Fuller, at Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y. This house is 26x100 feet, with an absolutely waterproof cement boiler cellar. It is divided into three compartments, which are separately heated and ventilated, and, being glazed with 24x24-inch glass, is extremely light. We also did the masonry.

The Market.

The Tri-City markets were rather quiet last week, but now and then funeral and wedding work gave periodical signs of business. Flowers are plentiful enough to meet all requirements, with the exception of carnations, which locally are practically out of the market. Garden flowers are plentiful. Gladioli are of good quality and early asters are arriving. Outdoor sweet peas were promising, but the hot, dry weather has all but ruined the crop. Other outdoor flowers also show the effects of the intense heat.

The Club Picnic.

A short business session of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held during the picnic at the Knees cottage on Rock river.

The outing proved a big success in every way and C. O. E. Boehm is winning local fame as a weather prophet, as it never rains on the day he selects for the picnic. He now is recognized as official weather man of the club.

Music, dancing and games were indulged in and every one of the 115 persons in attendance seemed to enjoy the day's outing to the fullest extent.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kranz, of Muscatine, Ia., invited the club for the next monthly meeting, August 10. The club members and their wives will make the trip in automobiles, leaving Davenport at 1:30 p. m. William Goos, W. C. Wilson and Edward Patten were appointed a committee to make the necessary arrangements for transporting the members.

Philip Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, was a visitor at the picnic, as well as H. A. Thomas, of Geneseo, Ill. J. Tukis, of Rock Island, was present and made application for membership in the club.

Various Notes.

E. F. Pauli, son of H. G. Pauli, and Miss Delphelia Kuehl, both of Davenport, sprung a surprise on their parents and friends July 7 by going quietly to Clinton and marrying there. Mr. and Mrs. Pauli will occupy a new home that is being constructed. In the meantime they will reside with the parents of Mr. Pauli.

Harry Bills, of Davenport, has a new touring car. A. F. Hotkinson, connected with the H. Gaethje greenhouses, also has a new car, equipped with a self-starting device. W. G.

Vern L. Schluraff, of Erie, Pa., reports a rush of funeral work, with many general orders for cut flowers and decorations.

Business in general at the places visited was good and gave strong promise of a continuation of prosperity during the fall. Most florists have had their best year in a long time, and a good many of them are now enjoying the fruits of their labor in various restful ways—some camping, some at seaside resorts and others staying at home, taking it easy. GLEN COVE, N. Y.

A sweet pea exhibition was held in conjunction with the monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society at Glen Cove on the evening of July 12. Although the exhibits were not numerous, they were of good quality and made an excellent display in the exhibition hall. James MacDonald, Henry Gibson and Ernest Westlake acted as judges. Henry Gaut, gardener for Herbert L. Pratt, was awarded first prizes for twelve varieties of sweet peas, twelve sprays of each, for six varieties of sweet peas, twelve sprays of each, and special mention for a collection of herbaceous flowers. James McCarthy, gardener for W. Kimball, was awarded first prizes for twenty-five white, twenty-five pink, and twenty-five red sweet peas, and second prize for six varieties of sweet peas, twelve sprays of each. The society's prizes for twenty-five white, twenty-five pink, and twenty-five any other color, were captured by Henry Gaut. It was decided to hold the annual chrysanthemum show in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, November 2 and 3.
James McCarthy, Cor. Sec'y.

Sayre, Pa.—Edward Snow comments that while spring sales were good, being better than in previous seasons, the supply of stock showed the trade was just a little optimistic, devoting all attention to working up stock and none to working up orders. There is a surplus of all kinds of bedding stock, but especially of geraniums.

TANKS AND TOWERS

For big water tanks, the sort that are put up on towers, there is nothing to it but Cypress. No other material lasts so long and does the business so well. Steel tanks do not in any way compare with Cypress. They have to be painted every little while or they rust out. Not so with Cypress; the wood takes paint well, but it lasts practically forever without it.

WOODEN TOWERS LAST

It is a foolish notion that tank towers have to be made of steel. Cypress towers carry their loads as well as steel; they last as long as steel and don't cost half as much. Don't let anybody fool you regarding the Cypress tower—it is a first-class article.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

THE SUMMER WINDOW FROM THE INSIDE

How do you look at your summer window, from the outside, as the public sees it, or from the inside, as the salespeople see it? In other words, is the window a help in selling? Does it in any way influence those who pass to enter and buy?

AT the recent convention of the American Association of Nurserymen President Welch, from Iowa, in the center of things, where they have the broad view, got off this little preamble: "The new era of business has come upon us with a rush of energy that no century has shown before; just as men are men, so times are times." And times change, change rapidly. The trouble is, all men are not able to change with them.

The point is that where once a florist might have been justified, in midsummer, in neglecting the sales-making qualities of his window and decorating it only for the curious, today conditions are so different that never, not even in summer, should selling ability be passed unconsidered.

Show Flowers.

Every retail florist who has given even the slightest study to the subject of window decorating has discovered, from experience if not otherwise, that there is a great difference in the commercial values of certain classes of decorations: One will bring the people into the store to buy, while another will merely cause the curious to comment. Of course the ideal is the decoration that causes talk as well as causes immediate sales. Sales, and the sooner the better, can be conceded to be the chief object sought.

In considering the character of decoration to be used at any time, it probably will be admitted by all that a window display to sell flowers must show flowers; it would be too much to expect that anyone would enter a store because of a window display to ask for something not shown in it. Consequently, if we expect our windows to sell flowers, we must show flowers. In olden times, speaking of time as it passes in this trade, it was the fashion for the fine retail stores along Broadway in New York (most of them are on Fifth avenue now) to discontinue the display of cut flowers in their windows July 1 and for two months to show specimen ferns. There was, of course, some danger that persons who did not pause to read the sign would mistake the place for an undertaker's shop, but it is no unusual occurrence for an undertaker to be asked his price for the plant in his window!

Are the Ducklings for Sale?

Also it is of record that a Chicago retail florist once sold complete the Japanese garden shown behind his plateglass, and many a retailer has had inquiries as to "What will you take for two of the ducklings" in the summer window, from people who realized that they were not regular items of stock.

It simply goes to show that even in summer, when the demand for flowers admittedly is at low ebb, the principal feature of a window decoration might better be the things one has for sale. How many people, after having seen water windows in different kinds of stores, can tell which one was at the florist's? What profit is it to attract the attention of the multitude if nothing links that attention to the merchandise?

In a certain city at this moment there are two water windows in one block. The florist has a well constructed pile of moss-grown rocks with a rill of water flowing down from the heights to a pool in the center, turning a millwheel on its way. There isn't a flower in sight, scarcely a plant.

A Window with a Message.

On the adjacent corner a music house has a lake scene, with pond lilies and fish in the water; there is a canoe with a man and a woman, the man paddling, the woman running a phonograph! The turntable of the machine carries a record and is revolving, actuated by a concealed electric motor; it seems to be playing, you will note. At one side is a neatly lettered sign calling attention to the value of music on a summer's outing and stating the price of the outfit shown. That's advertising; it's linking the eye-catcher with the selling force; it actually makes sales.

With rare exceptions flower store summer windows fail to do it.

Few Flowers Needed.

The first objection the florist makes is that in summer cut flowers will not keep in the window; that he cannot afford the use of the necessary quantities with frequent changes. And that leads to another point in window decorating: The average florist puts far too much stock in his window. At Philadelphia the first Sunday of the recent National Flower Show, one of the best stores was observed to have, on a velvet drape in its window, a good selection of vases and flower bowls, the tallest vase having just one rose, a perfect specimen, and one of the bowls was filled with sweet peas. The store was closed, but there was sales force there; the writer could go straight back to that store, but he doesn't remember one from another the places that use their show windows for the storage of cut flowers.

No, quantity is not necessary in cut flowers for the window, not nearly so valuable as inherent good taste and artistic ability.

Think It Over.

But it is not for want of stock that the average florist falls short on his summer window; it is because of failure to weigh and hitch up the sales force at his command; it is because the average florist considers the uniqueness of his idea and resulting picture rather than the selling qualities his display possesses; it is forgotten that nowadays flowers and plants are salable every day in the year if the florist chooses to push for it.

How to Plan the Center.

This letter and the accompanying photograph, reproduced herewith, came from a southern city, where there is, perhaps, the maximum excuse for summer neglect of sales possibilities, although it is in winter one of the best flower-buying communities in the United States:

"For the benefit of readers who may be interested in an attractive, inexpensive summer window display, we are sending you a photograph of our window as it appears at the present time.

"Crowds are constantly attracted, during the day, commenting favorably on the coolness of the atmosphere which it suggests during these sweltering summer days. The brook running under the bridge and emptying into a pond containing goldfish, water lilies and other aquatics, lends an air of coolness in itself; then there is the imaginary breeze that operates the windmill, although in reality it is driven by a small electric motor on the inside; an ordinary small electric fan is used for this purpose by removing the blades and substituting a small wooden, grooved pulley one and one-fourth inches in diameter.

"The bridge, buildings, etc., are made of heavy cardboard and painted to represent stone and plaster. The mill also is of cardboard, with wood braces inside which hold the mechanism. The balcony and wings are of wood, about one-eighth of an inch in thickness, stained antique. The roof of the mill is imitation of red tile.

"Great care should be taken to have the buildings, figures, animals, etc., in proper proportion, or as nearly so as possible.

"The background, with sunset sky coloring, is painted with water colors on cotton cloth. The elevation of the ground is a staging of wood and wire netting covered with green moss. A galvanized iron tank 4½ x 7 feet, with a depth of ten inches, serves to hold the water in the pond, with a 1-inch outlet in the corner. The tank is hidden inside and outside with rocks and green moss. Small crotons, fancy caladiums and various ferns are used between the rocks in front of the pond. Euonymus, tall crotons, boxwood, arborvitæ and araucarias are grouped on the sides. No palms are used in the whole setting."

The Summer Window from the Outside—Is it a Flower Store?

Not a word, you will notice, about the display of what the retailer has for sale, nothing to show that it is a flower store even, for the ferns and things would be as likely to appear if the display were in the music store.

But now the decorators will think it over and will have no difficulty in making the window advertise the dollar box, the special sale of gladioli, or the day's supply of long-keeping Russell roses.

HOTTES GOES TO COLUMBUS.

The College of Agriculture of the Ohio State University, at Columbus, O., is undertaking to develop the work of instruction in floriculture in a more elaborate way than has been possible in the past. It has not been possible to give this work the consideration it deserves, owing to the lack of proper facilities. The new horticultural building, with its excellent greenhouse equipment, now makes it possible for the college to take up this work and put it on a firm basis.

Alfred C. Hottes, of Cornell University, has been engaged to take charge of the development of the work in floriculture. Since 1914 Mr. Hottes has been instructor in floriculture at Cornell University. He is enthusiastic regarding the possibilities of floriculture in Ohio and goes to Columbus with the heartiest recommendation of Dean L. H. Bailey. He is a member of the nomenclature committee of the American Gladiolus Society and is a contributor to Bailey's Cyclopedia of Horticulture. Mr. Hottes' appointment will be welcomed by the large floricultural interests of the state.

HOOSIERS HOLD OUTING.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana held its annual summer meeting at Winona Lake, Ind., July 18 and 19. Quite a few members took advantage of the program of sports and entertainment arranged by the Winona outing committee, consisting of J. D. Conner, of Wabash; Fred King, of Winona Lake, and Wm. Terrell, of Warsaw, and enjoyed themselves at Indiana's principal summer resort.

At the business meeting, held at Raike's hall on the afternoon of the first day, S. H. Young, of Casey, Ill., and A. W. Herre, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, were elected to associate membership. The secretary reported the association in good financial condition and collections for the Anna Jarvis Mothers' day fund totaling $133. The members were all gratified to hear that part of the equipment of Purdue University will be devoted to floricultural experiments and the following committee was appointed to coöperate with Prof. Woodbury and Prof. Sayre, of the Department of Horticulture, and to arrange for this year's experiments: F. A. Dorner, La Fayette; Jos. H. Hill, Richmond; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis; Fred Heinl, Terre Haute, and John Hartje, Indianapolis.

The August meeting was suspended and the date for the September meeting set for Thursday evening of State Fair week at Indianapolis. A letter from A. Rasmussen, New Albany, inviting the association to visit his plant in October, was read. August R. Baumer, of Louisville, was present as a special emissary of the Kentucky and Louisville florists to arrange for a joint meeting of the two societies. The invitation was heartily accepted and the details left to the officers to arrange, the joint session to be about the second week in October, at which time a special car will carry the Indiana delegation from Indianapolis to Louisville.

After the business meeting the usual boat ride took place, followed by a banquet at the Winona hotel. Nothing but praise can be accorded the Winona assembly for the high-class entertainment furnished. The Apollo Concert Co., of which Mr. Backmeyer, formerly an employee of A. Wiegand's Sons Co., Indianapolis, is a member, was the feature of Wednesday's program. All returned sore physically but well repaid for the two days' visit by the renewal of old acquaintances and the making of new friends. A. F. J. B.

CARNATIONS

WHICH SOIL IS PREFERABLE?

We have some soil in which we wish to plant carnations, but we fear it is too light a loam. It was the only soil we could get in the spring, when we procured it, but now we have an opportunity to get a heavy loam from which a big crop of clover has just been cut. Which soil would you advise us to use? As good decayed manure is difficult to get here, what would be the best kind of fertilizer to mix with the soil?

D. W. L. & S.—Pa.

If you had plowed the clover field in May, put on a good covering of stable manure and plowed it again in the first part of this month, I would advise you to use that soil for your carnations. But, inasmuch as you do not seem to have had an opportunity to do anything toward preparing it, I doubt whether it would be wise to start at this late date. You could hardly expect to get it into first-class shape, except for extra late planting. If you have prepared the light soil properly, there is no reason why you should not grow good carnations on it, if the lightness is caused by an admixture of sand. It will require a little more feeding than the other.

There is no substitute for manure, except in a limited way. If you will take plenty of time to prepare your soil with green cover crops, you can use sheep manure, bone meal, etc., so as to dispense with the stable manure almost entirely, but it will require more time to do it. If you want to prepare your soil in a few months, you must use stable manure to put the humus into it. It is not necessary that the stable manure be rotted, when mixing it with the soil, if you will take a few months for preparing your soil. I have never yet seen the place where stable manure could not be procured if the proper effort were made long enough in advance.

FOREST SOIL IS UNSUITABLE.

Will you please inform me whether leaf-mold taken from the woods and put in the benches would be a satisfactory carnation soil? How soon should I plant the carnations in the benches so as to start cutting the blooms early? Which are the best whites and best reds to grow? I shall be thankful for any information you can give me, as this is my first season's experience in growing carnations. L. A. H.—O.

It is rather late to begin preparing your carnation soil for this season's planting. Soil from the woods is not at all suitable for carnations and I would not advise you to use it. What you need is a good medium loam, with a heavy sod growing on it. This, however, should have been plowed not later than last fall, so as to give the sod time to rot. I would advise you to select some good garden soil, which has been under cultivation and properly fertilized. If it is fairly rich, it will do without any additional fertilizer, but, if you deem it advisable, you can give it a dressing of sheep manure at the rate of a peck of the manure to each yard of soil. Work this over thoroughly and let it lie three to four weeks before using it. After the plants are established, you can give the necessary food in the shape of mulches and dressings.

White Wonder is our best paying white carnation. Matchless is a better shipper, but will not give quite as many blooms. There is little difference in quality. Beacon is the biggest Christmas cropper in the reds, while Champion is the best all-season variety.

WOOD ASHES IN THE SOIL.

I am making a compost heap and have my soil already hauled—a pretty good, medium heavy, clean, virgin loam. I have access to nice, clean hardwood ashes, bleached or unbleached, at $1 per load. How much of the ashes should I mix with the soil, and what value have the ashes as plant food, in comparison with animal manure at the same price per load? Could I eliminate the animal manure altogether or should I use some of both? I am growing carnations, mums, roses and a general line of other stock. Please state, also, what value hardwood ashes would have outside on a field on which tomatoes, corn, potatoes, etc., are to be grown. When should the ashes be put on, and in what proportion? G. J. T.—Tenn.

The principal elements in wood ashes are potash and lime. Potash, nitrogen and phosphoric acid are the three principal elements that make up a complete fertilizer. We are further told that most soils are plentifully supplied with potash. Hence, unless the other two elements are added in sufficient quantities to reduce the proportion of potash materially, the addition of potash will prove of no benefit. The lime in the wood ashes would act in the same way as lime applied in any other form. It would serve to liberate plant food more freely and would help to sweeten the soil.

You will see, for the reasons mentioned, that you cannot expect to substitute wood ashes for animal manure. The animal manure is needed for the nitrogen content and also for the humus, which enables the bacteria to work properly. Phosphoric acid is added by the use of bone or acid phosphate.

Unless you feel sure that your soil is deficient in potash, I would suggest that you do not apply the wood ashes until after the plants are established in the benches. Then, if the growth seems flabby and the stems weak, give one or more applications of the ashes, scratching it into the soil lightly before watering. This will harden the growth and stiffen the flower stems.

The foregoing statements hold good outdoors as well as in the greenhouses. There is not much danger of overdoing the wood ashes, but to apply them when not needed would be wasted effort. If they are needed, apply them before plowing, so as to get them mixed with the soil. A. F. J. B.

ARE THEY THE CHAMPIONS?

Down in Paducah, Ky., there reside two keen students of lost motion in routine work. They are L. Weiss and H. F. Droste, two growers, who came out of Germany, landed in Kentucky and then proceeded to show their speed. By eliminating all the unnecessary hand and arm movements in benching carnations, for instance, Messrs. Weiss and Droste have hung up the record of benching 3,000 carnations in an hour and fifteen minutes, which is 2,400 plants in one hour for the two men. Messrs. Weiss and Droste do not consider themselves the only pebbles on the beach, but if any two men can beat the record they will have to move lively.

Mr. Weiss and Mr. Droste are employed by Schmaus Bros., of Paducah, who operate one of the largest and most up-to-date ranges in the Blue Grass state. The accompanying illustration shows the working force of the places that use their show windows for the storage of cut flowers.

No, quantity is not necessary in cut flowers for the window, not nearly so valuable as inherent good taste and artistic ability.

Think It Over.

But it is not for want of stock that the average florist falls short on his summer window; it is because of failure to weigh and hitch up the sales force at his command; it is because the average florist considers the uniqueness of his idea and resulting picture rather than the selling qualities his display possesses; it is forgotten that nowadays flowers and plants are salable every day in the year if the florist chooses to push for it.

How to Plan the Center.

This letter and the accompanying photograph, reproduced herewith, came from a southern city, where there is, perhaps, the maximum excuse for summer neglect of sales possibilities, although it is in winter one of the best flower-buying communities in the United States:

"For the benefit of readers who may be interested in an attractive, inexpensive summer window display, we are sending you a photograph of our window as it appears at the present time.

"Crowds are constantly attracted, during the day, commenting favorably on the coolness of the atmosphere which it suggests during these sweltering summer days. The brook running under the bridge and emptying into a pond containing goldfish, water lilies and other aquatics, lends an air of coolness in itself; then there is the imaginary breeze that operates the windmill, although in reality it is driven by a small electric motor on the inside; an ordinary small electric fan is used for this purpose by removing the blades and substituting a small wooden, grooved pulley one and one-fourth inches in diameter.

"The bridge, buildings, etc., are made of heavy cardboard and painted to represent stone and plaster. The mill also is of cardboard, with wood braces inside which hold the mechanism. The balcony and wings are of wood, about one-eighth of an inch in thickness, stained antique. The roof of the mill is imitation of red tile.

"Great care should be taken to have the buildings, figures, animals, etc., in proper proportion, or as nearly so as possible.

"The background, with sunset sky coloring, is painted with water colors on cotton cloth. The elevation of the ground is a staging of wood and wire netting covered with green moss. A galvanized iron tank 4½ x 7 feet, with a depth of ten inches, serves to hold the water in the pond, with a 1-inch outlet in the corner. The tank is hidden inside and outside with rocks and green moss. Small crotons, fancy caladiums and various ferns are used between the rocks in front of the pond. Euonymus, tall crotons, boxwood, arborvitæ and araucarias are grouped on the sides. No palms are used in the whole setting."

The Summer Window from the Outside—Is it a Flower Store?

Not a word, you will notice, about the display of what the retailer has for sale, nothing to show that it is a flower store even, for the ferns and things would be as likely to appear if the display were in the music store.

But now the decorators will think it over and will have no difficulty in making the window advertise the dollar box, the special sale of gladioli, or the day's supply of long-keeping Russell roses.

HOTTES GOES TO COLUMBUS.

The College of Agriculture of the Ohio State University, at Columbus, O., is undertaking to develop the work of instruction in floriculture in a more elaborate way than has been possible in the past. It has not been possible to give this work the consideration it deserves, owing to the lack of proper facilities. The new horticultural building, with its excellent greenhouse equipment, now makes it possible for the college to take up this work and put it on a firm basis.

Alfred C. Hottes, of Cornell University, has been engaged to take charge of the development of the work in floriculture. Since 1914 Mr. Hottes has been instructor in floriculture at Cornell University. He is enthusiastic regarding the possibilities of floriculture in Ohio and goes to Columbus with the heartiest recommendation of Dean L. H. Bailey. He is a member of the nomenclature committee of the American Gladiolus Society and is a contributor to Bailey's Cyclopedia of Horticulture. Mr. Hottes' appointment will be welcomed by the large floricultural interests of the state.

HOOSIERS HOLD OUTING.

The State Florists' Association of Indiana held its annual summer meeting at Winona Lake, Ind., July 18 and 19. Quite a few members took advantage of the program of sports and entertainment arranged by the Winona outing committee, consisting of J. D. Conner, of Wabash; Fred King, of Winona Lake, and Wm. Terrell, of Warsaw, and enjoyed themselves at Indiana's principal summer resort.

At the business meeting, held at Raike's hall on the afternoon of the first day, S. H. Young, of Casey, Ill., and A. W. Herre, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, were elected to associate membership. SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Dianthus.

There are some beautiful members of the dianthus family. All are low-habited and quite hardy, and they flower freely each year. The most popular is the old, delightfully scented mound or spice pink. D. plumarius, procurable in a variety of colors and easily propagated from layers, divisions and cuttings; Her Majesty, double white, and Napoleon III, double crimson, are all good border varieties.

D. barbatus, the well-known sweet william, is usually treated as a biennial, but lasts for several years. The seed should be sown now, in order to have strong flowering plants next June. Specially fine varieties are Sutton's Scarlet, Sutton's Pink Beauty, which has been given several other names, such as Newport Beauty, and the true auricula-eyed type. In a mixed packet of sweet williams almost every plant will be distinct. For bedding or mass effects separate colors are preferable. Dianthus diadematus, the diadem pink, is another free and persistent-flowering variety. Of the smaller-flowered varieties adaptable for borderings or rock gardens, the several forms of D. deltoides are fine. D. carmineus is even better; in fact, it is the finest of all the border pinks. Its rich, rosy pink flowers are produced in perfect sheets and it rivets attention at once in any garden.

Aconitums.

Not so well known as the delphiniums, but fully as stately and striking when well grown, are the aconitums, or monkshoods. The bulk of the species flower in late summer, when the delphiniums are on the wane. One or two varieties bloom extremely late, but A. bicolor blooms as early as June, bearing blue and white flowers. A. Napellus is the best known variety. There are several colors of this, varying from pure white to the darkest blue. These are at their best in August and September, and under specially favorable conditions they attain a height of eight or nine feet. A. Fischeri, with pale blue flowers in September, is quite dwarf, only attaining a height of two to three feet. A. Wilsonii, one of the newest varieties, is also a September and October bloomer. Its flowers are violet blue. It is of vigorous habit and attains a height of six feet in any good garden soil. The aconitums are all splendid for cutting. They have better keeping qualities than the delphiniums. They can be propagated from seeds or divisions of the roots.

Iris Germanica.

Much better results would be achieved if the planting of irises were done earlier than is customary. The usual plan is to wait until October, November or April, but, while the German irises are accommodating subjects and withstand much neglect and abuse, if they can be transplanted in August they will give vastly better results than when the work is delayed until colder weather or until spring. They are among the perennials which flower with many people for Memorial day, but quite apart from that they are splendid perennials either in solid beds, in masses, or dotted in mixed perennial borders. Some fine varieties are now being raised by hybridization and there are great possibilities for improvement in this line. The following varieties are not new and are inexpensive, but are thoroughly reliable: Glory of Hillegom, I. pallida Dalmatica, Mme. Chereau, Mrs. H. Darwin, Bridesmaid, Queen of May, I. flavescens, I. Florentina alba, I. aurea, Gracchus, Princess Victoria Louise and Duc de Nemours. There are many other fine sorts, but the foregoing are all dependable. The pallida selection is unquestionably the best.

Miscellaneous Irises.

The new race of intermediate irises, crosses between I. Germanica and the dwarf I. pumila, flower earlier than I. Germanica, are dwarfer and produce flowers varying in color from pure white to clear lavender. They are well worthy of trial. Iris orientalis, violet blue, and I. orientalis Snow Queen, pure white, producing spikes two to three feet high in June, are splendid irises for the border. They also do well in low, swampy ground. They are splendid for cutting; so is the Siberian iris, I. Sibirica, which can be had in pale blue, deep blue and pure white colors.

All these irises are of easy culture and will grow and flower satisfactorily in sunshine or shade, in dry or moist land. For early flowering the little I. cristata and I. pumila should always be planted. Too few florists appreciate the value of Iris Anglica and I. Hispanica for cutting. Both are perfectly hardy and, being inexpensive, they should be planted much more widely. In clumps in the herbaceous border they are effective. The Spanish iris flowers a week earlier than the English. The flowers of the latter are larger and carried on stouter stems. Both are splendid for cutting.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

CANNA LA FAYETTE.

Speaking of cannas, we have been particularly impressed with the novelty La Fayette. We have a 6-foot bed of this canna in our trial planting, and, while it is rather early to come to definite decisions, it certainly seems to be far the best red canna with green leaves that there is in commerce. We have added some fifty varieties to our test of 100 varieties we grew last season, including most of the new varieties, and we feel we are in position to judge something of their merits. Floyd Bralliar.

"ALL ABOARD FOR TEXAS."

Did I hear every florist who reads this say that? If not, why not? We want to see all of you in the land of sunshine and plenty. We want to show you our beauty and our greatness. Do not say it is too hot, too far south in the summer. Nay, verily. We have no sunstrokes or heat prostrations in Texas. Even our soldier boys 400 to 600 miles farther south have no sunstrokes. They always have an ocean breeze in Houston, so cut your way out over the heat, pack your grip and come; let us show you we make good hosts.

Besides, the fast increasing demand for plants and flowers here makes it imperative for us to get together and as a body adjust our grievances, talk over excessive freight charges, overappraisements for taxation and some unnecessary laws our legislative bodies are making and will make, as though the greenhouse stock created diseases and disseminated insects and pests that stalked forth as vultures upon everything living upon the face of the earth. Preparedness is the word. So let us get together as the S. A. F. should do, as a body, and unite upon a fixed purpose to protect and improve ourselves as a body.

Come on, you florists, and tell us how you so easily become millionaires and men of so much leisure! Look over our shortcomings and give us brotherly advice as to how and what to do. We expect all of you. We know a great many southern florists will be here, but we want to see you men from Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Washington, etc. Do not disappoint our expectant brothers.

Come and see the flora of the south. Look at our rice and sugar plantations, orange and fig orchards, cotton, wheat and corn ranches and cattle that cover thousands of acres; see our forests, where the sound of the ax has never been heard. Besides, Houston is one of the best little cities in the U. S. Test the hospitality which knows no bounds. Everything will be yours. You need not ask for it, but just help yourselves.

See Galveston, an adjacent city, the second import city in the U. S. as to value. See her sea wall, her fine beach, the finest in the United States; water warm, surf mild, slope gentle, space unlimited and free from sharks!

We cannot show you a Bunker Hill, but we have the San Jacinto battle ground, dear to every old Texan, where Texas won her freedom.

Do not worry over the war; Mexicans never will cross the border. Neither will your coming or going be interrupted by Uncle Sam's moving troops. The passenger service has never been and will not be interfered with in any way.

The S. A. F. convention always has been held in the east until last season, when it went west, and this year, when it comes to God's country, in the great state of Texas, city of Houston. We are your colaborers and you owe it to us and to yourselves, and to the society, to come and let us reason together for our mutual benefit. Besides, we want to meet you personally, and to let you know we are your friends.

Besides all this, the towns, the products, the customs and our Jim Crow law will all be of interest to you. Come and see us where we do not lock our houses, sleep in the open, share the hospitality and chivalry of the typical southern man in his own home. We want to have you meet our beautiful wives and sweethearts, whom we all love and admire as we do our mothers.

Houston will take care of you and we country florists will be on the job also, making you thrice welcome. We will send you home with pleasant memories and a longing in your hearts to leave the frigid north and come where sunshine eternal reigns and flowers never cease to bloom.

Sherman, Tex. H. O. Hannah.

THE ADVANCE GUARD.

The advance guard of the S. A. F. army which is preparing the August invasion already is in Texas, as the accompanying illustration shows. John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., annually spends the month preceding the convention in the convention city, arranging the details, and Martin Reukauf is there calling on Texas customers and arranging for the Bayersdorfer display at the convention. The photographer caught them on the beach at Galveston, described in the publicity stuff as "the playground of all Texas." It is only fifty miles from Houston. Secretary Young had just completed a tour of northern Texas and reports southern hospitality as living up to its reputation.

MUMS IN THE SOUTH.

During the hot summer months, in the south, chrysanthemums require much attention. They will take at least one good watering every day and several sprayings. The idea is to keep the atmosphere in the house quite damp and so avoid all wilting of the foliage during the hot part of the day. In using the spray it always is well to spray from every walk. If you continually spray from one side you will find that the foliage on the plants on the far side of the table will become puny and the flowers later will be deficient in substance. Any black fly on the plants must be got rid of by spraying with one of the nicotine solutions. See to it that as the plants grow they are kept neatly supported and not allowed to fall over and become crooked.

The first week of August is a good time to do some fertilizing. For this purpose I like to apply, first, a liberal sprinkling of bone meal, followed by a top-dressing of lime, and then an inch or more of cow manure that is not too old. The lime will make the bone meal available in sufficient time to benefit the opening buds. Fertilized in this manner, the beds will require but few liquid applications after the bud is taken. L.

PAINTING GREENHOUSES.

This is the time of year when greenhouses can be painted with the least inconvenience, since many of the houses are being prepared to receive plants now growing out of doors. Labor can also be transferred from other work to painting with the least possibility of neglecting more important duties.

The first consideration is the paint itself, because if the material is inferior, poor results may be expected. Labor constitutes perhaps eighty per cent of the cost and it is therefore obvious that the materials must be the best obtainable, in order to postpone repainting for the longest possible time.

A paint for greenhouses should be made especially for the purpose, as this class of work demands many qualities not found in ordinary exterior or interior paints. First of all, it should produce a pure white, glossy surface, or in other words, one that will enhance the lighting. A paint film of this character will insure a stronger growth and a greater abundance of blooms. A glossy surface will also shed water and dirt more easily than a paint with an eggshell or flat finish.

Next, a greenhouse paint should protect the sashbars, providing they are wood, from mold or mildew, which, if permitted to form, will not only darken the interior, but in time will cause decay. Good paints designed for greenhouse work contain a certain percentage of a chemical which prevents fungous growths.

The paint should also have sufficient body so that one coat will answer for repainting jobs. It should brush out easily, so that the work can be done speedily. In the event that the paint is too heavy, thin to a working consistency with turpentine.

Whether of iron or wood, all gutters, posts and spouts should be painted once a year to prevent deterioration. A paint having a refined asphalt base is best adapted to either wood or metal. One coat should be applied with a heavy brush, being careful to fill all cracks and to cover the surface thoroughly.

Paint prevents rust on steam pipes and stacks; therefore they will last longer and look better if kept well painted. Either an asphalt or graphite paint of the heat-resisting type may be used for this purpose.

Don't spare the paint. Use it freely, for it costs less in the long run to keep your buildings painted than it does to permit them to remain unpainted. One takes pride in the character of flowers and plants he grows and he should take the same standpoint regarding the appearance of his buildings.

A. J. Howe.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Nearly every man has a hobby. S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, Mass., specializes in carnations, but grows geraniums and fuchias to standard shapes as a hobby—a profitable hobby, when $15 per pair is not an unusual figure for plants 1 year old. The approach and residence were adorned with these, which also formed an avenue leading to the greenhouses. Several varieties are grown, but Mr. Goddard informs me that J. J. Harrison makes the finest specimen. The fuchsias reminded me of the grand specimens grown by the Robert Craig Co. and seen only before the Craig group was staged at the National Flower Show at Philadelphia. I noted a beautiful specimen of Acer Negundo variegatum near the Goddard residence. Mr. Goddard pointed out some land adjoining his property, which he had purchased as a result of the excellent business and market conditions during the last season. Carnations were looking fine; Matchless, Sensation, Benora, Beacon, Nancy and his own crimson, Doris, will be the standard bearers in the fall campaign. Pink Delight will be seen in smaller quantity.

J. T. Butterworth, of Framingham, is a lover of antiques and points with pride to his first house, built in 1848 and apparently good for an indefinite period. "It was the foundation of our orchid business and the key to our success," observed the genial founder, whom I found enveloped in a Turkish robe. An invitation to inspect the choice collection of orchids was irresistible, and when one considers that this is a commercial and not a private establishment, greater credit is due the grower, who is ably assisted by his son, George. I cannot go into detail as to the description and merits of the various gems in the orchid family flourishing there, but my good old friend, H. A. Barnard, of Stuart Low & Co., London, once said he would like to send a grower over to get some points on orchid cultivation, and Walter Gott, of Sander & Sons, St. Albans, on a recent visit exclaimed: "Ach, Friend Butterworth, but you are some grower!" From this our confreres can imagine what may be seen on a visit to some of the oldest houses in New England, which contain the finest and choicest orchid stock that can be grown.

H. L. Crandell, of Glens Falls, has no "kick coming." He is one of the most sanguine members of the craft.

Henry Bensel, of Ballston, N. Y., recently remodeled the front of his range, adding an office and workroom twenty-five feet square. It is an attractive addition to the block of houses adjoining.

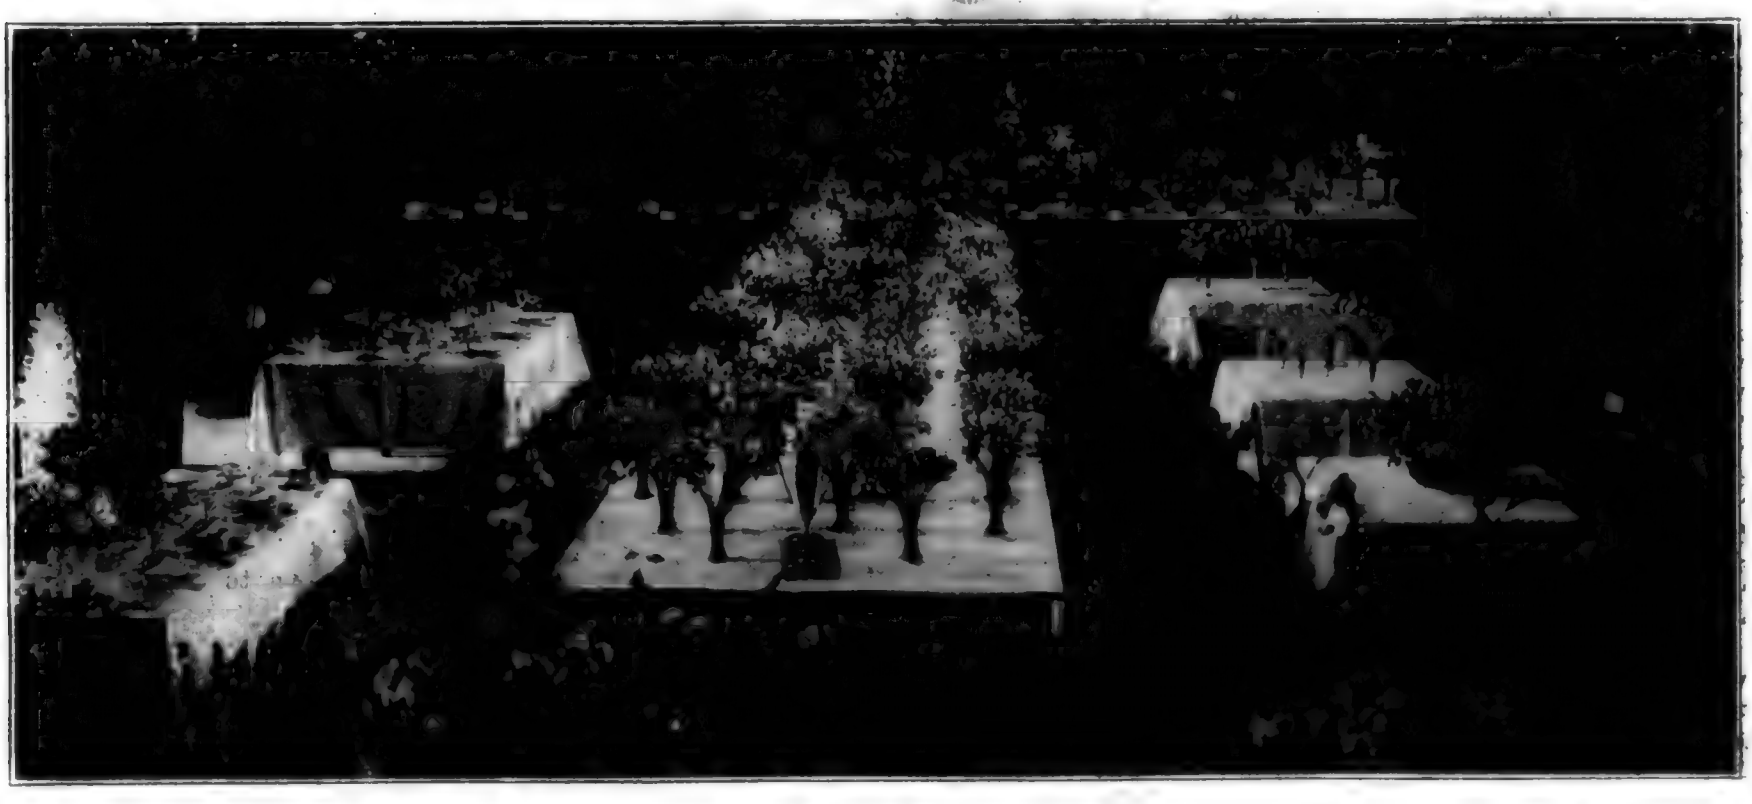
Mathews & Varney, of Schenectady, N. Y., have dissolved partnership. G. W. Mathews remains with the new concern, to be known as the Mohawk Greenhouses, which have been reorganized under the most auspicious conditions.

Julius W. Eger, a Schenectady man, has added a nursery to his flourishing business. The location of the land is fine for advertising purposes.

The Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, has had fine displays of Spanish irises. These have been popular this season.

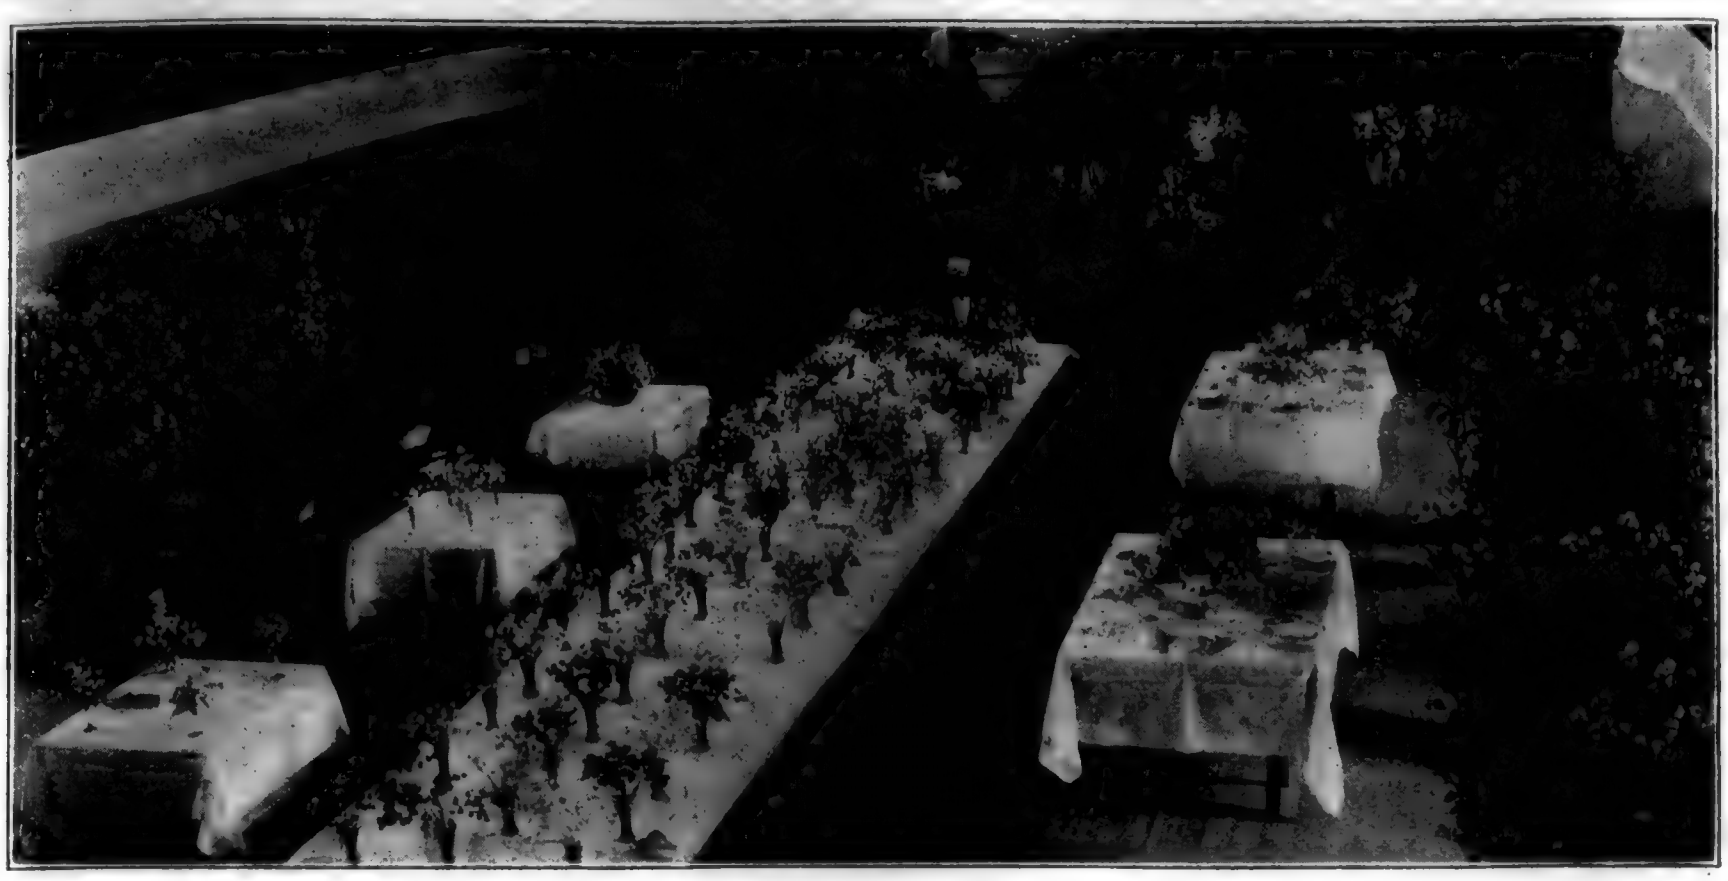
W. M.

IS IT THE RECORD SWEET PEA?



Here is a sweet pea that is claimed as the record. It is the variety Fiery Cross that already held one record, W. Atlee Burpee having paid more for the original stock in England than ever before had been paid for a sweet pea novelty. The specimen illustrated was grown by Victor May, gardener at The Reef, Newport, R. I., and exhibited befor the Newport Horticultural Society July 11. The 18-inch stem carried ten blooms, the fully developed flowers being two inches across. Mr. May received a certificate of merit for culture.

BOSTON.



The Market.

The supplies of cut flowers are greatly reduced as compared with those of a week ago. The demand, however, is comparatively light, but nearly sufficient to clean up arrivals. The markets present a holiday-like appearance. Many stands are deserted and quite a few growers are sending in nothing at all. Roses have shortened up materially and the quality has declined. Fewer young roses than usual are being planted this season, owing to the difficulty in securing labor and then the expense of the labor. Such roses as are arriving clean up tolerably well, the bulk making 50 cents to $4 per hundred. There is a decided slump in the supply of carnations and there are eager inquiries for asters. The few asters arriving from outdoors have readily realized $2 per hundred, but the wet weather in early summer caused heavy losses in plants.

Sweet peas are deteriorating in quality; continued rains have badly damaged many of them. Gladioli are arriving from outdoors, chiefly Pink Beauty and America. Gypsophilas, sweet sultans, cornflowers, salpiglossis, cosmos, stocks and other outdoor flowers are seen. Lilies and valley sell slowly. Some nice speciosum and auratum lilies are arriving and prove useful in window decorations. There is a fair supply of Cattleya Gaskelliana, Dendrobium formosum and other orchids.

The Bar Harbor Sweet Pea Show, Reported Last Week, With the Display of Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Across the Back.

View of the Bar Harbor Sweet Pea Show, Reported Last Week, Looking Toward the Stage.

Owing to the frequent drenching rains we have had right through the present summer, many growers report heavy losses in the fields of asters and carnations. One grower reports the loss of 20,000 asters and others who used low land are also suffering heavily.

Various Notes.

The principal event of local horticultural importance this week is the annual picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, to be held at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 27. There are no less than twenty-eight athletic events on the list of sports, including three baseball games and one soccer football game. An excellent list of prizes has been secured and only fine weather is needed to make the affair a pronounced success. W. J. Kennedy will act as ringmaster, P. M. Miller as starter and W. N. Craig as clerk. Umpires for baseball and football games are Frank Edgar, A. K. Rogers and J. P. A. Guerineau. The judges are Eber Holmes, F. E. Palmer, Charles Holbrow, Robert Cameron, J. G. Duguid, W. J. Patterson, H. H. Bartsch, W. C. Rust, W. H. Judd, A. K. Rogers, George W. Hamer, Frank Edgar and Kenneth Finlayson.

George Dunn, of Galvin's Park street store, is spending his vacation in Maine. Patrick Moran is at Cape Cod; Thomas Welch in New Hampshire and William Henderson at Nantucket. Mr. Galvin is at his cottage at Nantucket. Half the employees now leave at 5 p. m. and the balance at 6 p. m. Closing hour Saturdays now is 7 p. m. Galvin's had all the elaborate decorations for the national convention of the A. O. H., which had headquarters at the Copley Plaza hotel.

At the store of Patrick Welch I noted fine bunches of the newer astilbes, such as Ceres, Philadelphia, Pink Beauty, etc. Gladioli now are coming in heavily. Many outdoor ones are coming from B. Hammond Tracy's farm. Walter Smith, of Welch's force, left this week for a vacation at Seal Harbor, Me. Mr. Welch is on a visit to Montreal.

N. F. Comley, of Burlington, has received 40,000 roses this week, which he will use in filling up some of his houses. The Boston Cooperative Market the coming season will be strong on roses, with such prominent growers as Thomas Roland, William Sim, N. F. Comley, W. H. Elliott, the Budlong Rose Co., Robert Montgomery and W. R. Morris shipping their entire cuts here.

Carbone reports an excellent summer business at both the Boston and Hyannis stores. Seymour Grose, cut flower buyer, left July 22 for a vacation at Southport, Me. F. W. Pettitt, of the store force, has gone to Plattsburg, N. Y., for a month of military training.

The Halifax Garden Co. is busy replanting carnations and has discontinued shipping all flowers but roses.

Fiery Cross Sweet Pea.

Of these they still have nice flowers of Hadley, Ophelia and Killarney Brilliant.

White Bros., of Wilmington, and Robert Montgomery, of Natick, are among the earliest shippers of asters to the local wholesale markets.

George A. Hamer, the courteous and popular assistant manager at the Flower Exchange, started on his annual vacation this week, which will be spent mainly along the Massachusetts north short.

Miss Beatrice Wishinski, bookkeeper for H. M. Robinson & Co., left July 22 for her vacation, part of which will be spent at Manchester, N. H., and the remainder at Bar Harbor, Me.

W. A. McAlpine, of McAlpine & McDonald, is feeling quite elated. It is a bouncing boy, born July 22.

Stephen S. Green, a prominent salesman at the Flower Exchange, started on his vacation July 24, to be spent at Chebeague island, Casco bay, Me.

The New York Florists' Club has invited members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston to join them on their trip to the Houston convention, leaving New York August 9 on a steamer of the Southern Pacific line. Round-trip tickets, including all steamer and railroad charges, but not meals on trains, cost $80. At present it looks like a small representation from here to Houston.

Joseph T. White, late of Doyle's staff in Boston, now is managing John H. Stalford's fine store for the summer at Bar Harbor, Me., where a splendid business is being done. The annuals and perennials shown here are wonderfully fine.

At Welch's, 280 Devonshire street, gladioli now are a great feature. Business has settled down to a midsummer basis.

Penn's duck pond continues to attract crowds of visitors. July 22, one of the hottest days of the summer, they were standing seven deep, almost blocking entrance to the store. Henry Penn reports a good volume of summer business.

The Twin City Florists and their Families on their Annual Outing, Held July 19, at White Bear Lake.

Robert Laurie, for some time greenhouse manager for R. & J. Farquhar & Co., at the Dedham nurseries, left July 25 for Mentor, O., where he will assume the management of the Mentor Nurseries. Mr. Laurie's many friends wish him every success in his new position.

Local gladiolus specialists are making every effort to have a record-breaking exhibition when the American Gladiolus Society meets in Boston, August 11 to 13. Thanks to the copious and frequent rains, gladioli this season are wonderfully vigorous.

Bar Harbor, Me., is one spot where window boxes are largely used. Geraniums are the favorite plants, but I noted lobelias, petunias, marguerites and other flowering plants. John H. Stalford, of the Malvern Greenhouses, at Bar Harbor, informed me that he had filled and sold 5,000 feet run of window boxes this season.

I regret to say that Jackson Dawson's health does not show any improvement. Mr. Dawson, while in his seventy-fifth year, has hitherto always been remarkably active, and he is much missed by Arboretum visitors. We all hope he soon will be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Miller returned July 25 from a visit to Bar Harbor and Kennebunk Port, Me.

The Welch Bros. Co. will vacate its present quarters during the summer and will locate, until they can find a suitable street floor site, below P. Welch's, 262 Devonshire street.

The Houghton-Gorney Co. keeps its windows attractive all the time. July 22 I noted pleasing arrangements of salpiglossis, sweet sultans, gladioli, lilies and nymphæas.

Mr. Rosenthal, of the Boston Cut Flower Co., reports satisfactory summer business, with excellent orders for funeral designs. W. N. Craig.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Twin-City Outing.

The Twin-City florists' picnic was the big feature of last week. The annual outing was held at Wildwood, White Bear lake, July 19. As this year the choice of the grounds favored St. Paul, Wildwood was selected, and it proved an ideal picnic spot. The Minneapolis crowd had two chartered cars, leaving Minneapolis at 8:50 a. m. Two chartered cars carried the St. Paulites, leaving St. Paul at 9:45 a. m. The St. Paul crowd arrived at the grounds and had things in readiness when the Minneapolis cars arrived. On arrival lunch baskets were disposed of and the sports program was carried out. As the weather was favorable, swimming and boating were freely indulged in and the various places of amusement were well patronized. Dancing was continued until 9 o'clock, when the last of the picnickers were homeward bound. Everyone had an enjoyable time and all pronounced it a rattling good day.

OBITUARY

William Thomas Logan.

William Thomas Logan died at his residence on Brighton street, Rochester, N. Y., July 19, at the age of 67 years. He had been identified with the seed business of Rochester for more than thirty years. During part of that time he was connected with James Vick's Sons and with Mandeville, King & Co., and later he was manager of the retail seed store of Crosman Bros. Co., on East Main street. Eighteen months ago he purchased the seed business at this store, but retained the Crosman name, and found it to be a profitable business. He was a deep student and had a profound knowledge of the seed trade, and hundreds of citizens are grateful to him for valuable information and advice which he kindly supplied. Many business men have spoken of his integrity and his high business ideals. To his family, his social circle, his church and the city his death is a distinct loss. He was identified from boyhood with the Second Baptist church and held many church offices, especially in connection with the Sunday school. For several years he had served the church as its treasurer. He lived in Rochester all his life. His wife died about eight years ago.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Herbert Rust, July 21. There was a wonderful display of flowers, including a beautiful wreath sent by the Rochester Florists' Association. The body was cremated, in accordance with his special request. It is understood that the business will be discontinued, as there is no one in the family to carry it on. He is survived by one brother, George W. Logan, manager of the National Casket Co., Boston, Mass., and by two sisters, Mrs. Isabella Scott, of New York, and Miss M. Frances Logan, school principal in Rochester.

H. J. H.

Michael Donohue.

Michael Donohue, for more than a quarter of a century employed as a gardener at Roger Williams park, Providence, R. I., died at his home, 114 Althea street, Saturday, July 15, after a week's illness. He was born in Ireland in 1855 and while a young man he crossed to this country and settled in Cumberland, Me., where he married Miss Margaret Kenney. He removed to Providence thirty-two years ago and was engaged all that time in gardening.

W. H. M.

Robert W. Hutchinson.

R. W. Hutchinson, aged 53 years, for many years a landscape gardener for the Pennsylvania lines, west, died suddenly July 18 while at Palm Beach, Fla. Mr. Hutchinson was born at Terre Haute, Ind., in 1862. In 1881 he was employed by the railroad as brakeman, but four years later he was appointed gardener. He had resided in Sewickley since 1886. The body was brought to Sewickley for burial.

G. M. Roney.

George M. Roney, of Roney Bros., of the Harmony Road Greenhouses, at West Grove, Pa., met a tragic death July 21. He was working under his boiler, when one of the sections fell over against him in such a way as to break his neck. Death evidently was instantaneous. Roney Bros. have long done an excellent business, mainly in a wholesale way, and have enjoyed a reputation for thoroughly good stock and honest dealings. George M., who was the younger of the two brothers who constituted the firm, is succeeded in the business by Albert. The deceased was born in 1864, was in good health and will be greatly mourned by a wide circle of friends.

The Market.

The florists reported business exceedingly dull last week, with little demand for cut flowers outside of funeral work. The weather has continued extremely hot, the government thermometer registering 93 degrees in the shade. Several prostrations from heat were reported of men employed in the different greenhouses of the city. The hot weather has not improved the general quality of cut flowers, particularly greenhouse-grown stock. The roses open too quickly. Carnations are scarce and of small proportions. Short roses are plentiful, but the local market is dull and the shipping trade is only slightly better.

Easter lilies are in good supply and their quality is fine. There also are excellent giganteum and auratum lilies in the market. Gladioli are beginning to predominate and are coming to the market in every variety. Asters are improving in quality and are more plentiful. It is reported that the local dahlia crop will be poor and small. Outdoor flowers continue to arrive in large quantities and they are of good quality.

Vacations are in order at present and many of the local florists are away on lake trips.

Various Notes.

S. Hudson, the orchid expert with W. J. & M. S. Vesey, will return from Washington, D. C., this week. Mr. Hudson has been superintending the packing of the orchid plants which Will J. Vesey, Jr., purchased from George Fields. The last car of orchids arrived July 17.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are benching the young rose and carnation stock. They are cutting good Shawyer roses and Easter lilies.

W. L. Rundles returned to this city last week from Champaign, Ill., where he received his degree of bachelor of science in landscape architecture at the university. Mr. Rundles has the honor of being the first Indiana man to receive this degree.

David S. Vesey, associated with Alex. W. Collier, has started a new moving-picture theater.

Robert E. Davis, the gladiolus specialist of 3000 Bowser avenue, is sending some handsome specimens to the local market.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Markey are expected home this week from Whitmore lake, Mich., where they have been visiting relatives for the last two weeks.

Miss Mildred Flick, in company with her aunt, Miss Clara B. Flick, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., is planning to leave the first part of August for an extended northern lake trip. Miss Helen Patten, of Toledo, O., who has been away a month on a trip to the Pacific coast, has returned home.

The Flick Floral Co. has filled a large order of palms and ferns for the Country Club house.

H. Wright, of the Wright gladiolus farm, is bringing in some excellent cut blooms.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

A FLORIST is known, not by the company but by the customers he keeps.

SOME florists never find out which side their bread is buttered on until they drop it.

IT has got so that many people consider the fact that a concern is advertising in The Review as a good credit reference.

THE medical men nowadays do not rely as much on nostrums as on pure air, pure food, the right food and right living. The plant doctors would do well to take a leaf out of the same book.

THE Agricultural Appropriation bill, as amended and passed by the Senate, contains an item of $3,000 for coöperation with horticultural organizations in the standardization of botanical names.

THERE is a much larger production than usual this summer of outdoor flowers grown by the trade for cutting. Excellent profits made last summer have caused many to plant outdoor stock for their own retail trade and for wholesaling. Thus far sales have been ready, but prices have not been high.

THE florists' supplies houses have every confidence in a record season, for which their preparations are well under way. Factory facilities at home have been developed to produce the stock which can no longer be imported and foreign lands that are open have been drawn on heavily. The supplies men are believers in the power of advertising to sell goods and are urging the retailers to let the public know about the fine accessories now provided with flowers and plants.

HONORABLE MENTION.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper. Among those who have this week enrolled themselves for more than one year in advance are:

THREE YEARS.

Lutz. E. L., Boonville, Ind.

TWO YEARS.

Crockford, H. W., Winthrop, Mass.
Forest Hill Gardens, Richmond, Va.
Valley Greenhouse Co., Sewickley, Pa.
Sinclair, E., Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.
Brandlein, M., Indianapolis, Ind.
Worth, H., West Lafayette, Ind.
Schaefer, W. A., Platteville, Wis.

The Review stops coming when the subscription runs out. The green notice with the last copy tells the story; no bills are run up; no duns are sent.

THE REASON FOR IT.

A great many people, including publishers in other lines of trade, have expressed surprise at the large number of letters The Review receives like these:

Please take out my ad until further notice; I had to send back several orders this week, one of them a large order.—Clarence Alwine, Aldan, Pa., July 19, 1916.

Please discontinue my ad; one insertion cleaned me out.—Wise Adkisson, Greenville, Tex., July 19, 1916.

But the reason is simple and plain. Here it is:

Enclosed find check for $3, for which send me The Review for the next three years; I can't do without it. I have tried two other periodicals along our line, but I hold The Review above all. —Ernest L. Lutz, Boonville, Ind., July 17, 1916.

That's why when you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The annual gladiolus exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society will be held in Horticultural hall, Boston, August 11 to 13. The schedule has been completed and a copy may be had for the asking. Those desiring to make trade exhibits should advise the undersigned at 538 Cedar street, Rochester, N. Y., stating the number of square feet of space required. Displays are limited to 150 square feet, for which there will be no charge.

In class 87 the Garden Magazine offers an "achievement medal," not the "Garden City Magazine," as stated in the schedule.

Henry Youell, Sec'y.

OHIOANS TO SHOW GLADIOLI.

The fourth annual exhibition of the Gladiolus Society of Ohio will be held in the assembly rooms of the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., Friday and Saturday, August 18 and 19. Premium lists will be mailed to members and to intending exhibitors on request. Those who expect to enter stock for exhibition should notify R. E. Huntington, chairman of the executive committee at Painesville, O., and state the number of vases or the space desired.

MacNIFF CASE REPLY.

The cable from London brought word early this week that the British government has at length made formal reply to the President of the United States, who protested at the delay in the mails caused by the British censorship, citing as an instance the losses of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., of New York, because of the non-arrival of shipping documents covering imports of plants. In an official announcement it is said:

"The MacNiff company complained of the loss of perishable goods owing to the detention by the censor of shipping documents relating thereto. The British government states that so soon as the matter was brought to its attention it arranged to have a special mail bag for shipping papers, which would be immediately censored, so that no delay would occur."

After detailing other cases, the note continues:

"The specific complaints do not support the general charge against the efficiency of the British censorship. * * * His Majesty's government will always be ready to explain in detail the working of the censorship, as there is nothing regarding it which they wish to conceal. Many complaints, when examined, proved to arise from badly directed letters, the irregular sailing of neutral mail boats and other causes entirely outside the control of His Majesty's government and are often due to the action of enemies."

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Newark, O.—E. S. Brown, trustee for Miller Greenhouses, in bankruptcy, will sell at auction July 29 all the assets of the going business. The land and buildings are appraised at $12,000; the eight houses, containing 25,000 feet of glass, have been planted up and are ready for autumn.

Independence, Mo.—S. Bryson Ayres has filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. He schedules liabilities of about $4,300 and only a few dollars of personal property as assets. Of the liabilities $2,500 is a judgment obtained by the father of a minor employee who was injured while operating Mr. Ayres' automobile. A dozen creditors in the trade have claims aggregating $1,800.

Boston, Mass.—A dispatch to the Globe for July 20 said: "The O. H. Dickinson Seed Co., Springfield, Mass., has been petitioned into bankruptcy at the instance of three creditors whose claims amount to $511."

CHICAGO.

The Market.

A week of even greater heat than that of the one preceding has had the effect of placing the market in fairly good condition. Whereas, there was a surplus of stock last week in practically all of the standard lines, the unrelenting intensity of the heat has at last curbed production in a marked degree. Carnations are received in such negligible numbers that they are no longer worth considering. So close are supply and demand under present conditions that a cool day now and then would place the whole market on the short side. All this, however, does not mean that business is unusually good; it means only that there is enough business to take care of nearly all the available supply, without much waste, and that average prices therefore are considerably improved.

Some fairly good short and medium

You will find AT AMLING'S a good supply of Summer Flowers

IT IS AN OLD-FASHIONED and out-of-date idea that people will not buy flowers in summer—we know, because our customers are selling increased quantities each summer. So we arranged for a large supply, this summer, of the best quality possible under the conditions, and we can supply YOU as well as those already ordering of us.

GIGANTEUM, $10 00 per 100 LILIES AURATUM, $1.50 per doz.

These offer the largest show for the money any flower will make in summer. You can use them for almost every purpose, and you will do well to carry some always in stock, as we do.

FANCY ASTERS

In spite of the dry weather, that has ruined many a crop, we offer good Asters—long stems, large, full flowers, grown under irrigation; all colors. We shall be glad to have you try them, for we know you will want more.

FANCY ROSES

You will find it easy to keep up a summer business if you use such Roses as our Russell, Milady, Sunburst, Ophelia, Ward, Brilliant, etc. We have the largest supply of Roses in this market, the largest in America. Quality excellent for the time of year.

FANCY GLADIOLI

Our Glads are grown by a specialist—a grower who grows for cut blooms only—they are not the by-product of a bulb-grower. Consequently, we have the best cut flower varieties only.

A NOVELTY

length Beauties are reaching the market and sell well. The heat has, however, hurt rose stock in general. The greater part of the stock that is being sent to the market is arriving too open. Though the quality of Russell has deteriorated in the last few days, it is still the best rose in the market. Sunburst, too, is proving a good summer rose. As to Ophelia, there is a difference of opinion. Some maintain it pops open under pressure of hot weather; others just as stanchly assert that it does not. Killarney Brilliant and Milady are good summer sellers, the latter in spite of the old belief that red is not a hot weather color.

Perhaps as a result of the dearth of hot weather weddings, valley is inclined to drag. Easter lilies, on the other hand, are in better demand as a natural consequence of the shortening in other lines. A larger number of funerals than usual last week placed cattleyas well on the short side. Sweet peas are about done for, though a few are to be found on the market. Daisies, too, are receding into the shadows. Snapdragon moves well. According to some growers, the supply of gladioli has been reduced about forty per cent by the heat. The fact remains that whatever reaches the market is moved. Garden flowers, particularly gypsophila, are moving well. Asters are still far from numerous and sell readily; the heat and drought have done great damage to the plants. Dahlias are yet scarce. Auratum lilies may be had in limited quantities.

Greens, of which there is an ample supply, are moving slowly. Plumosus is more than abundant.

The Prospect.

The wholesale houses that months ago planned for the summer now are preparing for a record August business. The first part of July was nothing to brag about for anyone, although some of the wholesalers scored excellent gains in sales by reason of an unusual supply of stock, but last week conditions changed and July is ending with the market exceptionally strong for this time of year. The heat and lack of rain have worked havoc with most of the outdoor stock, with the result that many are buying who had expected to use their own asters, etc., and they find the market not heavily supplied, so that the demand for roses and almost all other flowers is putting prices above the usual summer averages. Those who have roses in some quantity for August are looking forward to the best August they ever have experienced, in spite of the fact that there will be more roses in this market than in any previous August.

Various Notes.

The only peonies still in cold storage are those of Klehm's Nursery. The quantity put up was about the same as last year, but the cut was about ten days later than usual. Kyle & Foerster say there still is an excellent demand, but that the last of the crop will not be sold until late in August. W. P. Kyle, in his new Mercer, and Joseph Foerster, in his big Moline-Knight, with their families, drove to Crystal Lake July 23 and visited Frank Schramm.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, is receiving congratulations on the birth of his third grandson, July 24. The new member of the firm is the third son of E. B. Washburn, of Pasadena, Cal.

A quartette of retailers, L. R. Bohannon, of the Bohannon Floral Co.; Victor Bergman, of O. J. Friedman's; Lewis Bunt, of the E. Wienhoeber Co., and Walter Adams, started into Wisconsin last week on an outing, their progress being marked by the stream of souvenir post-cards sent home to their friends in the market.

Last week John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., spent a couple of days at McHenry, Ill., where John Miller extends the glad hand to all florists who visit the lakes and his greenhouses. Mr. Michelsen says he considers business to have been better during the last fortnight than during any similar protracted hot spell in the history of this market.

Next week work will be begun on enlarging the George Wienhoeber store. When the alterations are completed the place will be L-shaped, with an entrance on Monroe street as well as on Wabash avenue. It also will be the largest of the downtown stores, with nearly 1,500 square feet of space on the street floor.

That the year to come will be the best in the history of the Chicago market, and of the florists' trade generally, is the belief of H. Van Gelder, president of Percy Jones, Inc. Mr. Van Gelder says he bases his belief on the fact that the people generally are more fully employed than ever before.

At the A. F. Amling greenhouses a careful cost and income account is kept. Each section is charged with the labor and material used in it and with its proportion of the general expenses. On the other hand, it is credited with every flower cut. Consequently it is known with fair exactness what each flower costs and there is no guesswork about which varieties pay and which do not. As a result, this is a place of approximately half a million feet of glass in which only seven varieties will be grown for next season.

That it will be the middle of August before the last of the peonies in cold storage are cleaned up is the belief of Erne & Klingel.

An automobile trip to Lard lake, Wis., will be enjoyed next week by George Kaspar, 4005 West Twenty-sixth street.

One day last week A. E. Hunt, of Evanston, left his new automobile, that he has had but a few weeks, standing in front of the Atlas block. A stranger got into it and started north. A rather exciting chase resulted, but the winding roads of Lincoln park proved too much for the police and Mr. Hunt is still looking for his car.

Another man in the person of George Gobel has been added to the store force of the John Kruchten Co.

After suffering most severely with a sprained ankle, D. D. P. Roy is again able to be in his office.

A door has been placed in the north wall of Zech & Mann's salesroom, which gives the store both a Wabash avenue and a Randolph street entrance. Allie Zech returns from his vacation July 30. Joe Eringer then takes a two weeks' outing.

It has been found necessary to increase the palm department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill., by the addition of four houses, 24x200 feet each. H. M. Oeser and his assistants have been working seven days a week since the arrival of the Belgian imports, retubbing and arranging them. Thomas Conlin, head of the plant department, has 9,000 6-inch mum plants coming on for the fall trade. Miss Gertrude Miller has returned from a week's vacation and Miss Irene Rowley is enjoying a week's outing.

An information and service bureau has been established in the office of the A. L. Randall Co., with Miss Agnes Corrigan in charge. Miss Salina Joyce

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has been having real summer weather. The temperature has been in the upper eighties all the week and the continued hot weather is showing on the carnations and roses, which were good until this week. Trade generally has been good for the season and has continued fair in spite of the hot weather. The stock consists largely of roses, orchids, carnations, asters and gladioli, the latter including some good Panama, America and King, besides quantities of others not so good. Good lilies also are coming in.

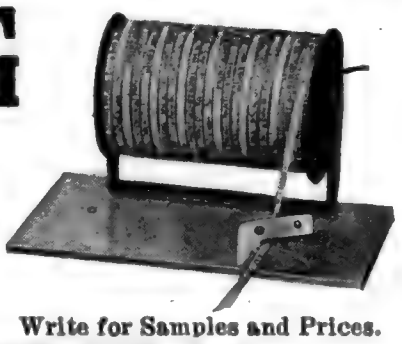
Sewickley district. As prearranged, George Wessenauer and his committee met the 9:20 train from the city and escorted the visitors to Wessenauer's, the Florist. Shortly afterward fourteen automobiles, carrying seventy-five enthusiastic gardeners, with Messrs. Thompson and Curren on a motorcycle in the vanguard, set out for the acres of H. R. Ree, the first of the many estates to be visited. After everybody had admired the Italian garden and the beautiful ornamentals, the party proceeded by auto to Franklin Farms, then the estates of J. Stewart Brown, Mrs. W. Thaw, Henry Lee Mason, Jr., and Mrs. Elizabeth Horne. At the Horne place, where M. Curren is gardener, the crowd was treated to refreshments. At this point Neil McCallum, at the behest of the president, spoke of the coming show to be held next June in the Duquesne Garden. The Garden Club of Allegheny County is to "bear all the burden," financial and executive, of the show.



The repast was followed by visits to several other fine estates in the district. Later in the afternoon, while passing through a shady trail, the entire party bivouacked and partook of more refreshments. T. P. Langhans introduced William Allen, of the Homewood cemetery, who spoke further on the June show. After Mr. Allen's speech a vote of thanks was tendered to all who were connected with the day's entertainment and the secretary was instructed to write to the proprietors of the places visited, thanking them for the courtesy. The J. B. Oliver grounds were visited last, from which place each member of the party followed his own trail to his own home. Thus ended the most successful field day ever held by the club.

Various Notes.

All who employ laborers, and especially florists, will begin to find some relief in the labor question, as the ammunition factories are completing their orders and dropping hundreds of men, many of whom are already accepting jobs that cannot pay more than half the money they have been receiving.

Robert W. Hutchinson, gardener for the Fort Wayne railroad, died suddenly, Tuesday, July 18, at Palm Beach, Fla. Further details are given in the obituary column.

Samuel Capes and a party of friends are at Atlantic City watching for sharks.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ludwig are staying at Crystal Beach and seeing the sights around Buffalo, N. Y.

Albert Vick has just returned from Rochester, where he has been visiting his father, Fred Vick, who has been seriously ill for some time.

Jacob Gerwig left to spend some time with his family, who have been at Conneaut lake the last month.

Ray J. Daschbach met with a painful accident July 22, but it is expected he will be out in a few days.

Frank Kilgallen will spend the next two weeks in Cleveland and Canton, Ohio.

Karl Doelker leaves Monday for Mount Leon, W. Va., for two weeks.

A. W. Smith, Jr., and family are motoring to Atlantic City to spend a part of their vacation. Clarke.

New Castle, Pa.—The dedication recently of a New Castle lodge building of the Elks brought a windfall of decorative orders to some of the florists.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The extreme heat makes it difficult to get enough good flowers for the orders when they come. This does not mean that all good flowers bring full price, for they don't; but then, when a ripple of business ruffles the calm of the summer sea it is often difficult to get together the stock of good grade. Asters are coming in more freely; they are much in demand when good, but the average quality is not up to the mark. Gladioli are late—extremely late, fully three weeks behind time. The quantity is increasing, augmented, curiously enough, by some greenhouse-grown stock, with the probability that high tide will not be reached until August.

Easter lilies continue an important factor. There are lots of them and they sell about as well as anything else. Kaiserin and My Maryland are the mainstays in roses; some good flowers of both are offered. Valley has been disappointing. The quality of some of the stock fully merits this brief comment, though some of it is all right. The rest of the market will be passed without further description, excepting to say that quite a little business is done with the other flowers in the list, but no one of them is as important as those mentioned.

A Complete Change.

For the busy man—The sunken garden in Fairmount park has been turned into a lily pond.

For the commuter—A prominent seedsman is authority for the story that the position of landscape gardener at Fairmount park, so well filled by the late Ogilsby B. Paul, had been accepted by a man whose name is more closely identified with polo than with plants. This story gained ground when our brightest, though perhaps not most responsible, horticultural writer came out in an article to the effect that you could not be a landscape gardener in Fairmount park unless your grandpapa was a somebody, and that after all it was not your fault who your grandpapa might have been.

The office of the commissioners of Fairmount park was tried without complete success, so to Horticultural hall itself the inquirer went. There was an atmosphere of work about the office of the landscape gardener in Horticultural hall, Fairmount park—work and cordiality and, pardon my saying it, reticence. It seemed perfectly clear, however, that Samuel N. Baxter Tree, commissioner of the city, is chief of the department of horticulture pro tempore and that the position of landscape gardener has not been filled and possibly may not be filled. Through the courtesy of Mr. Baxter and of Xavier Eschmitt, under whose direction the work was done, I am able to give the following details. To them Mr. Eschmitt would have added a full list of the water lilies, had that been desired.

The sunken garden stretching from Horticultural hall to Belmont avenue, a distance of over 800 feet, for many years has been planted with tropical and soft-wooded plants in various designs of striking color combinations. Today it is a pool of water, thirty-four feet wide and nearly three feet deep. The sides and ends are of concrete, stone-capped; the bottom is of natural soil. The water is fed from a series of pipes from the city main, that can be turned on or off at will. There is no overflow, the water naturally draining from the bottom. There are 140 nymphæas in the pool, comprising some forty tender and hardy varieties, some of them choice. They are all planted in boxes and are just coming into bloom.

The sides of the sunken garden are laid out in carefully planned flower borders, chiefly of hardy perennials,

Cut Flower or Funeral Basket No. 230

Always Put in Front--WHY?

¶When a certain line of goods is always put in front, and shows an unbroken record of increasing sales for the past five years, there must be more than one "reason" for it. The finest sales organization or the cleverest advertising ever devised will not keep a line in the front unless it has other merit back of it than just being a good line. As a matter of fact, there are "reasons" why this line of baskets is always in the front.

¶Here they are: Costly Appearance—Low Price—Practicability—Easy-filling Qualities — Originality — and other reasons too numerous to mention. But these are the main causes for the unchallenged leadership of the Neidinger Baskets.

Don't fail to see our new line which our men are now out with—better than ever.

which are designed to give continuous and changing color effects. There are early tulips, May tulips, rhododendrons, Wichuraiana roses, digitalis, campanulas, retinosporas, etc. The position of each variety is planned with extreme care. The effect of the whole is of a lake in a garden.

The loyalty of those who have carried out this plan, understood to have been made by Mr. Paul last year, causes them to point out that it is a type of ever-changing beauty that can never tire. It is intended to be a permanent rather than a temporary arrangement. Personally I have some doubts regarding the innovation. The lake will be beautiful for possibly two or three months in the year, but it cannot hope to rival the garden beyond that time.

Recent visitors included George Asmus, of Chicago; Carl Baum and Mrs. Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn.; W. W. Gibson, with the Idle Hour Nurseries, of Macon, Ga.; J. J. NEW YORK.

The Market.

There has been another week of intense heat, depressing humidity and lack of demand for cut flowers, except for funeral pieces. The market now is called upon to absorb the ever-increasing shipments of asters and gladioli. Prices at this date already are down to the midsummer level of other years and the enormous waste is inevitable. Buyers are selecting only the best varieties of each and the bulk of the arrivals go to the street men and the department stores. There are few carnations arriving, but evidently there are enough of them for the present outlets. Quality is lacking and only the selected bring $1 per hundred.

Valley is scarce, but prices do not hold above $2.50 per hundred for the best of it. Lilies have shown an upward tendency in all varieties. Lilium myriophyllum, a novelty, seems to have commanded general commendation and it is likely to grow in popularity. Longiflorums have advanced to $4 per hundred, some extra choice stock touching $5. The inferior grade has sold at $3. In orchids, 35 to 40 cents is top for gigas. The supply is light. The prices range from this high average down to $12 per hundred for the other varieties. Sweet peas have been cast into the discard. The weather has been too strenuous for them. The Spencers have had a good season, but the inferior varieties have proved almost unsalable at any price, a lesson to the growers to plant only the best hereafter. The seasonable outdoor flowers are as abundant and as little in demand as usual in midsummer.

There is no surplus of the high-grade roses. Shipments are lighter and anything in first-class condition sells readily at the quotations given. The supply of American Beauties is small and anything selected sells at $15 to $20 per hundred. There still are some Prima Donna and Brunner roses arriving; also excellent Russell and Ophelia blooms. The lower grades, those with short stems and open flowers, sell at 25 cents to 50 cents per hundred.

Various Notes.

The S. A. F. convention now is an interesting topic in and around New York, especially because of the general desire that this city be chosen as the meeting place of the 1917 convention. A good representation will sail for New Orleans August 9, on the Momus, one of the finest steamships of the Southern Pacific line. Ex-president Richard Vincent and Mrs. Vincent have booked their passage and it is hoped not only Baltimore members but also Philadelphia and Washington members will join the New Yorkers in the 5-day water trip. The rate will be $80 to $83. Five different routes are listed for the return by rail. All intending to go to Houston by boat, via New Orleans, should write to J. R. Lewis, the secretary of the transportation committee, at 448 West Thirty-seventh street, New York.

The holiday season is at its height and employees and employers are taking advantage of it to the full extent. Many of the wholesalers close at 4 p. m. and few open Sundays. The retail florists generally are in favor of the early closing.

President Bowe, of the joint retail associations, says the new society will not meet again until September. He is enjoying his vacation at Asbury Park and says he does not fear the sharks there as much as the sharks of Twenty-eighth street.

George J. Polykranas, the wholesale florist of 104 West Twenty-eighth street, is installing one of the largest iceboxes in the wholesale district. It occupies the entire back of the store. His son still is suffering from the effects of blood poisoning several months ago.

Bonnet & Blake have added another delivery automobile to their facilities and are prepared for a big fall season. Mr. Blake is enjoying a month's holiday at his old home in Rochester.

Joseph Trepel's daily purchases for his six Brooklyn stores are no small help to a heat-dominated market. His order some weeks ago for half a million bouquets was a record that undoubtedly will stand. The last letter from his brother, Jack, who is motoring with his wife to California, was postmarked Omaha, but that still is a long, long way from San Francisco.

The usual dull summer conditions prevail, although the retailers report that their business has been ahead of that of several previous years. The first asters have made their appearance and promise well. Carnations are scarce, most of the growers having thrown them out. Sweet peas are a glut and are sold at low prices. Roses are in good supply and fair demand, many of the growers having commenced to cut their new crops. There is unusual activity among the green-

The Market.

Business at the wholesale market last week was quiet, there being little or nothing going on. But the July slump comes every year and little is looked for in the way of business before fall. This condition seems to be general, all the wholesalers making the same report.

Roses show plainly the effect of the heat and few arrive in good selling condition. Shawyer and Russell roses are among the best. A great many Killarneys are coming in, but they are off color and short of stem, and the prices are low. Some good carnations are coming in and hardly go over $1.50 per hundred. There is an abundance of short common stock coming in. This sells well at 50 cents per hundred for funeral work. Sweet peas are out of the market for the present. Valley has little call, but holds up in price. Asters sell better than any other flower. There are not too many of them coming in and the best clean up daily. Gladioli are in plenty, the fancy America and Augusta being down to $2 per hundred. Common varieties are down as low as 50 cents per hundred in thousand lots. A lot of outdoor flowers coming in daily have little demand.

The market is well supplied with greens and the daily demand for these has been good.

The Club's Picnic.

The annual picnic given by the Florists' Club for florists, their families and friends took place July 20 at Ramona park. It was a most beautiful day, though quite warm, as old Sol was on the job early. The attendance, as usual, was large, about 400. Eighteen gayly decorated automobiles occupied by florists left the wholesale district at 1 o'clock and made a big impression on the public along the route out to the park, which was reached at 2 p. m. The trustees, Messrs. Ohlweiler, Rowe and F. Windler, who had the arrangements in charge, had everything in readiness and great credit should be given them for the perfect arrangements. The athletic events, eighteen in number, as usual created a great deal of excitement among the younger folks. The older picnickers, too, came in this year, and showed more interest than usual. There were large entries in each of the eighteen events. Paddy Patton's chicken race and William Smith's novelty race caused great sport for the crowd. Rolla Hammer's harem race and Pilcher's ladies' football game were interesting and humorous throughout.

Joseph Hauser forgot the rope for his tug of war and it was turned into a football game, which was won by Count Von Hoffman, after some badly bruised shins. The event of the day came at the conclusion of the games. It was the baseball game between the wholesalers and the retailers. George Schriefer pitched winning ball for the wholesalers and won the game 8 to 7. Many glaring errors were made behind Schriefer, or he would have shut out the retail team. Frank Gorly was umpire and acted fair and square to both sides. The rest of the day was taken up in dancing, boating and fishing. A band of music, led by Prof. Beyer, made delightful pastime for the picnickers and kept the big crowd in good humor. The young folks stayed until midnight and the picnic was voted one of the best ever given by the club. The results of the various events during the day were as follows:

The pot-throwing contest for growers, in charge of M. Uhlschmidt, was won by A. F. Jablonsky. A. Vanderine was second.

The 75-yard dash for men 17 to 44 years of age, in charge of A. Bourdet, was won by K. Ogle, with A. Von Hoffman, Jr., second.

Fred Grossart's 50-yard dash for boys 12 to 16 years was won by L. Weinsberge, James Tantell reaching the finish second.

The 50-yard dash for men over 45 years was in charge of H. Schlechter. This was won by Joseph Hauser, and J. J. Beneke came in second.

The harem race for ladies, in charge of Rolla Hammer, was won by Mrs. A. Jablonsky, with Mrs. Johnson second.

August Hummert had a great time in his time-walking race for married ladies. This event had the greatest number of entries. Mrs. W. H. Schaefer was first and Mrs. Oliver K. Sanders second.

The needle-threading contest for growers' wives, in charge of L. Baumann, was won by Mrs. Demp and Mrs. Kopp was second.

Alex Lurie took charge of the ball scramble for boys, aged 12 years and under. A. Jablonsky won this, Arthur Wetteran being second.

Frank Sanders had charge of the little girls in the flag race and the event had a large entry. Virginia Cerny and Arline Meyer came in first and second in the order named.

The box fight for single ladies, George Pring in charge, gave much pleasure. The fight narrowed down to Miss V. Richter and Miss L. Price, who were declared the winners.

The egg race, in charge of C. Kuehn, Jr., for little girls 12 to 16 years of age, was won by Arline Meyer. Miss M. Kuehn was second.

Paddy Patton's guinea chickeh race, open to all, created a lot of fun. O. K. Sanders was the winner of the first catch and George Kirchner was winner of the second catch.

William Smith's novelty race created more fun than any other event. This race was won by Count A. Von Hoffman, who refused to show the contents of the box until Mrs. Von Hoffman opened the box first.

The ladies' football teams next went to the post, in charge of W. J. Pilcher. Each lady taking part received a box of candy.

The men's tug of war did not take place, owing to the fact that the committee forgot the rope, but the two teams lined up for a football game, which caused a great deal of sport. When they had finished all taking part divided two boxes of cigars. The baseball game came next and five innings were played. The score was:

Innings—	1	2	3	4	5
Wholesalers	0	1	2	3	2	—8
Retailers	0	2	2	2	1	—7

This concluded the most successful event ever had at any of our outings and great credit is due to all who had charge of the various events.

Various Notes.

The stork paid a visit to the home of David Geddis July 23 and left an 8-pound boy. Dave was so much taken with the newcomer that he sent to each of the five wholesalers a box of cigars, with the compliments of the youngster, who is named John W. Geddis.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold an important meeting next Wednesday, August 2, at the Eleven Mile House. The date of their picnic will be made known and important matters will be discussed.

William Smith, head of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., had a busy time of it Friday, July 21, supervising the unloading of a carload of glass at Kirkwood. This will keep the growers busy for the next two months repairing the damage done by the recent hail storm.

The many friends of Theodore Miller will be delighted to learn that his daughter, Dora, who has been ill for many months, has recovered and now is out of danger.

John Steidle, of Olivette, recently had an operation performed, from which he has suffered much during the last month. This made Mr. and Mrs. Steidle miss their first picnic.

C. C. Sanders recently motored to St. James, Mo., accompanied by his some sprinters. Both won prizes. The Count brought his whole family with him. The employees of Waldbart's all came out and rooted hard for the Count.

Belleville was well represented at the picnic—Grossart, Fehr, Emunds, Guy and Ogle, all spent a great afternoon.

Alex Siegel and his family left Friday, July 21, for a two months' stay at the northern lakes. Mr. Siegel says the frost will be on the pumpkin before he returns home.

Joseph Hauser, of Webster Groves, says he will cut 30,000 of his new single dahlia this season. This is one of the best sellers in this market.

Pierre Schneider, who recently leased the Connon Floral Co. houses, at Webster Groves, will grow carnations and mums for this market. He has a big force busy planting. Charles Connon has bought out the retail end of the business, which has always been quite large.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has contracted for one of the largest florists' refrigerators ever made. It will be completed in time for the opening, September 5.

A call at the Natural Foliage Co. place, 909 North Fifteenth street, found James H. Reeves, the president and general manager, in charge. Clarence Waterman, vice-president and treasurer, is away on an eastern trip. Mr. Reeves says they are hardly in shape as yet, but that everything will be ready for business by August 1. They have a large force of men down south gathering foliage. J. J. B.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

There was a shortage of good stock last week, but this was only noticeable when an order was received calling for a special grade. Business now is quiet and only funeral orders seem to break the monotony. However, it is said that July this year will make a better showing on the books of wholesalers and retailers than July, 1915.

In the wholesale market gladioli seem to form the bulk of the sales, and there is a plentiful supply of this flower in good grades. Asters are coming in and larger quantities would move if obtainable. The weather has not treated the dahlias well and those that come in quickly shatter. Carnations have been maintaining a price of $2 per hundred throughout the month and, considering the season, they are good and well worth the money. Local roses are small and of those coming from the north few are really good. The market thus shows a shortage of these. Valley is in much the same position and that offered late last week was barely acceptable.

Quantities of phloxes, delphiniums, hydrangeas, daisies and other seasonable outdoor flowers are offered and meet with a small sale. Many of the local florists are substituting these for roses and carnations in funeral work, and to good advantage. In wreaths delphiniums and achilleas were used as a filler with a spray of roses and above a bow of chiffon.

The Picnic at Great Falls.

The outing held at Great Falls, Va., July 19, under the auspices of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., was, as predicted, the most successful and enjoyable event in the history of the organization. From early afternoon until late at night there was something doing every minute to keep all participants occupied.

The florists and their friends gathered at the Georgetown terminus of the railway company, which provided three special and two regular cars to handle the 400 people who enjoyed the outing. On the trains were members of the entertainment committee, who saw to the distribution of popcorn and peanuts, and there were several boxes of cigars on hand for the members. Each ticket-holder was furnished with a "refreshment" badge, cashable at the end of the line for all sorts of good things.

Long before the hour set for the outing, George C. Shaffer and men from his store, J. Richards, J. Minder, Milton Thomas and a number of others, were getting things in readiness for the day. The large dancing pavilion was decorated with gladioli and oak leaves, and there were bunches of flowers on each of the tables in the refreshment pavilion, where Mr. Richards presided. The merrymakers brought their appetites with them and there was a rush to attack the commissary.

The kiddies went in heavily for those of the games that were proposed for them and every entrant was announced as a prize-winner, as enough sailboats, dolls and rubber balls had been provided to make this possible. As usual, the big events were quoits and the 100-yard dash, for members only, in each of which there was keen competition. The list of events and the winners were as follows:

Potato race, open to girls 12 years of age and under—Rose Minder, first; Lillian Anderson, second.

Potato race, open to boys 12 years of age and under—Percy Booth, first; Arthur Booth, second.

George C. Shaffer has put into commission his new automobile delivery wagon. This is an attractive-looking machine, with a green body ornamented in gold.

William Marche is planning extensive alterations to his store at Fourteenth and H streets, northwest, which will involve an outlay of about $2,000. The present front on Fourteenth street is to be torn down and replaced by a modern display window, the front of which will extend out three feet from the present line and will give an additional sixty feet of window space. The H street window will be extended to conform thereto and the store itself will be given some little additional space along the opposite wall. While the store is being remodeled, Mr. Marche is having two greenhouses erected on his property in Hyattsville, where he now makes his home.

William J. Galt, who for the last three years has been employed at the Fox flower store, in Philadelphia, and who prior to that time was manager of the Becker store in the same city, has joined the sales force of George C. Shaffer.

The Leo Niessen Co. is gradually getting its new store at 1206 H street, northwest, in shape for occupancy. The icebox, 13x16 feet and twelve feet high, now is being built and there is being installed in the cellar a large ice-making machine. When completed, this concern will have one of the finest establishments in this section of the country. C. L. L.

Reading, Pa.—Heller's farm was the scene of the annual picnic of the Reading Florists' Association. Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

AN occasional parcel of flower seeds from Germany comes to hand via the mails, but they are few and far between.

IN the last fiscal year of the consulate records there were small imports of alfalfa seed from Spain, the total value being $22,854.

THERE was unusual heat in the Grand Rapids section last week. Peas suffered to some extent, but conditions are considered fair for this date.

THERE are enough people pushing sweet pea seed this summer so that, if each one has fair business, there should be no scarcity of the flowers next winter and spring.

CALIFORNIA'S output of radish seed will be measurably increased this season and the claim is made that the utmost care has been used by the growers, who see a chance to demonstrate the quality of their stock to those who heretofore have depended on European radish.

THE Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo., recently purchased a warehouse and elevator on the Kansas side, which is now being remodeled, and on completion will be used for cleaning and storing, thus relieving the congestion of the present plant at Ninth and Santa Fe streets, which it will continue to occupy.

THE Holland bulb houses that find themselves with large surpluses because of the closing of the English market nevertheless are not in a hurry to cut prices deeply for additional American orders. Their organization is doing good work in this respect, pointing out that prices on advance orders will have to be cut down to meet those quoted in eleventh-hour competition.

THE exportation of grass seed from Ireland, which formerly ran to $1,250,000, according to U. S. Consul Frost, at Queenstown, was restricted in 1915 to prevent its reaching hostile territory. The quality has advanced with great rapidity, the standard weight per bushel in 1913 being fixed by a commission at sixteen to eighteen pounds, whereas in 1915 it was raised to twenty to twenty-four pounds.

EMBASSADORS of the Dutch bulb houses have arrived in New York in considerable number during the last month, the majority representing exporters who find themselves this season barred out of their usual market, England. The exporters who regularly canvass the American trade are not sending their men back in any great number, because they feel that they have covered the field pretty thoroughly.

THE A. A. Berry Seed Co., of Clarinda, Ia., has had a remarkable growth during the last year, its business increasing $250,000 over that of the previous year. The directors, pleased with the management, reëlected the officers, the following now composing the board of directors and executives: President, A. A. Berry; vice-president, George W. Standage; secretary, J. Frank Sinn; treasurer, A. F. Galloway; director, James Shum. The capital stock has been increased from

¶The House of Burpee has long been recognized as American Headquarters for Sweet Peas, and our introduction of these Fordhook Strains of Winter-flowering Spencers marks an era in commercial Sweet Pea growing.

¶The novelties offered below, excepting Yarrawa, are the results of crosses made at our Fordhook Farms during the past seven seasons. All stocks are grown at our Floradale Farm, "The California Home of Sweet Peas."

Fordhook Pink and White A most popular Winter-flowering Spencer. A color that is always in demand, similar to the old Blanche Ferry. Bright rosy pink standard, wings almost pure white. The immense flowers measure 2½ inches in diameter and are perfect in form. A very early, free and continuous bloomer, awarded a Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915, and of the American Sweet Pea Society, San Francisco, June, 1916. ¼ oz., $1.25; ½ oz., $2.00; oz., $3.50.

Fordhook Pink This is a distinct shade of pink, suffused with lavender throughout. Flowers are large size, exquisitely waved, produced in threes and fours on long stems. ¼ oz., 40c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $3.50; ½ lb., $6.25; lb., $12.50.

Fordhook Rose Introduced by us in 1915. Flowers of largest size, usually borne in threes and fours. A charming shade of rosy carmine. Awarded a Certificate of Merit at the International Show, New York, March, 1915, and the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March, 1915. ¼ oz., 50c; ½ oz., 85c; oz., $1.50; ¼ lb., $4.00; ½ lb., $7.50; lb., $15.00.

Yarrawa This magnificent Australian variety has proved its unusual merit with commercial growers in all parts of the country. It has an exceptional reputation as a sure money-maker. First exhibited by us at the great International Show in New York, March, 1914, and awarded a Certificate of Merit by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, March, 1915. Flowers exquisitely waved, averaging 2½ inches in diameter, many of them being duplex or double. A bright rose-pink, with a clear, creamy base. ¼ oz., 35c; ½ oz., 60c; oz., $1.00; ¼ lb., $2.75; ½ lb., $5.00; lbs., $10.00.

RAINBOW
FREESIAS

Our crop of bulbs grown in California now is ready for delivery, and the bulbs are of exceptional quality, ranging in size from ½ to ¾-inch. The mixture offered includes several shades of yellow, orange, lavender and pink, all harmonizing with each other when bunched together.

Rainbow Freesias are great money-makers for all florists, whether they grow for their own retail trade or for the wholesale market. Splendid sellers at top prices. Moreover, the habit of plant is branching, each bulb giving two to three flower spikes with stems long enough for all floral purposes.

$5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000; $187.50 for 5000.

(Note.—Because of the branching habit, Rainbow freesia will give twice to three times as many flowers per bulb as will Purity or refracta alba.)

Every jobber and catalogue house that has a trade calling for high-class novelties should write at once for terms on Rainbow. Freesia bulb growers write for prices on planting stock (bulblets).

BERMUDA ONION SEED.

In view of recent correspondence and crop reports in The Review, the trade will be specially interested in a letter, written June 10, to the Department of Commerce by George K. Stiles, consul at Teneriffe, Canary Islands:

"Onion seed constituted one-fourth of all exports to the United States from the Teneriffe district in 1915. The coming crop, which should begin to move next month, shows a decided increase in the amount of choice, expensive wax (or white) seed. The ordinary canary-yellow onion seed, however, has suffered because of the winter drought and shows a loss estimated at forty to fifty per cent. The red seed, which is in less demand, also suffered from drought, but to a smaller degree than the yellow.

"Yellow seed will consequently be scarce, and there may be difficulty in filling contracts for this grade, while

¶ One evening a party of traveling business men met in a hotel and casually drifted to the subject, "Could a woman make good in our trade?"

¶ One party thought perhaps a woman would find the Florists a little rough to call on, another thought the physical strain would be too much for long trips, and another said she might meet some "fresh guys" and become disgusted. My name was brought up as being the only traveling "skirt" in our business, and I was making a real success of it.

¶ Well, there are two ways to handle each of the questionable points, and there is some truth in all of the suggestions made—and, my dear Florist friends, I'm with you to open up a few of my experiences. I will take one character of the objectionable kind next week—we will call him The Nuisance ——— the stock of 'wax' seed will be in excess of orders.

"The average contract prices are reported as follows, per pound: Fancy white 'wax,' $1.50 to $2; yellow, 85 cents (American gold); and red, 80 cents.

"The stocks of onion seed last year were fairly cleaned out, so that this season there appears to be less probability of old seed being mixed with the new. Both adulteration and inferior quality of onion seed are difficult to detect until after sowing. The long-established firms here, however, can be counted on to allow just claims when made by American buyers, especially as regards damage in transit.

"As practically all onion seed contracts to the United States are made on an f. o. b. basis in a Canary port, the higher freights of this year must be met by the American buyers. Last season a number of complaints of bad seed were caused through long delays in transshipment via England. Owing to this fact the Liverpool route has been largely abandoned this year, according to statements made by prominent shippers.

"The larger percentage of the crop will be routed via Porto Rico to New Orleans or via Habana to New York. Freight rates are estimated here as from forty to fifty per cent higher than last season, when they were already much higher than before the war. As the bulk of the crop goes to southern destinations, the Porto Rico-New Orleans route should prove decidedly cheaper for most shipments.

"The crop is slightly earlier than last year and first shipments are expected to be made by July 15 and should extend to the end of August.

"Argentine and Cuban buying of this year's crop has fallen off as compared with last season. Generally speaking, prices may be taken as somewhat lower and showing a tendency to weakness this season. In 1915 there were more orders than could be filled and prices stiffened considerably. It seems probable that the values of American purchases will show more or less of a decline.

"A statement of interest to American onion-seed growers is contained in a report made by two of the larger dealers growing their own seed, to the effect that too intense a selection of onion seed for the points of size and color shows poor results in the quantity of seed obtained at the next harvest.

"The so-called 'select' stock, when used for rebreeding, is said to produce less seed than the more ordinary specimens. In other words, the plants producing onions less distinctive as to color and size are claimed to be 'hardier' and to produce more and better seed of their respective classes. This will perhaps interest American specialists who are growing onion seed for the trade."

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

G. W. Scott, of the Eberle Seed Co., Albany, N. Y., believes that the season's record will be a good one. Mr. Scott had just returned from a southern trip, which had been unusually successful.

L. H. Schaefer & Son, of Albany, remarked that their business with the truckers was splendid, but that it took some hustling to get in the returns.

The Price Seed Store, of Albany, had nothing special to report. The veteran founder of this pioneer business still takes an active interest in its workings.

The Gordinier Seed Co., of Troy, N. Y., has had a good season, especially in heavy seeds, and it looks for a continuation for fall sowings.

Frank Howard, of Pittsfield, Mass., is erecting a large building, the present facilities being inadequate to care for the demand.

O. H. Dickinson, of Springfield, Mass., has been forced into bankruptcy, according to press reports. This will be a surprise to many in the trade who considered this one of the most flourishing seed houses in the east.

The Ross Seed Co., of Worcester, Mass., reports that seed business is about as usual, but that there is an extraordinary demand for implements.

The seedsmen of the Hub City have experienced one of the most prolonged seasons in their experience. Business has been satisfactory, according to W. Fiske, of the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Boston. W. M.

THE KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

Seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.
24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance. A beautiful collection of colors and markings.
26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.
28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.
30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches.
32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly fine dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture.
34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown, bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades.
45. GIANT APOLLO (Masterpiece type). New bronze, veined and blotched. Strongly frilled petals. A superb Pansy.
49. GIANT MERCURY. New. A deep blackish purple, really self-colored, without blotches or spots. The flowers are extraordinary in size and substance, being the largest flowers of all self-colored Pansies.
82. ORCHID FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the Summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations. Each color separate or mixed.

500 seeds 50c., 1000 seeds $1.00, ⅛ oz. $2.00, ¼ oz. $3.75, 1 oz. $15.00.

20. PRINCESS. The New Upright Pansy.

This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing, and extremely weatherproof, enduring many storms without damage to its flower. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy, velvety texture, on heavy stems carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors.

500 Seeds 20c., 1000 Seeds 35c., ⅛ oz. $1.00, ¼ oz. $2.00, 1 oz. $7.50.

FREE OFFER RAINBOW is a mixture of the most beautiful, gorgeous colors, blotched, striped, veined, margined, etc. With every $1.00 worth of Pansy seed I will send, free, 1000 seeds of Rainbow and with other amounts in like proportion.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Shipments to outside points fell off considerably last week, according to the leading wholesalers, but business in the stores has been a little better, though funeral work still is the mainstay. The reduced forces, caused by the absence of many on vacations, have had just about all they could take care of easily. The pretty Mexican poppy, hunnemannia, and the double blue cornflower have made a delightful combination in many of the retailers' windows, while large masses of Agapanthus umbellatus and dahlias have made bold and striking effects in others. Roses are keeping up fairly well in quality, considering the season, Beauties perhaps making the worst showing. New-crop carnations are coming in great shape, the cool nights making them retain their freshness and vigor of stem. The sweet peas have passed their best for the year, or at least until the fall sowings come in, though this will not be much before Christmas. Gladioli are plentiful and in considerable variety. There is an abundance of good greens of all kinds. A few begonias and salvias are shown; otherwise pot plants are scarce, with little demand.

Various Notes.

At George Watson's new place at Covina junction everything is in excellent shape. The new carnation houses have given a good account of themselves and there is a splendid lot of field stock to go in. The variegated Benora is a great favorite here and Mr. Watson annually grows great quantities of it. Another house is nearing completion and is to be planted to roses.

Frank Warner, of Rust's nursery, at South Pasadena, has gone to San Diego to take in the fair again. Few men stick more closely to business than Mr. Warner or enjoy themselves better when they do break away. So it is safe to say that Mr. Warner will have a good time with our genial friends at the southern city, where hospitality is boundless.

The Armstrong Nurseries, of Ontario, report that the season closed finely with them and that the stock for the coming year never looked better.

G. M. Bridgeford, of Eagle Rock, now brings his stock to market in a 6-cylinder automobile.

J. Menasco, of Covina, is sending in some of the best Ulrich Brunner roses that are reaching this market. Jim certainly has the "hang" of this rose right.

George Southard, who has a considerable reputation around here as a maker of paper pots and tree protectors, says he is coming out with fertilized pots, the felt or paper being treated with chemicals suitable to the growth of the various stocks to be grown in them—presumably potassic manures for tomatoes, nitrogenous fertilizers for cauliflower and other combinations to be worked out. Mr. Southard has several other novel features and has his machines about perfected for turning them out in quantity. He is responsible for the statement that when he gets going good all the tin cans will have to be sent to the "flivver" factory.

Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., made a flying trip in his machine to Santa Barbara last week, going and returning the same day. He mentioned that Arthur Gleave, of Gleave's Flower Shop, was doing a fine business. He also said that much of the local stock of the Santa Barbara growers compared favorably with that coming to the Los Angeles market. He especially noted the fine quality of yellow centaureas and agapanthus.

Mrs. A. M. Wilton, manager for C. H. Kolle, of El Paso, Tex., is in town on a visit.

Charles Howard, of the Howard Rose Co., of Hemet, has been making business calls in the city and vicinity. He says the rose stock never looked better than this year, and this is saying a good deal. These "desert grown" roses are always thoroughly ripened and, consequently, bear shipping well. They go dormant early, owing to the cool, dry climate of Hemet. Many of the new ones have been added to the list this year.

Morris Goldenson has been driving eastern friends around this week, showing them the beauties of southern California.

threshing sweet peas, about forty acres of which were grown on the Whittier road holdings of this concern. The plants when in bloom made a wonderful showing from the road, the careful roguing followed out sharpening the lines between the different varieties. Retail business is keeping up well in the nursery and seed departments.

Business is reported good with Staiger & Fincken. Stock in fine shape is coming in from the Lomita place to the sales yard on Washington street.

The Market.

Good roses are becoming scarce and everything of this item cleans up fairly well. There is a decided shortage of Beauties. Of the other varieties, Ophelia, Ward, Russell and Prima Donna show good quality, notwithstanding several days of warm weather. Few complaints are heard, as the market has been well supplied with a fine crop for several months and sales have been large. Carnations were affected by the warm weather to a certain extent, but the fact excited little comment, as they had been in slack demand and cheap. Chinese growers are bringing in great quantities of sweet peas and few asters. Good sweet peas find a ready market, but it is difficult to move inferior stock at any price.

The supply of gladioli is falling off a little, but the market still is flooded with several varieties of this flower. Niagara and Panama bring good prices, but Francis King and America are low-priced. Some tule cat-tails are appearing in the market and the offerings find a limited sale at fair prices. Tritoma is plentiful and clears regularly. Many dahlias are to be had, but they move rather slowly. Fine specimens of sunflowers are largely featured, some of them having stems six and one-half feet long. Good zinnias find a ready outlet. Snapdragon and statice are in ample supply, as well as many other summer flowers. A few growers have a good cut of rubrum and auratum lilies, but there is no oversupply, as they move well. Cattleyas still are in light supply. Gardenias are off crop, but they will be coming on again in about two weeks.

STAIGER & FINCKEN

1852 West Washington St., LOS ANGELES, CAL.

For all classes of ornamental nursery and greenhouse stock, ferns and palms at right prices.

An early variety of chrysanthemum has caused a sensation and the growers have no difficulty in disposing of all the blooms brought in. The appearance of a few violets at this early date also came as a surprise, the limited supply being snapped up by a few buyers.

Various Notes.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has joined the vacationists. He is spending two weeks at Skaggs springs, in Sonoma county.

Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, recently called on the local trade.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., is due to reach home within a few days, after a two months' vacation in the east. While the trip was primarily for pleasure, it is understood he took advantage of the opportunity to call on the trade in various cities he visited. It is hinted that he has secured some new roses. Mrs. Axell accompanied him on the trip.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has so far received about fifty dozen of the early chrysanthemum, Early Frost, and reports an excellent demand for it. Other chrysanthemums are growing nicely, with indications of a plenteous supply of Monrovia, October Frost, etc., by August 15.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee, who has gardens at Colma, Ocean View and San Leandro, and a retail store at 1036 Hyde street, has been enjoying a much-needed rest in the mountains of Mendocino county. She is expected back the end of the week, after an absence of nearly a month.

Everybody in the trade was looking forward with pleasant anticipation to the florists' picnic at Pinehurst, in Contra Costa county, July 30. Judging from the number of tickets sold, it was said that the attendance would be larger this year than ever before.

Chas. F. Shellgrain, manager of the J. B. Boland store on Kearny street, says business is keeping up fairly well for this season of the year.

F. C. Jaeger, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., has returned to duty after a pleasant trip to Lake Tahoe with his family, and F. H. Forrest plans to leave in a few days for a vacation in the southern part of the state.

N. A. Baldocchi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, is the owner of a new touring car.

At the flower and seed stand in the Emporium department store, operated by Chas. Navlet, of San Jose, Cal., a big demand is reported for coleus plants.

Quarters are being fitted up in the California Flower Market for the use of the Chinese growers in selling their aster and chrysanthemum crops this season.

A. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, is about ready to leave on a two weeks' automobile trip to southern California.

Word has been received here that C. W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Co., Eureka, Cal., will be down shortly to arrange for an outing of florists at his place in the Klamath Falls country, sometime in August. Several members of the local trade enjoyed his hospitality on a similar trip last year. A pleasant feature is the fact that the last four hours' ride is taken in canoes up the river.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. report good success with Irish Fireflame roses.

The trade was well represented in the preparedness parade held here July 29. A. J. Rossi, A. O. Stein and Julius Eppstein composed the committee which organized the marching division. All the downtown stores agreed to close at 1 o'clock in order that the members and employees could march.

The California Dahlia Growers' Association has held several meetings and secured many new members. It has plans well under way for a dahlia show to be given in the ballroom of the Palace hotel, September 7, 8 and 9. The premium list will be out shortly. President T. A. Burns says everything points to a most successful show.

A. F. Lundberg now is well settled in his location at 1440 Polk street, which is the handsomest shop in that part of the city. The store is 22x100 feet, with a 22-foot driveway in the rear for receiving and sending out stock. The salesroom is finished a soft gray color, harmonizing with the marble and plate glass front. The ceiling is unusually high, making the place light and airy. Mr. Lundberg says business already has shown an increase.

Lavender Nora, Lavender Queen (same as Anita Wehrman), at 50c oz. VENUS; $1.50 oz. Bohemian Girl, $2.00 oz. Less in pound lots.

All other varieties will be harvested soon. Ask for complete list. You can get almost all those varieties in my original packets from A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; R. J. Irwin, New York; S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia. Never accept any Winter Orchid Sweet Pea Seed in open packet or without my trade mark on it. It surely will be fraud.

Novelties will be ready in August.

Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind.
June 19, 1916.

.....We were certainly pleased with the results secured from your Seed last year and florists who visited the University greenhouses said they were the finest sweet peas they had ever seen. They made an unusually strong growth and produced great quantities of blooms.

CHAS. B. SAYRE, instructor in Floriculture.

I have received over 1000 such testimonials inside of ten months.

WARNING:—There are or will be advertised many so-called new Winter Spencers. I have seen many new names on the Exhibition tables, but by careful examination all were identical with my older Winter Orchid, years in commerce, excepting the Yarrawa. Should you buy any such so-called novelty, test it side by side with my original varieties and judge for yourself.

The Market.

Bright, warm weather, following several days of rain, brought the outdoor flowers into bloom rapidly last week. While some of the blooms were damaged, the rain improved the plants and the cut was unusually good. Nearly all varieties were too abundant to be absorbed by the demands of the market. Sweet peas were never of better quality and seldom so cheap. The first dahlias have appeared and early Comet asters are offered. Some beautiful gladioli are shown. There still are a few Easter lilies, and rubrums and auratums are to be had. The blooms of Buddleia variabilis are favorites.

A few pot plants are offered, such as tuberous begonias, fuchsias, gloxinias, celosias and hydrangeas. There a e enough indoor roses to meet the demand, with Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Russell, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty in the lead. There is a shortage of white roses. Cattleya gigas and Gaskelliana are producing a few blooms of splendid quality. Funeral work was good in the first part of last week, but the demand decreased later to normal summer conditions.

Club Meeting.

The newly elected officers of the Portland Floral Society took their seats at the meeting held July 18. The reports of Secretary Niklas and Treasurer Forbes showed a balance in the treasury of about $200, with all bills paid and the average yearly expense less than the average returns from dues. President Walker briefly reviewed the events of the last year, concluding with the statement that the year could be considered one of good achievement and that the society was starting on its fifth year with brighter prospects than ever. He emphasized the value of coöperation among the different branches of the trade.

F. A. Van Kirk, secretary of the growers' committee, reported that he had a nearly complete list of buyers covering the districts supplied from Portland, with reports on their credit ratings, which were available to all society members. He urged all members to report promptly all delinquents. H. A. Lewis, president of the Multnomah county fair, reported that the fourteen plots prepared for planting competitive exhibits had all been filled. He asked for assistance in planning a new style of decorations for the exhibition pavilions. He invited the members to attend a Grange picnic at the fair grounds July 29.

James O. Convill, who had charge of the floral center, reported that the Chamber of Commerce had not made payments to the festival board as promptly as had been agreed and for this reason the florists had not received their money. J. B. Pilkington and James Forbes were appointed a committee to see that the money be paid as soon as possible.

It was voted to hold a picnic Sunday, August 6, at Schnoerr's park, near Oregon City, where the outing was held last year. Employees, families and friends of society members will be welcome. Retail stores will close so far as practicable and a large attendance is expected.

The president's desk was decorated with a large vase of early asters, brought in by H. T. Fleishauer, and by a vase of Hugh Dickson roses, brought in by G. Indermuhle. Mr. Fleishauer said his first shipment of asters this year was made July 10, nearly two weeks earlier than that of any other season. The season conditions were later than usual, so the actual gain in the quality of earliness was more than two weeks.

J. Feser, of the Mountain View Floral Co., said the recent rains had delayed the work of budding roses. A. I. Gale remarked that he had a quantity of 2-year-old apple stock coming on in fine shape.

Various Notes.

C. Tonseth, of the Tonseth Floral Co., is spending his vacation at his ranch on the Columbia river, near Washougal, Wash.

Max Smith took a party of five, including Tom Luke, on an auto trip over the Coast Range and to several of the beaches. They experienced some hardship on a 15-mile side trip afoot into the mountains.

Theo. Weddell is bringing in some good Mrs. Francis King gladioli.

Frank McCabe, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, called on the trade.

Edward Boyse is in California and Don Wardsworth in eastern Washington, on their vacations.

Carl Gardner rested up at home and is back at work. Wallace Garside is taking his turn off.

E. R. Chappell has rearranged his store in the Broadway building and plans further improvements as business warrants.

The Routledge Seed & Floral Co. features live stock in its displays. A tank of goldfish, some playful kittens, a cage of owls and a pugnacious hawk add variety to the parrots and canaries.

The Nippon Floral Co. is cutting auratum lilies. Substantial repairs have been made to the houses that were damaged by last winter's storms.

Gene Robinson is cutting some good white and pink carnations. He has part of his range set to new plants.

Tacoma, Wash.—Prizes are being solicited for the annual dahlia show of the Tacoma Dahlia Society, to be held at Tacoma September 15 and 16. Entries from Portland, Ore., and Seattle have been assured, according to a report made at a recent meeting of the society.

It Pays

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE acreage in apple trees 5 years old or over in the state of Washington is about 90,580, and the number of trees 6,309,160, according to estimates submitted by the field agent of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

G. C. PERKINS, of Jackson & Perkins Co., and Mrs. Perkins returned last week from a two months' trip on the Pacific coast. The return journey was made over the Canadian Pacific railroad, with stops at Vancouver, Lake Louise, Banff, Winnipeg and other points of interest.

FUNGUS OF THE CLEMATIS.

The sudden dying of clematis plants, especially wherever the large-flowered kinds are grown extensively in America and Europe, has been noted for many years, and the cause and methods for prevention of this disease have recently been reported in the Journal of Agricultural Research. The investigator found that the primary cause of the dying of the plants is a fungus known as Ascochyta clematidina. Experiments have shown that the transferring of this fungus to healthy plants causes them to take the disease.

The disease shows itself differently on various species. On hybrids grown in the field it is a stem-rot, while at the greenhouse where cuttings are propagated it is a leaf-spot as well as stem-rot. On Clematis paniculata the disease takes both forms.

The following methods for controlling this fungus are recommended:

"There is less disease when the hybrids are supported while growing than when they are permitted to trail on the ground. In the case of Clematis paniculata, however, the selling price of this variety does not warrant incurring the expense of supports. The author in this case advises transplanting the plants from the beds to the open field after the first year and placing them far enough apart to prevent matting, which is always a condition favorable to the disease. The following spray, applied lightly, controls the disease on Clematis paniculata growing in the beds and on cuttings in the greenhouse: One pound of laundry soap and six pounds of sulphur to fifteen gallons of water. The disease can be controlled on the hybrids in the forcing frames or in the greenhouse by the use of sprays. In all cases it is best to remove the diseased leaves and dead vines before spraying. It is particularly important to clear out such leaves and vines, especially if the plant is wintering outdoors, as the fungus is able to survive cold weather. This indicates also that the same beds should not be used for clematis during successive years."

The retail purchaser of clematis can prevent the dying of plants by taking proper simple precautions. The plants should be placed in good soil, well drained, and on a sunny exposure. As soon as the new shoots have formed, the old vine tissue should be carefully cut away close to the new shoots, removing all traces of the brown, discolored wood in which the fungus is to be found. Proper ventilation is obtained by training the plants to a strong trellis.

MAGNOLIAS IN CENTRAL WEST.

Among the desirable ornamental shrubs for the central west that should be more liberally planted, magnolias of the improved varieties should be recommended. Magnolia acuminata is native in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, and some of the Chinese varieties have succeeded admirably. I am not practically familiar with many varieties, but, wherever seen, M. Soulangeana, with a large pink flower, and M. stellata, with a pure white, star-shaped bloom, are attractive and desirable.

Our supply of these trees comes mostly from Holland and Belgium, where the growers, with careful methods, united with a suitable climate, produce good plants in pots and ship them with a ball of earth and with roots intact, in perfect condition for successful growth. Plants in this condition, three to four feet high and often with bloom buds already formed, may be had at exceedingly reasonable prices.

Our native sorts, such as M. acuminata, or cucumber tree, attaining forty to fifty feet in height, and M. tripetala, or umbrella catalpa, thirty to forty feet, are beautifully formed trees, with large, glossy leaves. Though the flowers are less showy, they are still desirable trees.

Magnolia grandiflora, the "glorious magnolia of the south," the most beautiful of all magnolias, is not hardy as far north as the other native sorts or the Chinese varieties are. The northern limit of its successful growth is about the latitude of Louisville, Ky., to southern Missouri. E. Y. Teas.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business last week was more brisk than that of the week previous, a condition attributed to a large number of funeral orders. The hot weather still is with us. Gladioli are the main outdoor flowers, but their quality is not up to the average. Gypsophila is off the market. Early dahlias are not good, as the weather has been too dry, and now the hot sun affects the flowers. Good quality roses are scarce; the inferior grades, too, are diminishing in quantity. Lilies are plentiful and are being used freely in funeral work. Carnations are off the market, excepting a few coming from Colorado.

Various Notes.

James Payne is putting in a new Lord & Burnham boiler at his range. He may have to give up his present place in another year, as the city plans to run a street through the grounds on which his greenhouses are located. Sidney Cotgreave, with Mr. Payne, moved to Eighty-second street and Garfield avenue, where he has more ground for his rabbits. Mr. Cotgreave now has more than 200 pedigree rabbits, some of which are highly valued Belgian stock.

W. J. Barnes is getting his greenhouses in shape for the fall trade. He now has a nice lot of chrysanthemums in 6-inch and 8-inch pots. His carnations are all planted.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. did a big business. Stock here seems scarce. Mr. Blackberry is at Pleasant Hill. He will stay at the greenhouses all summer. Charles Thomas left for a two weeks' vacation.

Ray Sturgeon has leased the greenhouse of Mr. Mohr for three years. He will grow chrysanthemums, carnations and sweet peas. Mr. Sturgeon formerly was with Mr. Mohr.

Henry Kusik & Co. have received a carload of moss from the north. Ray Blessing left for his vacation this week.

T. J. Noll & Co. still are receiving fine, large carnations from Colorado, and they sell as fast as they come in.

Arthur Newell is back from his eastern trip, which he enjoyed immensely. He reports that funeral work has been quite heavy.

Miss Jennie Murray leaves for Michigan August 4 and will stay there for several weeks.

Hugo Neff, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., left for a several weeks' stay in Denver, Colo. Lloyd Monson went to Pittsburg, Kan., and Miss Schmedinghoss, too, has gone on a vacation. Miss Richards is confined to her home with some sort of poisoning. W. J. B.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business among the florists was reported good last week. Although the retail stores did not do much in the cut flower line, there were many cases in which florists described the week as a "rush." This is attributed to the heavy funeral work and decorations for weddings and other affairs. While there is much stock in the city, it is hard to procure. One florist says there are not enough greenhouses in and near the city to meet the demands of so many florists. There are many good roses to be had, ranging in price from $3 to $8 per hundred. Carnations are making $2 per hundred, but the warm weather has made carnations scarce. There is a fine crop of gladioli arriving, including America and Mrs. Francis King. These are bringing $2 per hundred. One sees many fine delphiniums, coreopsis, Shasta daisies, bachelor's buttons, gypsophilas and gaillardias. Sweet peas are not so plentiful now, but they continue to arrive. There are fine asters on the market and they have been used in many pieces most artistically.

Various Notes.

The Twin-City florists held their annual picnic Wednesday, July 19, at Wildwood, Minn. This is a fine summer resort about twenty-two miles from Minneapolis. The day was spent in dancing, fishing, boating and bathing. There were athletic contests of all kinds.

The Chicago Avenue Greenhouses have some fine cyclamens and ferns. Business is reported as being good.

Thomas S. Lynes had a nifty window last week. Large masses of garden flowers, such as delphiniums, bachelor's buttons, gladioli and sweet peas, were arranged most artistically. Mr. Lynes reports sales as being lively, except during the last few days, when the heat put a crimp in business. During the quiet spell the men took advantage of the lighter deliveries and overhauled and repainted the delivery outfit. The chauffeur, Kenneth Lynes, was ill last week.

The Eldridge Floral Co. expects to incorporate shortly and erect a large range of glass somewhere near Minneapolis. The company is awaiting the arrival of a large refrigerator from Buchbinder Bros., of Chicago.

Thomas Hall has a splendid stock of roses and expects to have a good cut in about a month.

The Lakewood Cemetery Association has commenced cutting blooms of Lilium rubrum, for which there is a brisk sale.

High-grade gladioli, asters and roses were the principal offerings of the Minneapolis Floral Co. last week. Business was good.

William F. Holmes had a week of heavy funeral work. Art, as usual, seems to predominate in everything at the Holmes store.

Miss H. B. Whitted returned July 18 from Chicago. She says her staff has been on the jump with decorative and funeral work. E. M. P.

Butte, Mont.—B. T. Manlove, one of Butte's pioneer florists, has leased his establishment to J. W. Hollow, formerly of Helena, who will conduct the business under the old name, Manlove's.

NEPHROLEPIS JOHN WANAMAKER
"The Wanamaker Boston Fern"

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

NEPH. TEDDY, JR., SPORT

We think very well of this fern, it having all the good qualities of its parent, Teddy, Jr. The fronds are of darker green and more undulated.

4 -in. pots.....$25 per 100; $200 per 1000

This variety is a greatly improved Elegantissima and shows no tendency to revert to the Boston. This will prove a valuable addition to the crested varieties.

SEDALIA, MO.

Rose plants now are enjoying a well earned rest. Carnations still are in the field, but most of the chrysanthemums have been benched, save a few late stragglers. The weather has been a perplexing thing; early we had too much moisture, now we have too much dryness. Asters are an ill appearing lot and there seems to be little hope for any betterment.

The Archias Floral Co. has been exhibiting a number of banana plants in full bloom. One of the plants, or trees, carried a bunch of forty bananas, part of which were ripe. The stock, which measures from three and one-half to four inches in diameter and stands about fifteen feet high, was brought here from the Isle of Pines, Cuba, five years ago. This is the first time the plants have borne fruit and many availed themselves of the opportunity to see the rare sight.

The State Fair Floral Co. has acquired a new delivery car.

The workers in Sedalia's greenhouses and stores, now that business is quieting down, are anticipating a picnic.

Mrs. J. E. Cannaday has purchased a pleasure car, an indication that the new era of prosperity struck Sedalia this spring. J. H. H.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Frederick S. Franco reports an unusually busy season in outdoor work. He has a force of nearly thirty men engaged.

Henry J. Hass is recovering from the effects of a serious fall from a haystack several weeks ago. While assisting his men in harvesting, he was too hasty in trying to escape an approaching storm. He fractured his collar bone and three of his ribs.

The joint flower show of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Newport Garden Association will be held on the grounds of Hill Top Inn August 16, 17 and 18. William F. Smith, Victor May, James Robertson, William MacKay and William Gray constitute the committee in charge.

Alexander MacLellan, who was for many years gardener at Gray Craig, will continue in that position under the new owners, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan L. Mott. The handsome garden and landscape effects which Mr. MacLellan originated and worked out will be continued, with many enlargements and improvements. W. H. M.

Greenhouse Heating.

COST OF COAL AND OIL.

If soft coal costs $4.75 per ton in the bin, what would crude oil have to be bought for per gallon to give the same amount of heat, dollar for dollar? If you can give us a definite answer to this question, we shall greatly appreciate it. W. S. G.—Ia.

The value of soft coal varies widely, according to its quality and grade, but with a fair quality of run-of-mine coal selling at $4.75 per ton, we would not consider crude oil worth more than 5 cents per gallon, even after making allowance for the saving of labor in firing and removing the ashes.

BOILER HAS ONLY ONE OUTLET.

I intend to heat with steam the two houses shown on the enclosed sketch. They run east and west. The ground slopes downward to the north, and the level of the 21-foot house is three feet above that of the 36-foot house. The north wall is of matched siding, covered with rubberoid roofing. There are twenty inches of glass in the south wall. The houses are not separated by a partition. I should like to heat them both to 50 degrees in zero weather. I shall use an upright 18-horsepower boiler, about three feet in diameter and approximately ten feet high. The grates are circular and about two and one-half feet in diameter. It has been operated as a high-pressure boiler.

How would the returns be cut into this kind of boiler and at what pressure should it be held? I intend to place the boiler in a pit at the northwest corner of the houses and wish to know how deep the pit should be. Kindly state the size and number of the flows and returns needed. The boiler has a 1½-inch outlet. The 36-foot house is already piped for hot water. It contains a 2-inch flow on each side wall, with two 1½-inch returns. There are also two 1½-inch flows on each side of the center, returning on the posts with two 2-inch pipes. In all of this piping there is a uniform rise for the flows and a fall for the returns.

F. F. S.—Pa.

A low-pressure gravity system is generally used for small greenhouse ranges, and for such a system the water level of the boiler should be two to three feet below the lowest part of the returns. Unless this can be arranged, it will be necessary to use either a steam pump or a trap for returning the water to the boiler. In that case, from five to ten pounds of steam pressure will be required. In many places it is possible to obtain electricity to operate an electric pump for this purpose.

The sketch shows the houses to be, respectively, 21 x 85 and 36 x 85. A 2-inch main flow will be desirable for the wider house and a 1½-inch main flow for the narrow house. As the boiler in question has only one 1½-inch outlet, it will be desirable to tap in a 2-inch outlet to supply the larger house. If this cannot be done, it will be possible to make the present outlet answer for both houses by carrying a few pounds of pressure. The flow pipe should be enlarged to 2½-inch at some point near the boiler, and should be reduced to 1½-inch after taking off the flow pipe for the wide house.

For heating the wide house, use, in addition to a 2-inch overhead flow pipe, ten 1¼-inch returns. Place two of these upon each wall and two of the others in each of the walks between the solid beds. While a 1½-inch return pipe will answer for connecting both houses with the boiler, it will be better to use a 2-inch pipe. In case the pipes now in the wide house are to be used for the coils, eight 1½-inch pipes may be substituted for the ten 1¼-inch ones. For the 21-foot house we would use either six 1¼-inch or five 1½-inch returns, in addition to the 1½-inch overhead main.

PARTITIONING A GREENHOUSE.

Will you give me some advice about a change in the piping of the greenhouse which is shown on the enclosed sketch? The house, you will notice, runs north and south and the boiler is at the south end. As I have little use for the whole house during the winter, I am planning to run a partition crosswise through the center and only heat the south half during the winter months. A temperature of 50 degrees would be suitable for my crop. What I am anxious to know is how to arrange the piping so as to have one-half of the house at a temperature of 50 degrees and the other half at 65 to 70 degrees, and be able to drain the half which would not be in use during the winter. How much radiation would this require? The house is fourteen feet high to the ridge and has 7-foot side walls, consisting of two and one-half feet of concrete and four and one-half feet of glass. R. P.—Mich.

The sketch shows the house to be 21 x 118, with the proposed partition at the center. The house is now heated by three 2-inch flow pipes and fourteen 1¼-inch returns. The writer does not state whether steam or hot water is used, but from the amount of radiation used it would appear that hot water is the heating medium. If the heat is to be cut off from the north end of the house during the winter, it will be necessary to have a radiating system for that end of the house entirely distinct from that in the other end and it must be so arranged that it can be drained.

We would prefer to use 2½-inch flow pipes and 2-inch returns, but the 1¼-inch returns may be used in houses fifty to sixty feet in length. For a temperature of 50 degrees in the north end of the house, we would use the present flow pipes without change, except that we would run them downhill from the boiler, giving a slope of one foot. The returns in the north end of the house may also be left as at present, except that we would cut them off at the partition and connect each of the four coils with the boiler by means of a 2-inch pipe. There should be a good gate valve on each flow and return main and each of the main returns should have a valve for draining off the water when the system is not in use during the winter.

To heat the south end of the house to 65 degrees during the spring months, we would run a 2½-inch flow pipe two feet below the ridge and a 2-inch flow pipe upon each plate, and connect them with the return coils now in that portion of the house. The addition of the four returns from the north house and the three flow pipes put in to supply the south house, with the present radiation, should give the desired temperature in the spring, when both rooms are warmed, while during the winter, with the north portion cut out, the temperature will be little if any more than 50 degrees in the south room. We would advise using two 3-inch main flow and return pipes to connect the systems with the boiler.

COAL OR NATURAL GAS?

Can you tell me the difference in the results from a gas boiler and a coal boiler, as to economy and efficiency? I am thinking of putting in an emergency boiler. The present boiler takes care of my houses satisfactorily, but if anything should happen to it, I might have no end of difficulty in keeping the place warm. I am now using natural gas for fuel in a coal boiler. The question now is, shall I put in a gas boiler or another coal boiler?

J. J. B.—O.

Whether gas or coal is used as fuel, there need be no difference in the boiler except that a gas burner is required for the former, while a grate is needed for the latter. The comparative economy of the two kinds of fuel depends largely, of course, upon the cost of each in any particular locality, but due allowance must be made for the saving in the labor of firing and removing the ashes, which make up a considerable proportion of the expense of operating a boiler heated by coal. As a rule, gas is the cheaper fuel in localities where there is an abundance of natural gas.

Of course, when gas is used as fuel, there is some risk on account of low pressure and other causes, especially in extremely cold weather, when the heat is most needed. Therefore, since gas is now used in the heating of the greenhouses, we would suggest putting in a coal-burning boiler as an emergency measure, as this would then be available even if the gas heating system failed.

Roses are in fair supply. Easter lilies are plentiful and meet with a good demand. Asters are arriving heavily and sell well. In gladioli there seems to be plenty of red, but America runs short of actual needs. Snapdragon has a fair sale. A few carnations come in, but they do not amount to much. Water lilies, cornflowers and the first Golden Glow mums are offered. Greens are plentiful.

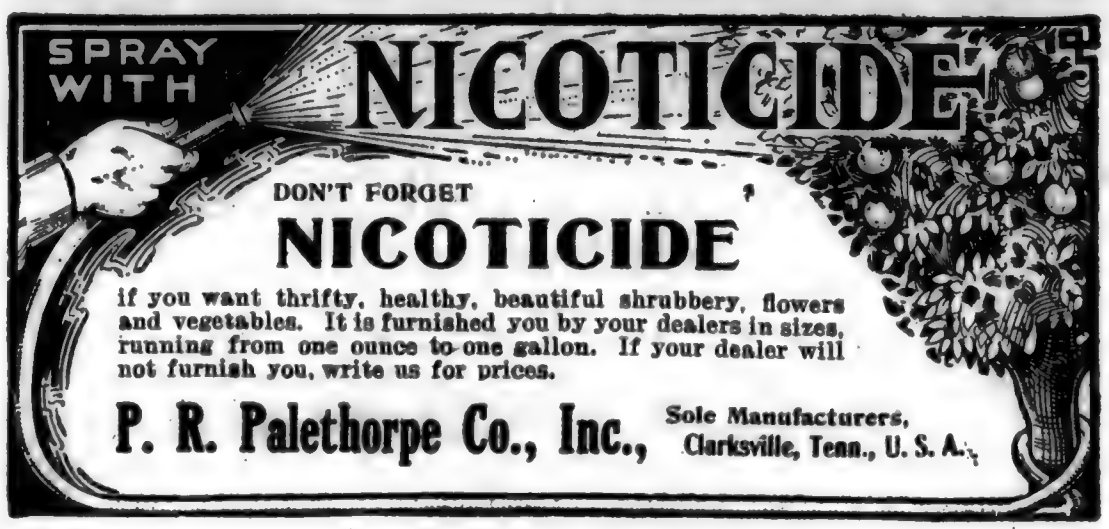
The Market.

Milwaukee is sweltering in one of the hottest periods for some years, and the lawns and public parks are brown for lack of rain, despite the artificial watering they get each day. Stock, of course, is affected strongly and the daily cut is not good. The glut, which was at its worst last week, is not so much in evidence, because the carnation growers are throwing out their old plants. Rose growers are drying off the benches and this also helps to cut down the supply. The quality of the roses is only medium, but no trouble is experienced in disposing of the cut, although prices are low. The first asters are here and they are in good shape. The quantity is so small, however, that they have no influence on the market, but they are sold readily. There are some exceptionally fine gladioli and these are selling well. Valley is in sufficient supply to take care of all orders. Business, of course, is light.

Various Notes.

F. H. Holton, who is a Shriner and also belongs to the band, has left with the local membership on a trip through the state. The special train will make numerous stops of various lengths at the different cities en route and will be on the go almost continually till July 29.



F. B. Davis, proprietor of McKenney & Co., was taken ill July 20. His illness, coupled with the vacations of some of the employees, makes the store quite short-handed. The firm has just moved to its new store, at 113 Wisconsin street.

William Kuhl, with the Holton & Hunkel Co., had the misfortune of losing his sister, who died July 21. She had undergone an operation about three weeks previously.

A. H. Stolper, of Winnipeg, Man., stopped off in Milwaukee July 16. Accompanied by a friend, he is making a tour of the continent during the slack summer season.

L. B. Thorpe, foreman for the Greenwood Carnation Co., submitted to an operation in Duluth, Minn. He is progressing nicely, according to a postal received the other day. It does not state, however, when he will be able to return to his duties. H. J. S.

IT IS HARD TO "KICK AGAINST THE PRICKS"

Seems as if contractors in Greenhouse construction would learn better than to try to "stem the flood." Several have tried in late years to use a cheaper wood than Cypress—and some of them have come to grief. Others have not attained to the prosperity their energy and vigilance would seem to deserve. If they would but use the one specially created and certified long-life wood, Cypress, their experience might be different; but to "buck" Cypress in Greenhouse construction spells disaster to the contractor and ruin to the man who pays for the job.

To correct a common error it must be said, and now's a good time to say it, that these substitute woods are all cheaper to buy than is "Tank Grade" Cypress. Reliable greenhouse contractors and supply men use the very best product of the Cypress industry. They are not hunting for something "cheap." They buy the best grade of the best lumber for their business. And for such racking employment as "staying put" in a greenhouse, the best is none too good—and is the real cheapest in the long run.

And Cypress is IT.

Of course you want PECKY CYPRESS, however, for your benches. And that is cheap enough to suit anybody—and for such homely uses lasts longer than grades costing more.

ASK US TO "PASS THE GRAVY"

Those Cypress booklets are like gravy at a dinner—one can't do without them. Vol. 3 is the Greenhouse Book; Vol. 4 is the Barn Book, and Vol. 28 is the Trellis and Arbor Book—all free. Then there is Vol. 36, the book on Carpentry, which is both interesting and instructive—also it is free. Vol. 37 is the big new Silo Book. Annual Picnic.

Thursday, July 20, over 100 Lancaster county florists and their friends held their annual picnic, at Avondale, the farm of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Barr. Special cars conveyed the party from Lancaster to the farm, on Marietta pike. An inspection of the ornamental grounds and formal gardens was made and was greatly enjoyed.

On the spacious piazza were card tables, where many participated in "500" and pinochle. Mrs. A. M. Herr was winner in the latter game. Bowling on the green afforded much pleasure for many. D. T. Connor, E. J. Fancourt and Albert M. Herr rolled spectacular games. The croquet grounds were the scene of some really wonderful playing, for among the players were Charles B. Herr and J. Wade Gayley, of Strasburg; J. Rutter Hess, of Gap, and Ira H. Landis, of Paradise, all of whom are experts in this sport. Quoit pitching furnished amusement for many, while the children played "London Bridge is Falling Down," etc.

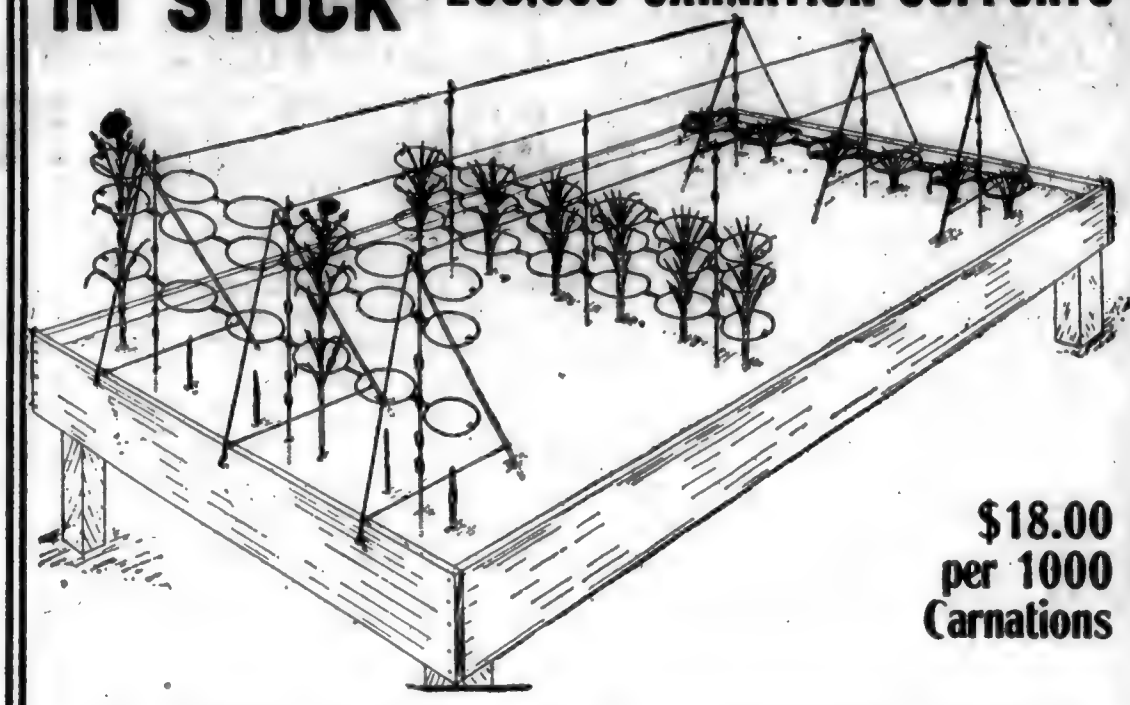
At 4 p. m. the prearranged program of sports was begun. The winners in the potato races were Robert Musser, Lester Brown and Willis Weaver, while the successful ladies were Rosanna Rohrer, Elizabeth Kohr and Katharine Weaver. The egg race was won by Mary Kreider and Elizabeth Kohr. The winners in the sack race were Paul Weaver and Edward Rohrer. In the boys' race, Edward Rohrer was first and Lester Brown second. In the girls' race, Mary Weaver was first and Rosanna Rohrer second.

At 5 o'clock the lunch baskets appeared on the lawn, and an enjoyable hour followed. President Harry A. Schroyer treated the entire party to ice cream.

Business Meeting.

Following supper, a business meeting of the club was held on the piazza. Harry K. Rohrer, for the flower show committee, reported having leased the Auditorium for November 9 to 11, when the second flower show of the club will be held. Albert M. Herr moved that one-half of the net proceeds from the show be given to the fund toward building a state armory in Lancaster, where eventually the club's flower shows may be held.

The visitors from out of the city were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, Sr., and Percy Barnard, all of whom motored from Kennett Square; E. J. Fancourt and D. T. Connor and daughter, of Philadelphia; T. J. Nolan, of the King Construction Co.; Misses Elton and Mary Weaver, of Newport News, Va.



The committee that arranged the affair consisted of Elmer J. Weaver, A. F. Strickler and Rudolph Nagel, all of whom deserve much credit. H. K. R.

The Market.

From a business standpoint there was little of importance during the last two weeks. The rainfall has been exceptionally heavy and there has been much damage done in the country, both from water and wind. The trade, however, has suffered little, if any, directly. The cloudy weather had its influence in shortening the supply of cut flowers, but as there was no great demand for them it made little difference. Gladioli are the only flowers that are plentiful. They are better this season, on the average, than I have ever seen them in this city. Asters are beginning to come in, though in small sizes and with short stems.

All the carnations and chrysanthemums now are in the houses, but there still is a surplus of good carnations in the field of as fine a quality as may be found anywhere. Our growers are finding that they always can sell a few thousand plants to those who do not grow their own.

There is a fair quantity of out-of-town business, and this helps to keep up the spirits while the pay crops are growing. The outlook for next year was never better than at present. There are about 1,500 teachers in attendance at the Peabody summer school, and while they are by no means heavy flower buyers they are better than the same number of college students. Retailers agree that there is more business this summer than usual.

Various Notes.

Miss Carrie Chance, stenographer and cashier for the Joy Floral Co., spent a few weeks in the country. On her return Miss Lilian Joy left for a visit to New York and other eastern points.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joy and some friends recently motored to Cincinnati. They attended the convention of the Rotary clubs.

F. Bralliar reports that his canna tests have produced some surprises this season, but none of them was more agreeable than the wonderful showing of La Fayette. His tests embrace about 150 sorts.

Mr. Haney, of Geny Bros., reported heavy out-of-town funeral orders that have kept the stock cleaned up closely.

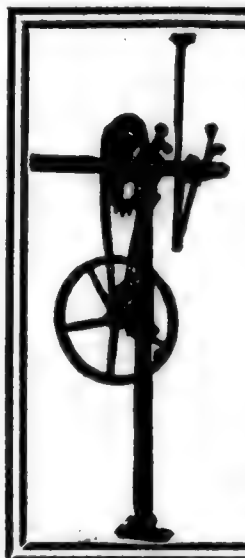
BUFFALO.

The Market.



The supply of stock has shortened considerably. Everything worth while tends to clear daily, such as it is. The quality of the stock is none too good, but it nevertheless continues to move readily. The demand is rather erratic. Beauties are about the same as last reported. Their sale is not at all brisk. Other roses arrive in an open condition. A few good roses may be had and they sell readily. The color of Russell is somewhat off, while Ophelia roses open too quickly in the heat. Red roses may be had, but there is small demand for them.

Carnations are becoming poorer in quality and the quantity is quite sufficient. Some of them are not salable on arrival. Easter lilies are about the same as they usually are at this time of the year—abundant and seemingly at a standstill. Good sweet peas are really a scarce article in the market, as there still is a demand for them. Of inferior sweet peas any quantity may be had. Valley and orchids have fallen off in demand as well as supply; in fact, the former is extremely scarce. Snapdragon continues to sell easily, while daisies, gaillardias, coreopsis, cornflowers and candytuft are inclined to drag. There are a few early asters in the market, most of them with short stems. Delphiniums experience a fair demand. Greens of all kinds may be had in any quantity at almost any price. A. E.

The Kasting Fire.

W. H. Eiss, secretary of the W. F. Kasting Co., which was burned out on the night of July 18, states that the stock of florists' supplies which was destroyed was valued at $25,000, with insurance. The fire was a bad one to fight, because of the inflammable nature of a part of the stock and because of the dense smoke, which overcame a dozen firemen. The concern occupied two floors and basement of the double store. Business has been going on much as usual since the fire in temporary quarters opened next day at 493 Washington street.

Hambleton, W. Va.—"Business this year has been better than ever; bedding plants were sold out completely and the cut flower sales doubled those of last year," says H. E. Hoefner, in speaking of business in northeast West Virginia.

How Far Does Your Money Go?

¶ Some men spend their hard earned cash and have nothing to show for it. Others spend it and have a lot to show, but nothing that amounts to much. Then there are the kind that spend it and have something worth while to show for it.

¶ What do you want when you spend, the most for your money or the best your money can buy? The answer is simple enough. You want the best. Quality, not quantity, is true economy.

¶ Now, that is just where we come in. We buy quality and that is what we sell—absolute quality. No French Pastry to look nice and cover up the defects, but just plain, oldfashioned quality.

¶ That is why a man who has once bought from DIETSCH always buys from DIETSCH. He has learned that quality (the "all wool and a yard wide" kind) pays and there is no chance for anything but that in DIETSCH material.

¶ Of course if you have built the DIETSCH way you know all about it. This advertisement is written for the other fellows, who either spend and have nothing to show or get a lot of stuff that amounts to nothing.

"METROPOLITAN"

The Sign of Superiority

The success of your greenhouse depends largely upon the results previously shown by the builder you employ.

Therefore, every grower should investigate the capabilities of the greenhouse-builder he selects for the job.

The above full iron frame, patented curved eave Metropolitan greenhouse was erected by us for Mr. W. W. Fuller, at Briar Cliff Manor, N. Y. This house is 26x100 feet, with an absolutely waterproof cement boiler cellar. It is divided into three compartments, which are separately heated and ventilated, and, being glazed with 24x24-inch glass, is extremely light. We also did the masonry.

The Market.

For the season of the year, business is keeping up well, but the volume, of course, is much smaller than that of a month ago. Carnations have deteriorated so rapidly in quality that not many of them are sold. Some of the retailers will not handle them until the new crop comes in. Sweet peas do not stand up well. Last week saw a great increase in the receipts of gladioli and asters. Gladioli undoubtedly will be too plentiful and extremely cheap this summer. Asters as yet are a trifle small, but the size and quality are improving each week. Large quantities of ferns are being shown.

Roses are fairly good for midsummer. Orchids are not so abundant as they were and are much cheaper. There is a greater variety of lilies; in addition to the Easter lily and the calla, there are several other varieties that have made their appearance during the last few weeks. Coreopsis, daisies, feverfew and many other summer flowers predominate.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club was held at the Krueger Auditorium July 27. The principal matters under consideration were the last details of the club outing, which the committee in charge has arranged. The outing will be held Thursday, August 3, at Berkeley Heights. Some of the members will go in their own automobiles or those of their friends. Those who do not have machines will go in auto busses. All will meet at Lincoln park, Broad street and Clinton avenue, and will leave there at 8:30 a. m., arriving at Berkeley Heights in time for a late breakfast. A late dinner will be served in the afternoon. There will be athletic events, with prizes for the winners, including a baseball game.

H. Breuninger reports that business was fine until July 1. Since then, as is usual, it has dropped off considerably.

A. Deisler & Son are doing well at their store at 31 Holland street, considering the season. Things are a little quieter at the branch store at 430 Eighteenth avenue.

The S. A. Rogers Nursery Co. has installed a new cashier's booth and trimmings at the rear of the show windows of its store at 14 Vranford place.

Charles Luthy reports that business is good, though now it is beginning to die down. He thinks the whole summer's business will average higher than usual. R. B. M.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Market conditions are well up to their usual July standing. Trade in general has drooped somewhat, but prices have kept up pretty well during the last two weeks. Funeral work has been heavy and a number of weddings have taken place. Counter trade is not at all good. Immense quantities of cut flowers arrive daily. Outdoor stock has decreased, but there is still a lot of it on the market.

Asters have made their appearance, but they are not of good quality, being small and irregular in shape. Niagara and America gladioli sell splendidly, retailing at $1 to $1.50 per dozen. Carnations are quite soft, on account of the intense heat of the last two weeks. Roses are plentiful, but it is a difficult proposition to keep them in good shape. Francis Scott Key, Ophelia and Maryland move well. Ward is losing its color. The second crop of outdoor roses is in now and the better varieties are useful for design work. Easter lilies are not overabundant. Valley is scarce. Good candytuft, achillea, gypsophila and mignonette are useful for basket work, which appears to be increasing in favor in this city. The supply of greens meets all requirements.

Various Notes.

The condition of Fred Vick, whose illness was reported in this column last week, has not undergone any noticeable change.

Fred Zoller, who is an expert in color photography, is away in the Adirondacks and is taking a large number of pictures, which he hopes to exhibit on his return.

Hans Moller, of Pittsford, N. Y., is growing some wonderful Celosia cristata.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Curtis and daughter have returned from their vacation, which they spent at Troutburg, N. Y. Mr. Curtis is cutting some fine Niagara and America gladioli.

H. E. Wilson had a large decoration at the Oak Hill Country Club last week for the wedding reception of Miss Florence Colebrook, the dancing exponent, and Mr. Wetmore. The decoration consisted of thousands of Dorothy Perkins roses, larkspurs and pink hollyhocks, with a large quantity of palms and ferns.

Miss Mary Smith, of George B. Hart's, is away on vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Howe and daughter, of Chicago, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Wilson for a few days. Mr. Howe is connected with the W. W. Barnard Co., of Chicago. The party now has left for Boston, Mass.

E. F. Kennon, of the Climax Mfg. Co., Castorland, N. Y., called on the trade last week.

George T. Boucher has a good summer decoration in his window. It consists of a large water tank, about five feet in diameter, completely surrounded by natural rocks, among which ferns and aquatic plants are arranged. It has a center rockery, with a fountain.

Schuyler Arnold, of the Crescent Seed Farm, Spencerport, is growing some extra fine sweet peas, which find a ready sale. He says that the stock on his farm is doing well and the weather of late has helped the crops along wonderfully. H. J. H.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Typical midsummer business conditions are prevailing at present. Other than funeral work, little business is being done, although the week's end found a little brisker tone to the market and a better grade of stock in demand. Gladioli are dominating the market and are to be seen wherever flowers are sold. The receipts of southern-grown stock have been greatly added to by a heavy supply of locally grown blooms; there are far too many for the demand. Roses are in rather shorter supply and a few more good whites could have been used during the latter part of the week. Carnations are conspicuous by their absence, which is not felt. Asters still are rather small and of poor quality. The few good blooms coming in find a ready sale, but the small ones are in little demand. Lilies have been in good demand and many are being used for funeral work.

There still is an oversupply of greens, but these have been moving better than those of last week. The general business has been fair for the season, with a little extra spurt July 22.

Various Notes.

George Boring, who has been with the Baltimore Wholesale Florists & Supply Co. since its formation, has returned to the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co.

The Hamilton Flower Shop reports a busy week of funeral work. One day the entire force was busy with this one line.

J. W. Penn's Sons are sending in some fine astermums to the Leo Niessen Co.

The excessively wet season is beginning to show its effect on outdoor crops, dahlias and carnations being especially injured. R. Vincent, Jr., reports that his company has suffered much damage, not only by washouts of plants but also from many rotting away because of excessive moisture at the roots.

Callers last week included C. S. Ford, of New York; E. F. Hoehl, representing S. S. Skidelsky & Co.; Sidney Bayersdorfer and D. T. Connor, all of Philadelphia.

W. F. E.

BAR HARBOR, ME.

The sympathy of a host of friends goes out to William Miller, lately manager at the Mount Desert Nurseries, and to Mrs. Miller, in the death of their daughter, Margaret, 13 years of age, July 10, following an operation for appendicitis.

John H. Stalford, of the Malvern Greenhouses, does a large and increasing business. Royal Jubilee melon filled several houses and was grandly fruited. One house contained a fine crop of Black Hambro and Muscat of Alexandria grapes. Campanula pyramidalis, gloxinias, tuberous begonias and hydrangeas are all grown in quantity. Outdoors there were splendid blocks of sweet peas, salpiglossis, antirrhinums, pentstemons, phloxes and other plants for cutting. Mr. Stalford now operates the store formerly operated by F. H. Moses and has a grand display of flowers there.

At the Mount Desert Nurseries, where A. E. Thatcher is manager, the herbaceous collection is extensive and makes a notable display. I was pleased to see so many fine varieties of saxifrages, eremuri and aconitums. A new rock garden recently was constructed here. In the greenhouses tomatoes, melons and other summer crops were being grown.

What's the Use of Getting All "Het Up" on Heating?

THE fellows who get all "het up" on their heating are the kind that the minute they stop firing in the spring never do a tap to their heating until it's near firing time in the fall.

They are a good bit like this old gink on the stove.

Nothing starts them short of starting a fire.

And then in a jiffy they are all "het up," and want everything done in a minute.

They write us.

They phone us.

They wire us.

They come to see us.

They expect us to do the impossible—and we come pretty close to doing it.

Getting "het up" that way, however, costs money—too much money. The man who saves money is the man who doesn't cool off on his heating until it's all in apple-pie order, ready to heat up when heating time comes.

You know we go anywhere to do heating, or talk heating.

HOUSTON, TEX.

We have had an ideal week for all plants growing outside and everything is looking fine. The convention garden is coming along nicely. There is one bed of crotons that is a rainbow of colors. The water lilies are beginning to bloom and the cannas are in fine growing condition.

The Gulf Florist, Walter Retzer, proprietor, states that business has begun to drop off for the summer, but that it still is good for the season.

John Young, of New York city, secretary of the S. A. F., arrived in Houston July 17 and is lining up things for the convention. Mr. Young and R. C. Kerr left July 22 for San Antonio, where they are to meet the florists at the convention in August.

Mr. Carlisle, of Carlisle & Son, of Alvin, is in the city and says that everything is coming along and that they have a 2-acre tract of tuberoses that is snow white.

Mr. Boyles, of Boyles & Pendarvis, states they are having an excellent business and that it has dropped off less than usual on account of the summer weather. They are getting a good deal of their summer cut flowers on a tract they own at Bellaire, where they are intending to put up greenhouses this fall for their winter cut flowers and pot plants and growing department.

Stuppy Floral Company Build Big House at St. Joseph, Missouri

FOR a good many years the Stuppy Floral Company have been the big people of St. Joseph. A glance at the size of the range tells that.

The single big house, 50 feet by 400 feet, in the front is the one we erected for them last year.

It's our iron frame construction with two columns, and that special combined compression and tension truss stiffening of the frame.

It's practically the same method of framing that we use in our 40-foot houses, when leaving out all columns.

Look at the free open space there is between the columns on the interior view above. Now glance down at the eave and notice those double gusset plates, which bolt together the steel rafters and the guaranteed wrought iron posts.

Notice the frequency of the purlins—no skinning done on the job to beat the other fellow out on price. For each width house, we have certain definite framing methods, in which certain weights of rafters and sizes of purlins are used.

No amount of arguing can induce us to use any other, because all our sizes have been figured out, not by one engineer, but by all our engineers.

They are not the opinion of any one man.

They are the conclusions of a dozen men, backed up by all our years and years of greenhouse building experience.

And speaking of experience, we are the only firm who for over one-half century have been building greenhouses exclusively. In spite of all that may be said to the contrary we always have, and are today, building the best Greenhouses built, and using the best materials procurable.

Early-Flowering Long Season
SPENCER SWEET PEAS
For Winter Flowering Under Glass

Since the introduction of Yarrawa Spencer Sweet Peas, great effort has been made on the part of Californian and Australian growers to produce Early-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas. We offer a list of varieties by one of the most prominent Californian and one of the most prominent Australian growers. One of their chief characteristics is their long-season period of blooming, frequently remaining in bloom for four months. Every one of the crosses was made from the old Early-flowering or Christmas Grandiflora types on the late or Standard Spencers as parents. We feel that there will be little demand for the common or Grandiflora Winter-flowering type, and have, therefore, decided to discontinue offering the same.

CALIFORNIAN VARIETIES

READY FOR DELIVERY AUGUST-SEPTEMBER

EARLY MORNING STAR

The color is a deep orange scarlet or flame color in standard, with rich, orange-pink wings. The flower is practically the same color as the Late-flowering Spencer Thomas Stevenson. It does not burn out in the open and under glass will be magnificent. The flowers are large and of best Spencer form, and borne in threes and fours in wonderful profusion. Pkt., 15 seeds, 25c; ¼-oz., $1.50; oz., $5.00.

EARLY SNOWFLAKE

This is one of the best Early-flowering White-seeded White Spencers. The blossoms are very large and of the best waved Spencer form. The flowers are borne in wonderful profusion on long stems. The form is every bit as good as White Spencer. Pkt., 15 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., $1.50; oz., $5.00.

EARLY SPRING MAID

Those who are familiar with the Late-flowering Spencer Mrs. Hugh Dickson, will have a good idea of what a handsome variety this is. The color is a light pink on a cream ground, and the blossoms have the same splendid characteristics of Mrs. Hugh Dickson for a florists' flower. It is a most effective flower and, like our other Early-flowering Spencers, it carries a great wealth of blossoms borne in fours on long stems. There is no Early Spencer Cream Pink which is as attractive as Early Spring Maid. Pkt., 25 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., $1.25; oz., $4.00.

EARLY MELODY

This is a deeper shade of pink than Early Song Bird on white ground, closely resembling Countess Spencer and near Hercules. It might be described as rose pink on white ground. The effect, when bunched, is most pleasing. It is very floriferous. The flowers are borne on long stems and most four large, well-waved blossoms to each stem. Pkt., 25 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., $1.25; oz., $4.00.

EARLY SONG BIRD

The flower is the same color as Florence Morse Spencer and Lady Evelyn Eyre, and a bit lighter than Elfrida Pearson. It has the same excellent form and features of Mrs. Hugh Dickson, but is on a white ground. The placement of the flowers is splendid for packing and the flowers are borne on long stems in threes and fours. When in full growth it seemed as though every stem carried four large blossoms. Pkt., 25 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., $1.25; oz., $4.00.

EARLY HEATHER BELL

This will be one of the most popular shades with all florists, as it will be useful for making up for any occasion. It is a little like the variety known as Anita Wehrman, but vastly superior in every way. The flowers are very large, borne in fours and threes on long, stout stems, and are of beautiful, bold Spencer form. The color is a rich but pleasing mauve, but after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender. Pkt., 25 seeds, 25c; ¼ oz., $1.50; oz., $5.00.

AUSTRALIAN VARIETIES

READY FOR DELIVERY NOW

CONCORD STRAIN

Pkt., 18 seeds each of any of the following varieties, 35c; 5 pkts., $1.50

CONCORD PINK. A beautiful, new variety of a most attractive shade of delicate pink. The flowers are large and of true Spencer form. The stems, which are long and strong, usually carry 3 large flowers.

CONCORD CRIMSON. A variety of great merit on account of its glowing color. It is a rich crimson; the flowers, of true Spencer form, are borne on strong, stiff stems.

CONCORD LAVENDER. Without a doubt this is the finest of all Lavender Winter-flowering Sweet Peas. The color is a beautiful shade of rich, rosy lavender. The flowers are of true Spencer form.

CONCORD WHITE. A splendid, pure white variety of wonderful vigor and substance. The flowers are pure white and of ideal Spencer form, borne three and four to the stem.

CONCORD SALMON. A rich shade of salmon pink and very free flowering. The flowers are borne three and four to a stem and are of true Spencer form.

CONCORD BLUE. This magnificent variety is of a beautiful sky-blue color, sometimes varying darker, the variation, however, being slight. Quite the finest sky-blue we know of.

CONCORD PURPLE. A leader in its color. When first opening, a delightful shade of mauve purple, changing, as the flower ages, to purple blue. The flowers are of ideal Spencer form and quite large.

CYCLAMEN

We have from year to year been growing these popular winter flowering plants in steadily increasing quantities. The demand for them is such that our supply of plants, however large it may be, quickly gets exhausted.

Our methods of cultivation have proved singularly successful. The plants are healthy, stocky and strong; the results consequently and invariably satisfactory, both to our many customers and to us.

As to the selection of colors and strains, we have been more careful than ever to get only the best, as can be seen from the following list of international strains, which can be had either in separate colors or assorted. As the orders come in, we pick out the heaviest, best leaved plants of a splendid stock of about 40,000.

Wonder of Wandsbek, Sunset, Glory of Wandsbek, Excelsior.
Rose of Wandsbek, Prince of Wales,
Dark Red, White with Pink Eye,

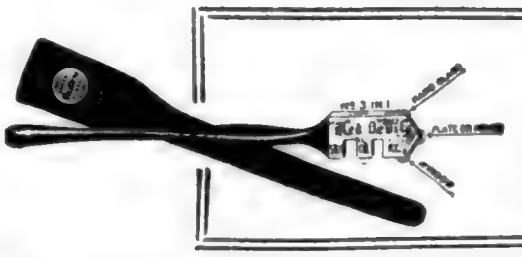
PAINTING SEASON OPENS

Many Firms Will Use Bilchaco Greenhouse White



During the past few years florists have given considerable thought to the painting problem, with a view toward increasing the light in their houses. This has resulted in a greater use of a Gloss Oil Paint in preference to lead and oil and other products producing a semi-gloss finish.

Bilchaco Greenhouse White has therefore met with a warm reception, since it possesses exceptional light reflecting qualities, sheds water and dust and wears well, retaining its original gloss for the longest possible time.

It is said that Bilchaco Greenhouse White prevents mold and mildew on the sash bars where glass laps occur. Keeping the bars clean and free from spore or fungus growths insures better light and absolute protection from decay.

Bilchaco Greenhouse White covers maximum surface and consequently costs less by the job.

If you are going to paint this season try this product. It will mean better light, more flowers and greater profit. Write the Billings-Chapin Co., Cleveland, Boston or New York, for a quotation on your requirements. Paint makers for more than thirty years.—Adv.

There is no need to worry about replacing your greenhouse glass when you are equipped with
